

Dahlman Heads Latest Slate in City Primary

Others on Ticket Are Dunn, Hopkins, Hummel, Koutsky, Noyes and Wharton; With Variations.

Will the slates be broken next Tuesday when the fate of 65 candidates will be decided?

Voters will have from 8 a. m. to 3 p. m. in which to express their choices, each voter being limited by law to vote for not more than seven candidates. The highest 14 will be the nominees for the election on May 3.

The latest slate to appear yesterday was on a small card bearing the caption, "For Onward Omaha," which was the slogan appearing on the covers of the petitions circulated in behalf of J. C. Dahlman a few weeks ago. The names on this "Onward Omaha" slate are: J. C. Dahlman, Henry W. Dunn, John H. Hopkins, Joseph B. Hummel, Joseph Koutsky, Dean Noyes and John C. Wharton. A variation of this slate contained the names of D. B. Butler and John Kilmartin in the place of Noyes and Wharton. Mr. Butler stated yesterday that if his name had been used in that manner it was without his consent.

The Committee of 5,000 came out a week ago with the following slate: A. L. Sutton, J. Dean Ringer, Roy N. Towl, Thomas Falconer, John F. Murphy, C. A. Grimmel. This organization endorsed only six candidates because the members were not unanimous on a seventh choice and for the further reason that many intend to vote for City Commissioner W. G. Ure, notwithstanding that he was not endorsed by the "5,000."

The Independent Voters' league, composed of members of the trades unions, announced this slate last Sunday: Henry F. Wulf, Ben Short, T. P. Reynolds, Charles A. Ries, R. R. Butzer, John F. Murphy and J. B. Trainor.

The North Side club endorsed these candidates: Henry F. Wulf, Thomas Falconer, W. J. Hiss, John B. Trainor and T. P. Reynolds. A group of ex-service men organized the Hopkins-Kilmartin club, to promote the candidacies of John Hopkins and John Kilmartin.

U. S. Insists Germany Make War Reparations

vigorous and straightforward American pronouncement.

"While this is gratifying in the highest degree," he said, "it is not a real surprise, as it stands on all fours with what I had so far learned in my attempt to present the cause and plight of France."

Acceptance of Treaty Impossible. That the president's attitude as to Germany's responsibility for the war, however, means the administration will accede to the wishes of the allies as to the continued participation of the United States in European affairs does not follow.

The ratification of the Versailles treaty, even with such modifications as were embodied in the Lodge reservations, is now out of the question. The administration would not accept the treaty unless it were much more radically revised.

The president, in his inauguration address, declared against the entanglement of the United States in European affairs and any peace that is made must meet this test. If the allies were willing to revise the treaty to the satisfaction of the United States, the way would be opened for direct endorsement of the terms imposed on Germany.

Such endorsement would also be made possible by ratification of the treaty with reservations of non-acceptance of provisions of which the United States disapproves.

A third method would be a separate peace with Germany for which the Knox resolution is proposed to pave the way. If this alternative should be adopted, the administration presumably would require that Germany, in such a treaty, admit responsibility for the war and agree to make reparations.

What was disclosed of the administration's attitude today does not indicate any weakening of disapproval of the present league of nations. It was noted as significant that a concurrent development was the announcement of the appointment of George Harvey, a league reconciler, to be ambassador to Great Britain.

Electric Exhibit To Contrast Old Lighting and New

Merchandising Display of Big Electrical Concerns To Be Shown Here April 4 at Hotel Rome.

The "flying squadron," a merchandising exhibit arranged by nine big electrical concerns associated with the General Electric company, which is touring the principal cities of the country, will meet in Omaha, Monday, April 4, at the Hotel Rome, under the direction of the Mid-West Electric company.

The show is equipped with a revolving stage, divided into four sections, showing the interior of various rooms in the home, the store and factory, and depicting old time settings and poor illumination as compared to up-to-date electrically equipped rooms.

