Are You the Sleeping Beauty?

By GABBY DETAYLS.

Sluggish, sleepyhead,
 lies abed, lies abed
 In the morning,
 eats her breakfast from a tray,
 Lou's about livelong day,
 House aborning,
 Father disapproves of it;
 Thinks the girl—worthless chit—
 Just a botch.
 Mother weeps to think of how
 Father treats her darling now—
 Cruel father!

—H. P. B.

SUCH is the case in one Omaha home. On numerous occasions the family has almost been threatened with divorce proceedings because the parents disagree on the manner in which to rear the young daughter, a pretty flapper, popular in the younger set. At present Father, Mother and the "spoiled darling" have been traveling in far-away lands and will return home this spring. So that you may know who rules this domain, we tell you the daughter has not yet greeted her father at the usual breakfast hour of the family.

BACHELORS are ever elusive creatures. Flitting hither and yon with never a tie to bind them anywhere. Gabby knows one bachelor who recently married. For three years before his wedding this man ne'er strayed from Omaha except when he visited the girl of his choice in an outstate town or when called away on the most urgent of business matters. Now, however, all is changed; one week he goes east, the next week finds him west. It seems as though he is never home. His friends chuckle a bit gleefully when they hear of his travels. "It was not like that in the olden days," remarked one.

LENT was over and little Bobby was feeling very, very religious. In fact during the penitential season he developed a real liking for going to church. Mother and the three sisters had taken turns at teaching him his prayers and little Bobby was not slow at learning. As well as this he stopped his habit of using those little "naughty" words acquired from his older playmates.

Returned from services one Sunday morning he developed a real liking for going to church. Mother and the three sisters had taken turns at teaching him his prayers and little Bobby was not slow at learning. As well as this he stopped his habit of using those little "naughty" words acquired from his older playmates.

THE wind blew discouragingly around the corners; it whined through trees and chilled the buds and blossoms, not to mention Gabby, who stood near the church door.

A pretty little girl came mimicking up the walk. "How cold she looks. The child's mother must be foolish." Shiny patent leather pumps, thin hose, a brightly-colored silken dress, a summery sport sweater, a straw hat and a huge hair ribbon made up this June-time costume. Again we shivered and frowned disapprovingly. The child passed, head up high, a satisfied smile on her lips, all unconscious of the price tag dangling on the sweater belt.

Gabby smiled, and why shouldn't the youngster be dressed up even though the wind was cold. It was Easter Sunday!

SMALL Robert and smaller Tom, sons of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Epstein, were gazing at a newspaper when their attention was suddenly attracted to a photograph. It was of four little Rockefeller boys and their governess strolling along Fifth avenue in New York.

Spoke up Tom, "Say, wouldn't it be great to have as much money as they have. Gee, we could have an ice cream cone every morning."

Robert pondered this announcement for some time and then drawled, "Aw, I dunno. Just think of wearing a stiff collar all the time and then they have to have that woman tagging 'em everywhere all day long."

"AND really aren't you going away yet?" the caller asked her hostess, a prominent matron who is soon to go on an eastern trip. At the reply, "No," the former's face assumed an air of resignation.

"But I understood you were to leave in about two or three days for the east," protested the said caller.

"Our hostess laughed good naturedly, then explained:

"Every one of our friends who has called to speed us on the way has seemed genuinely disappointed that we are not leaving until next month. Those who have visited us look so discouraged when they realize that they must again come to bid us adieu that I myself wish we were gone. Whenever I see that look on the face of an acquaintance every particle of conceit instantly vanishes."

THE society editor laughed as she hung up the telephone. "I was talking to a woman," she said, who told me she was giving a dancing party Wednesday evening. (We will call her Mrs. Jackson.) "Is Mr. Jackson entertaining with you, Mrs. Jackson," the society editor asked, since it was an evening party and a dancing party at that.

"No he isn't, I ain't got no Mr. Jackson," the lady replied shortly.

H EARD the Sinclair Lewis lecture.

"Yes, I liked this man, but I did so enjoy Drinkerton."

Gabby wonders if she liked "Chestwater" as well.

