ERMA Sells, formerly of Omaha, is now studying under Adolph Boim whose ballet comes here with the Little Symphony next week at the Brandeis. She will not come to Omaha with the ballet this season but will be featured next year by Mr. Boim at the Metropolitan in New York. Miss Sells when in this city studied with Miss Mary Cooper. Miss Frances Farenthright studied with Miss Cooper at the same time and has since been featured as Mlle. Dagamara in the Pavlye Oukrainsky ballet.

White-Fitzpatrick.

The marriage of Miss Letta Fitzpatrick and Earl White of this city, formerly of Pittsburgh, took place Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. H. Beard, the Rev. J. F. McCarthy officiated. The attendants were Miss Irene Fitzpatrick, sister of the bride, and Ray Northern, cousin of the groom. The bride wore her traveling suit of dark blue with hat to match. Her corsage bouquet was of roses and sweetpeas.

The ceremony was followed by a dinner of 24 covers at the Beard home for relatives.

The couple will make a short eastern trip and will be at home at Drake Court after April 21.

Little Mary Virginia has studied for the last two seasons with Miss Holyoke. This will be her first appearance as a soloist. Among the other young solo dancers in the recital are: Lucille McGrath, Helen Brown, Virginia Aldous, Charlotte Brant, Jean Potter, Margaret Martin and Virginia Langfeller.

Mildred Rhodes Becomes a Bride

A most attractive home wedding took place Wednesday evening at the Walter H. Rhodes residence when Miss Mildred Rhodes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Rhodes, became the bride of R. Ware Hall, son of Mrs. R. S. Hall. The ceremony, performed by Dr. E. H. Jenks, took place before an altar of Easter lilies, ferns and palms. Snap dragons and Columbia roses were used through the rooms. Miss Marian Judson of Chicago, cousin of the bride, acted as bridesmaid. She was gowned in pastel shades of chiffon made with low bodice and sleeves in colonial style. Her colonial bouquet was of pink and white sweetpeas and roses. She wore the gift of the bride, a platinum and sapphire pin.

The bridegroom was of French satin trimmed with Duchess lace taken from the wedding gown of the bride's mother. It was made with low bodice, short sleeves and long train in princess style. The tulle veil was draped with orange blossoms sent from California. The brides ornaments were a pearl necklace worn by her mother on her bridal day and a platinum diamond and sapphire pin, the gift of the groom. Her colonial bouquet was of white sweetpeas and orchids.

Jasper Hall, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

The ceremony was followed by an informal reception for the wedding guests.

The bride attended Brownell Hall here and the Art Institute in Chicago. She was an Ak-Sar-Ben maid of 1919. Mr. Hall was graduated from Yale.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall left Wednesday evening for the east. They will sail April 16 to spend three months traveling in England and on the continent. Mrs. Hall's traveling costume was a smart suit of gray with hat to match. Upon their return to Omaha they will be with the bride's parents for a short time.

Humane Society Junior League. Humane society are being organized in Omaha under direction of Miss Eleanor Dickman, who has met with remarkable success in the few months since she undertook the work. The members sign an application which has to be approved by their parents in which they promise to be kind at home, at school, and at play to protect all life to help enforce the laws for the protection of birds and animals; to watch for acts of cruelty and try to prevent them if possible; to promote the Junior League by telling of its usefulness and do all they can to keep themselves well and strong.

Doctors Wives Club. The Doctors Wives club entertained at a tea at the Fontenelle Wednesday afternoon. Pink roses and sweetpeas formed the decorations. Mrs. Frank Conlin and Mrs. W. P. Wherry were hostesses. Mrs. Fred C. Hill accompanied by Mrs. Howard Kennedy gave several vocal numbers. Ninety guests attended. There are 30 members in the club.

Friday Luncheon. At the luncheon Friday at the Fontenelle, honoring Mrs. H. H. Wheeler of Lincoln and Mrs. Draper Smith of this city, the following will be at the speaker's table: John L. Kennedy, Judge Howard Kennedy, Norris Brown and W. A. Baxter.

HOLDING A HUSBAND

Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

The Surprise the Telephone Brought Madge.

I could not help a quick, furtive glance at Dicky and Edith to see what effect Lillian's luncheon invitation to Edith would have upon them. But if any plan of theirs had been thwarted by the invitation, there was no indication of it from either of them. Edith murmured a perfunctory and properly grateful assent to Lillian's offer, while Dickey began teasing Marion, a pastime of which he as well as the child never tires. "There won't be many of us left at home tomorrow," Mrs. Durkee pouted. "Only Marion and Madge and I."