As the upper half of the stage can be revolved independently of the lower section the setting can remain the same while the side walls and ceiling in the rooms are shifted.

In addition to the stage there are two miniature displays, one showing a typical store window, fully equipped with the various electrical products and the other showing the improvement of proper lighting to a factory.

Ten Persons Missing After Ship Collision

heavy steel prow crumpled like paper and her deck crowded with a huddled throng of survivors in blankets and borrowed clothing, warped into the ship. Then, in many cases, anxiety gave way to merriment which in turn became hysteria, as friends recognized friends among those saved.

The ships' captains were reticent in speaking of the disaster, but declared order was maintained aboard the sinking ship.

The collision occurred less than a mile off shore, directly opposite the Point Wilson lighthouse, near Port Townsend, in the Strait of Juan de Fuca. The Governor is believed to lie in about 23 fathoms of water. According to Purser Holzer, the Governor was on her course, it being customary to steam close to the shore in making the Point Wilson light.

Night Fairly Clear. Ship's officers declared the night was fairly clear, with a light fog overhanging, William G. Thomas, keeper of the Point Wilson lighthouse, who was in his tower at the time of the collision, said he plainly heard the crash and could see the two ships together from his window.

Grant Christensen, second assistant engineer on the Governor, is believed by the ship's officers to have gone to the engine room to see if he could keep the ship's engines running.

Several children, at least two of them babies in arms, were included among the survivors and were brought off the west Hardland swathed in blankets.

marriage relation. This rule is founded upon sound public policy. Does not seek divorce.

Referring to Mrs. Stillman's charge that her husband's behavior is the father of a 30-month-old son, Mrs. Florence H. Leeds, former musical revue girl, the decision said:

"The defendant has amended her answer and charges acts and conduct upon the plaintiff of similar character as charged by him against her and such acts are supported by affidavits of different persons."

"She does not seek a divorce, but pleads recrimination against the defendant as a defense. If the acts and conduct as charged against each other are sustained, neither will be entitled to a decree."

"If these charges are established the plaintiff and defendant will find themselves in the same position as before the commencement of the action, except that they will have had their day in court or perhaps several days as to matters affecting them and this means time, labor and expenditure of money."

The decision said it was "a debatable question" whether the letters alleged to have been written to Mrs. Stillman by the Indian guide, one of her husband's servants, "should be received upon the plaintiff's affidavit, unaccompanied by other affidavits."

Child, Innocent Victim. Guy Stillman, the infant whose legitimacy was attacked by Mr. Stillman and who was named co-defendant with his mother, "will bear a stain that cannot be erased and for which he is not responsible, if the husband is successful in his suit," the decision said.

"The plaintiff seeks to do that which he believes is his duty to himself and his children," it continued. "The plaintiff having challenged the paternity of the child, the defendant comes to its protection and to the defense of its legitimacy." That is her duty and she is right in her claim. She vigorously champions the child's cause and this is expected from any mother.

Grants $7,500 Monthly. "The interests of the defendant and of the infant in this case are to a great extent the same."

The three Stillman children, other than the infant whose paternity is attacked "are of sufficient age to determine with whom they desire to reside during the pendency of the action," Justice Morschauer said.

"Their preference should control in the circumstances now presented. While the children are with the mother or in her charge, she must provide for their schooling and other necessary expenses. I believe to meet these expenses the alimony should be allowed in the sum of $7,500 a month."

Passion Play to Be Enacted at Oberammergau in 1922

Oberammergau, Bavaria, April 1.—The village elders of Oberammergau voted to enact the Passion play in 1922. The last presentation was given in 1910.

The peasants who portray the sufferings and death of Jesus Christ in fulfillment of a vow made in 1634 to present the Passion play every 10 years as an expression of gratitude for having been spared from a plague, were unable to enact it in 1920, because of unsettled conditions and the havoc which the war wrought among the performers and musicians.

Peggy Marsh Says Suit for Son Has Not Been Dropped

Actress Denies That Claim Brought Against Henry Field Has Been Settled—May Return to Stage.