Springtime Calls Riders

The bridle path is proving most attractive during the early springtime, and every day many of the younger set may be seen enjoying a canter over the beautiful roads in Fairacres.

The Misses Geraldine and Gretchen Hess of Council Bluffs and Miss Daphne Peters, one of Omaha's most accomplished horsewomen, were "snapped" during the past week at the Peters' home just before leaving for an afternoon of riding.

Mrs. Fred Daugherty, an expert equestrienne, is most devoted to this pastime and sport and seldom misses her daily ride.

Miss Gwendolen Wolfe, while in Omaha, spends many of her afternoons on horseback, and during the summer months, which she usually spends in Maine, while away many an hour with her horse, exploring the woodlands of New England.

Numbered among the prominent feminine riders are also Mrs. Charles Burgess, Mrs. Henry Dooley, Mrs. Albert Sibbersen, and Misses Eleanor Burkley, Gertrude Kountze, and Helen Smith.

Mrs. MacDowell Will Visit Here

One of the interesting events in musical circles is the coming of Mrs. Edward MacDowell from Peterborough, N. H., to spend several days in our city. Mrs. MacDowell will arrive late in the week and will remain here until after next Sunday.

On Sunday afternoon, April 24, at 3 o'clock the home of Mrs. E. W. Nash will be opened to members of the MacDowell club of Omaha, when this visitor will make a short talk. The subject of her discourse will be the work of the MacDowell colony founded by the late Edward MacDowell, well known composer. She plans to tell the uses to which the Omaha girls have been put.

The Omaha club at Easteride sent the colony $325 and it is hoped that one of the rooms may be devoted to the use of Omahans in the near future.

The colony is located at Peterborough and is for the use of musicians, sculptors, painters, writers and those famous in the world of creative art. Artists may come and spend from three weeks to an entire summer at the colony, depending upon the room available. Each has his own studio, where he may work undisturbed while the lamp of genius burns.

Prominent in the work of the organization are Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Borglum, Mrs. J. J. Harnighan, Mrs. F. H. Cole, Mrs. L. F. Crofoot, Miss Mary Leda Proulx, Miss Adeline Wood and Miss Gertrude Ernst.

Junior Humane Exhibits Pet Animals

The first Junior Humane society was organized over a year ago by Walter Armbrust, son of William Armbrust. Walter, 11, is a pupil in the Vinton school.

When an old horse owned by the Armbrusts reached the stage where he was no longer able to work, Walter saw the need of giving helpless animals protection and care. He immediately joined the Humane society and then organized a Junior club with six members. For the past year the boys have been holding bi-weekly meetings, sponsored by Hazel Armbrust.

Recently the club gave an animal show, with pet dogs, cats, rabbits, chickens, canaries, ducks and a coyote taking part. The ducks were the most remarkable entrants in this show, having been hatched under the friendly warmth of "the little brown jug." Walter had a hen which he had prevailed upon to hatch some duck eggs, but the hen died before the job was finished. Walter filled a jug with hot water, put sand all around it and placed the eggs in the warm sand. And, lo! before many days eight lovely ducklings were the result. These ducks, entered in the show when full grown, created much interest on account of their history.

Selected Players for League Revue

The most important event in the annals of society for the month of May, with the exception of the opening of the country clubs, is the Junior League Revue, which will be staged on May 7 at the Gayety theater. Rehearsals have already begun for this under the direction of Harry Munsey and members of the cast are working daily and hourly toward the perfection desired.

Mrs. George Redick was in charge of the selection of the cast for the Revue and, with her assistants, has chosen Omaha's most beautiful and talented girls for the evening roles.

Mrs. Louis Clarke, who managed the Junior league "Frolic" last season with so much skill, is again directing the destinies of the league in the coming performances. Assisting her is Mrs. Barton Millard, who will receive reservations for the supper-dance at the Athletic club which follows the evening show. Mrs. Walter B. Roberts will head the ticket committee and Mrs. Ralph Peters is program chairman. The publicity for the Revue is being handled by Mrs. Paul Gallagher. Mrs. W. Hosford is to take reservations for box parties.

The proceeds will be devoted to the support of a baby welfare nurse during next year, who will work under the direction of the Visiting Nurse association.