"And Katie and Jim!" Alfred interposed laughing. "But perhaps some of the neighbors will come in and keep you from getting lonesome." "Get along with you!" his mother scolded. "We'll find plenty to do. Madge, I can help you all day to finish up anything you want done. I shall be very grateful for your aid."

Mrs. Creigh Is Re-elected Leader Current Topics Department

Mrs. Mary I. Creigh was unanimously re-elected leader of the current topic department of the Omaha Woman's club at the annual business meeting Tuesday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. J. Welshens was chosen assistant leader and Mrs. E. E. Stanfield was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

Mrs. Creigh has been department leader for so many years that she herself cannot tell exactly how long she has served.

She was first chosen leader more than 25 years ago, serving for a period of 10 or more years, resigning on account of sickness. She was again elected in 1914 and has held the office since that time. The department will be entertained at tea at the home of Mrs. Creigh Tuesday afternoon, April 12.

"I returned sincerely, for I was anxious to get everything in such shape that I would not need to return to the house if we found what we wished at the east end of the island on our projected trip. And I know what a notable housekeeper Mrs. Durkee is, what efficient aid she could give me."

A Busy Morning. Never was her efficiency more ably demonstrated than it was the next morning after we had speeded on their way the city-bound members of our families. They had decided on walking to the station because of the delightfulness of the spring morning, and little Mrs. Durkee gave a comical sigh of relief as we turned back from the veranda after waving them good-bye.

"I'm always glad to get people off early," she said, as she led the way to the kitchen, where Katie was already at work upon the dishes. "If you've anything you can do by yourself, Madge," my little neighbor observed, "run right along over. Katie and I will do these dishes in a jiffy and come over as soon as we've finished. There isn't a thing to do here today, for I was up by day-break and went over the rooms with the duster and oiled mop. And I'll let the beds air until later in the day."

Mrs. Kinsler Re-elected President of Tuesday Musical Club

Mrs. A. V. Kinsler was re-elected president of the Tuesday Musical club at the annual business meeting Tuesday afternoon at the Fontenelle Hotel. Other officers chosen are Mrs. O. T. Eastman, vice president; Mrs. S. Hoxie Clark, recording secretary; Mrs. H. W. Pierpont, membership secretary; Mrs. A. D. Dunn, treasurer; Mrs. C. M. Wilhelm, auditor, and Mesdames S. S. Caldwell, Lucien Stephens and R. B. Howell, directors.

Mrs. C. W. Axtell will probably be appointed chairman of the program committee.

"I can help make beds, Auntie Durkee," Marion interposed eagerly. "So you shall, my lamb," Mrs. Durkee beamed upon the child. "I'll call on you when I'm ready."

"Wouldn't you like to come with me now, Marion?" I asked. "I need someone to help me over there who can run up and down stairs easily." "Then I'm just the one you're looking for," the child caroled happily, dancing over to me and slipping her hand in mine.

I was glad indeed of Marion's light feet and willing hands in the hours of the busy forenoon that followed. She was so enthusiastic about helping—not only while I was alone, but when Mrs. Durkee and Katie came over—that we finally were compelled to banish her to the lawn for fear of her overdoing.

Aroused From Sleep. A hasty pick-up lunch in Mrs. Durkee's dining room, another hour of "last things," and we stood in the upper hall, with the satisfying consciousness of a task well completed, of a dismantled house, ready for the moving vans.

"There'll be only the beds," Mrs. Durkee said practically. "And Katie and Jim know how to fix those. I'll send the linen to the laundry for you, and you can get it any time. And Katie either can have dishes and cooking things from me for Jim and herself over here, or she can cook over at my house, just as she pleases."

"Eef you please," Katie said timidly. "I like shoot a few things over here. I no vant mooch." "Anything you like, Katie," Mrs. Durkee returned heartily. "And now, Madge, I propose that everyone of us take a nap for an hour or two. I'm going to have steak and baked potatoes, and new asparagus for dinner, and I won't have to see about any of it for three hours yet, so I'm going to have a nap. I'll put Marion to bed over in my house, so you won't have a thing on your mind."

She bustled away, and after a last stroll through the rooms to see that nothing had been overlooked, a last appreciative examination of the dining room decorations which Dicky and Jim had so cleverly restored that one could hardly tell they had been hurt. I went to my room for the nap which I realized I sorely needed.

It seemed to me that I had barely touched the pillow before I was awakened by a long pealing ring of the telephone. But an impatient glance at my wrist watch told me that I had slept two hours, and I wearily dragged myself out of bed and went to the branch telephone in the upper hall.

"Who is this, please?" came a rather colorless feminine voice in answer to my "Yes," with a rising inflection.

"This is Mrs. Richard Graham," I returned, conscious that my voice was distinctly ungracious, but there