New York, April 1.—Peggy Marsh, now Mrs. Albert Johnson, who previous to her marriage became the mother of a child by Henry Field, heir to the Marshall Field millions, denied today that the claim she brought against the Field estate has been settled.

Henry Field was the grandson of the first Marshall Field who left a large estate. Miss Marsh, or rather Mrs. Albert Johnson—sued for a share in the estate for her small son.

Marshall Field, third, another grandson of Marshall Field, and brother of Henry, paid an allowance to the actress, but refused to acknowledge her claim to a share in his brother's estate. The claim is still pending and the court decision may be expected in April.

Miss Marsh said today: "I am bringing the claim against the Field estate for my little son's sake. He is 4 years old now and a beautiful boy. He looks so much like his father."

"My husband, Albert Johnson, is not very rich, despite reports to the contrary. He is a young man just venturing into business. Of course he will be successful, but that takes time and he has only begun."

"We are very happy, my husband and I, and I do not want to go on the stage. I never cared too much for it as it was. Many stage offers are made to me almost daily, but I have refused them all for the present."

"I have always been something of a home body and would much rather stay at home with my husband and baby. Besides, my husband does not wish that I return to acting. But if the court settlement of the Field estate is not made in my favor, I may have to go on the stage again. It may be settled late in April."

A petition containing the names of the subscribers was presented to the company ordering the instruments discontinued. Four operators are being kept on duty for a few days pending the outcome of the strike of subscribers.

Long distance calls have to be answered at the office and a messenger toll of 25 cents is required to summon anybody. The business houses as well as residence telephones were ordered removed.

American Steamship Owners Reduce Wages

Washington, April 1.—Decision to reduce the wages of the 60,000 men employed on American ships operating out of Atlantic and Gulf ports was reached at a conference of representatives of the American Steamship Owners' association and Chairman Benson of the shipping board.

Agreements under which the seamen are now working expire May 1 and the owners sought the approval of the board to a plan for readjusting wages and working conditions. The board, however, declined to approve any specific plan. Chairman Benson said and the terms of the wage reductions proposed by the owners were not made public.

The steamship owners were told, the chairman announced, that the board was thoroughly in harmony with the view that there must be readjustment of wages necessitating a reduction, restriction of overtime and modification of some of the existing rules and regulations.

Marshall Field, third, another grandson of Marshall Field, and brother of Henry, paid an allowance to the actress, but refused to acknowledge her claim to a share in his brother's estate. The claim is still pending and the court decision may be expected in April.

Fake Stock Firm That Got $100,000 Found by Police

Federal Warrant Issued for Promoter Robert Barry, Head of Company, Said to Have Victimized 1,800.

Chicago, April 1.—An alleged bogus stock selling concern, with La Salle street offices, which is said to have victimized 1,800 persons out of more than $100,000 was disclosed today following a state investigation of the crash of the Arthur Barry company.

The company is said to have had a "sucker list" compiled from letters to prospective patrons. Its records showed that at one time 400 kinds of stocks were offered for sale. The slogan of the concern was "give a customer any kind of stock he wants," the state investigators disclosed.

The "sucker list" showed that the concern covered a wide territory. Propaganda had been spread from Springfield, Mass., to Denver, Colo., and at different times "fly by night" offices had been opened in Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Denver and Chicago.

Robert Barry, said to be the "J. Rufus Wallingford" of the concern, was named in a federal warrant today. He has fled.

Barry first gained notoriety in Chicago in 1919, when he was forced to liquidate the Globe Securities investment company, also a shady stock selling concern.

The specific charge against Barry is misusing the mails to defraud. The authorities say their eyes were first opened to this fact following the filing of bankruptcy proceedings against the Motor Express company, a transportation company controlled by Barry. Thousands of dollars worth of stock in this concern was sold. Jacob Goldman, appointed receiver last fall, when the company reported that a search for assets had revealed the treasury had been looted.
