Mr. Gross said in part: Discovers Principle.

No religious teacher of modern times reasoned along the same lines' as did Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, neither has there been anyone who arrived at the same definite conclusions regarding God, man and the universe. These conclusions are clearly set forth in her published works and it is possible for any sincere student to prove for himself the truth and practical value of her truth and availability of her discov- of Missions. ery she taught others how to heal the sick and reform the sinner by means of this practical application of spiritual teachings. This was the beginning of the new era in religious teaching and practice which demonstrates the scientific unity of religion and true medicine.

Human Opinion. "It is the prevailing human opinion hat there can be no connection beween religion and medicine because the former has to do with spirit and spiritual laws, while the latter is al-together material. This is true of medicine as generally understood and practiced, but it should be understood that medicine means a way of healing and has a higher signi fication than that usually attached to it by material systems.

The experience of those who have heen healed in Christian Science proves that truth is the remedy for both sin and disease. When this Christianly scientific method of healing is understood, it will be acknowledged by all that religion and true medicine are from the same source and cannot be separated, either in theory or practice
