

Strong Plea Made For Democracy In Education

Head of New York City Schools Says Knowledge is Not Power Unless Used For Public Good.

A weighty plea for democracy in education was made by Dr. William McAndrew, associate superintendent of schools of New York city, before the superintendents and principals' section of the Nebraska State Teachers association yesterday afternoon.

"The kind of education our higher schools and colleges are giving is an inheritance from England," he said. "It is not what Washington and Jefferson outlined for us. I don't like to hear a man called 'doctor' just because he has drunk at the public educational fountain more than some other man. And what silly things the caps and gowns that graduates wear. Even high school graduates are wearing them now."

"It is wrong to say that knowledge is power in any sense except that it is the power to do good in the community. The basis of public education is the public welfare. We should devise means whereby our schools would cease to be beggars and doers of good to the communities that say for them. Ask yourselves, 'What can we and our students do for the community and then do it.'"

Peru Pedagogue Speaks.
Superintendent Charles E. Greene of the training school of Peru State Normal, spoke on "Making Public Schools Public, a Major Function of the Superintendent."

W. G. Brooks, superintendent of Nebraska City schools, presided at this sectional meeting.

"Don't take sides," President L. D. Coffman of the University of Minnesota advised rural teachers at their sectional meeting in Central High school auditorium yesterday afternoon.

"Don't try to make farmers out of all our pupils just because you are in an agricultural community, or farmers in a mining country," he advocated. "Your business is to make citizens."

Warns Against Rivalry.
Establishment of "teacherages" and the development of community spirit have done much to better the opportunities for rural teachers, he pointed out.

He warned teachers against emphasizing the rivalry between urban and rural schools.

Supr. J. G. L. Hanlon of Brock read a paper on rural school standards, which was discussed by Mabel Johnson of Omaha and Chloé Baldrige of Fullerton, county superintendents. Miss Ruth Shively of Peru spoke on health education. O. L. Cady of David City led the discussion.

Study Methods Discussed.
Dr. L. D. Coffman, president of the University of Minnesota, told grade school teachers at the meeting yesterday afternoon in the temple that one can study as well in a comfortable rocking chair or in bed as sitting straight in a hard school chair.

"I have an acquaintance who wrote two of his very best papers while in a bathtub," Dr. Coffman declared.

The theory that a child's work curves ascend between 10 and 12 in the morning and 1 and 3 in the afternoon was declared a fallacy by Dr. Coffman, who asserted the child can do just as good work one hour as another.

L. A. Smith, assistant superintendent of Omaha public schools, discussed tests and measurements as vitalizing influence, and Dr. Lida B. Earhart of the University of Nebraska talked on supervised study. Miss Daisy Spickard of Fremont, secretary of the grade teachers' section, and J. L. McCrory, assistant superintendent of schools here, presided at the meeting in the Labor temple.

Man Arrested on Charge Of Refusing to Pay Fare
G. M. Thompson, Newman Grove, Neb., was arrested Thursday night on a charge of refusing to pay a taxi bill to A. Skellingburg, chauffeur, 1717 Willis avenue.

Skellingburg told police that Thompson and another man asked him to drive them uptown from the Union station. When they came to Sixteenth and Dodge streets the unidentified man left the car and did not return, the chauffeur said.

Skellingburg then caused the arrest of Thompson, who was also charged with being drunk.

Your Face and What It Tells

Merchandising, Wholesale and Retail. Offers Opportunities for All Types—Study Yourself, Choose Your Line and Go to the Top.

By MABEL WARNER RUGG.
A VOCATION that offers unlimited opportunity for all types of people is the clothing and general merchandise business, wholesale and retail. Here is a splendid field for the efforts of intelligent individuals, for the work is more varied than in any other industry we have in this country.

In the wholesale side of the work there are two ways to rise. As usual, the bright beginner must start by going straight into the stock rooms and serve an apprenticeship piling bales and boxes of goods. In the Omaha wholesale institutions every chance is given to the ambitious beginner to learn the lines, and the minute he shows sufficient ability and desire he is given a chance at sales.

Road to Advancement.
Here he gets the chance to meet the merchants as they come in to buy, and by studying scientific sales methods he fits himself to rise in the house sales end of the business, or to go on to the road as a man covering a regular territory.

If he elects to stay in the house, selling to the visiting merchants, he must rise to promotion through the district sales department, in a semi-executive position. When he becomes district sales manager, outstanding ability and unusually comprehensive knowledge of sales problems all over the territories will put him in line for the position of sales manager and get him into line for a directorship of the company in time.

If the man goes out on the road as a salesman and makes good, identifying out to know trade conditions in all territories, he is also in line for a district sales manager position, or sales manager. If he trains himself in the advertising end of the game as well, he can make a big success as a promotion manager, opening up virgin territory on some special product.

The Big Retail Field.
The retail phase of general merchandising and clothing is a field that has been occupied too long by many half-competent and the uneducated workers. This has been largely the fault of the merchandiser, unwilling to spend time or money to build up a morale.

There are still great department stores whose policy is not such as to attract high-class trade, but their days are numbered. Today college trained people are going into the big department stores and serving an apprenticeship that soon fits them for department-managerships, at salaries from $3,000 to $15,000 a year.

From the first day a beginner in the department store work must have a definite schedule of preparation in mind, to fit him or her for the next step up. A choice of work is permitted if possible, and the worker must immediately begin to study trade journals, and get information about textiles, dyes, and methods of manufacture and studying market conditions.

Here is a vocation where ability is instantly recognized. The individual who shows interest, and willingness to learn is given a chance at the assistance to the buyer in the department. Then he or she must study market conditions sharply, for the next step up is a department manager's work, and there the real brainwork comes in.

One department head in Omaha today shows a 400 per cent increase in her department over the previous year and her annual bonus will be a fair percentage of every dollar she has increased her department sales. In the merchandise business there is room for the short-fingered person, and the long fingered, the planner and the detail man. There are products for the coarse textured and those for the fine textured. Know yourself, and you can make good in this vocation.

Answers to Questions.
Miss B. H.: Before advising anyone regarding taking up nursing or plan to take that person. Yes, the former may have drawn indications from observation and outside people.

P. M. D.: Your question would take too much space to answer. Get hold of the files of the Omaha Daily Bee for the month of March and read the articles to find out what we mean by character analysis and vocational choice. Drop into my office and my assistants will be glad to make it clear to you.

Mrs. C. G. G.: You should get into touch with some organization like the Builders' Exchange in the evening building. They can tell you whether or not your work in drawing human plans is worth while. If you have real ability in planning clever houses the magazines like the House Beautiful, or that sort of magazine like the Home Journal should be interested in seeing them. If you have creative ability there is plenty of chance for you in this world.

Landowners Seek Release of Deeds

Representatives of Laramie Unit Say Irrigation Restricting Responsible.

Washington, D. C., April 1.—(Special Telegram.)—A. W. Matters and A. B. Wood of Gering, Neb., who arrived in Washington today, held a conference with the director of the reclamation service and the general counsel, which was participated in by Judge Kinkaid, with a view of securing the government's consent to release the trust deeds given by the land owners on the Laramie unit of the North Platte project.

The trust deeds were given when the unit was taken up for development and are in possession of the City National bank of Omaha, as trustee for the government.

The representatives of the landowners in their conference today, gave as a reason for asking that the deeds be released, that the unit of land which the deeds cover has gone into another irrigation district and they feel that it is working a great hardship upon the owners to continue under present conditions.

There is agreed deal of detail to be worked out before any final decision can be reached, but the director intimates that the matter would have his early attention.

White Plague to Disappear in 40 Years, Says Evans

Chicago Physician Bases Claim On Decrease in Last Decade; Organizations Fighting Cause of Disease.

The dread "T. B." will be wiped out of existence in the next 40 years. This declaration was made last night by Dr. W. A. Evans of Northwestern university, former health commissioner of Chicago, who conducted The Bee's "How to Keep Well" column, at the annual dinner of the Nebraska Tuberculosis association at the University club.

Dr. Evans came to address the teachers convention.

He bases his claim on a decrease of 2.12 per cent in the tuberculosis death rate every year for the past decade.

Preventive work of organizations like the Nebraska one accomplished this splendid work, he said.

Eradicating Cause of Disease.
A generation ago consumption was regarded as an incurable curse to the price humankind paid for the rise of cities," he said.

"We do not only fight disease—our big work is to eradicate the habits and customs of a community which give rise to preventable disease."

"The fight is not yet won despite the gain. There are many people in Nebraska, yet, newly arrived immigrants and those in dirt hovels on the plains, who do not know the meaning of fresh air."

Col. Henry Page of Fort Crook talked on "Army Control of Tuberculosis." Mrs. K. R. J. Edholm gave reports of state and Miss Alice Marshall of local anti-tuberculosis work.

Directors Elected.
Directors were elected as follows: Dr. S. R. Towne, Dr. W. B. W. N. Anderson, Dr. A. D. Clodf, Mrs. Draper Smith, Dr. J. F. Edwards, C. J. Claasson of Omaha; J. A. True, McCook; Dr. T. A. Sandbury, Holdrege; W. H. Morton, Fairbury; Mrs. H. W. Benson, Oakland; H. Gates, Columbus; H. D. Landis, Seward; John C. Miller, Nebraska City; W. H. Page, Alliance; Mrs. Max Westerman, Lincoln; Dr. H. B. Simon, Norfolk; Dr. L. J. Sidwell, Kearney; Dr. T. A. Moore, Schuyler; Dr. Cullen Wright, Scottsbluff, and Dr. O. A. Wirsig, West Point.

The association passed resolution to request the state to furnish educational facilities for 20 tubercular children in the state institution at Kearney and endorsed the Chamber of Commerce plan to organize a central welfare operating agency.

The dinner table was arranged in the form of the Lorraine cross, emblem of anti-tuberculosis work.

Anti-Leaguers Plan Recall of State Officers

Election on Ouster of Governor and Two Other North Dakota Officials to Be Held.

By The Associated Press.
Devils Lake, N. D., April 1.—Decision to call a recall election on or before November 8, against three state officials endorsed by the Non-partisan league and to initiate a series of constitutional amendments providing for issuance of bonds to retire former issues was reached last night at the closing session of the Anti-Nonpartisan league convention.

The recall will be against Governor L. J. Frazier, Attorney General William Lemke and John N. Hagin, commissioner of agriculture and labor.

While there was no roll call on the recall questions, there were not more than half a dozen votes against it out of nearly 400. The vote followed an afternoon of debate, after which both sides got together and adopted a recall resolution presented by Treadwell Twitchell of Fargo.

R. A. Nestos of Minot, a republican, was placed at the head of the recall ticket to oppose Governor Frazier. Sveinbjorn Johnson of Grand Forks, chairman of the state democratic central committee, was