The last year the league members have done charitable work for many organizations and have aided either with money or their personal services the following: Red Cross, American Legion, Associated Charities, Child Saving institute, The Creche, European Relief Council, Girls' Community house, Nurses' home of University hospital, Children's ward of University hospital, Social Settlement, Welfare board, Society for Relief of the Disabled, Salvation Army, Serbian Relief, Salvation Army Rescue home, Visiting Nurse association and Chinese Relief.

Concerning Capital's Society

Bureau of the Bee, Washington, April 16.

Washington's spring season had a re-awakening this week, after a little recess, due largely to the recess of congress, the absence of Mrs. Hughes, wife of the secretary of state, and of several other cabinet hostesses.

Mrs. Hughes has returned and she and the secretary are already in their Eighteenth street home, where they entertained at dinner last evening in honor of the former premier of France, M. Rene Viviani.

Almost every civilized nation has been represented at the various charity balls which have made this season in Washington unprecedented. This week it is the Russian, being Russian Relief week. The ball which inaugurated the campaign for the relief of suffering Russia, given in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Breckinridge Long on Tuesday evening, was quite the most beautiful, most exclusive and most brilliant in every way of any yet given.

The house, which was built by the late Mrs. Franklin MacVeagh as a gift to her husband, who was then secretary of the treasury, is wonderfully adapted for such entertainment and is a marvel of beauty and historic interest. Mrs. Robert Lansing, wife of the former secretary of state; Princess Cantacuzene, formerly Miss Julia Grant, a granddaughter of the late President U. S. Grant, and who was one of the few babies born in the White House, and Mrs. Borden Harriman received the guests at the head of the main staircase.

Tuesday was a red letter day in official society for everybody who will be anybody in the new administration had tickets of admission to the galleries of the house of representatives to hear the president read his message to congress.

When the important hour came, the arrival of the president was heralded by the appearance of Mrs. Harding accompanied by Mrs. Edward Beale McLean. She was instantly recognized as she stepped into the executive gallery, and a loud burst of applause caused her to stop and acknowledge it. She and her little party occupied the front seat of this small gallery. The president's sister, Mrs. Votaw, had already arrived and had a front seat opposite Mrs. Harding in the same gallery. Mrs. Coolidge entered shortly afterwards. She was alone and sat with Mrs. Votaw. Miss Laura Harlan, secretary to Mrs. Harding, who was in Mrs. Harding's party, entered and sat with Mr. Jess Smith of Washington Courthouse, who is here for the greater part of his time. He has established a bachelor apartment in Washington.

Mrs. Harding looked particularly well in a suit of pale gray cloth, well tailored, with a modish short skirt, not extreme in width, and a high length coat. She had, as she usually does, some soft white effect about the neck, her customary band of black velvet about her throat with a diamond ornament, and a large gray hat with gray gourra feathers, all of which was most becoming to her.

Mrs. Coolidge wore a plainly tailored coat suit of navy blue with cream shirt waist, and a small dark blue hat with dark blue ribbon tied in a large smart bow at one side. Mrs. Votaw was in a gown of several shades of blue, in soft silk with a small turban of several shades of blue and a huge bunch of pink sweet peas.

Mrs. McLean was beautifully dressed in taupe colored crepe de chine, over which she had a wrap of gray chiffon cloth trimmed with black beads and chinchilla fur, a big loose affair made on the smartest lines. Her hat was a large black one with a jaunty spray of white lilacs crossed fashion in front. Miss Harlan was very attractive in brown with large brown hat.

There is strong evidence this week of the coming of the "Daughters" next week. The congress of D. A. R. will open on Monday, and the advance guard of daughters are here being entertained and getting themselves placed.

Other visitors of much interest are Mrs. James Robert McKee of New York, and Mrs. Russell R. Harrison, and her mother, Mrs. Alvin Saunders of Omaha. Mrs. McKee and Mrs. Harrison divided the duties of mistress of the White House during the last year of the administration of the former's father, the late President Benjamin Harrison.

Mrs. McKee is the guest of Mrs. Stephen S. Elkins, widow of the senator from West Virginia, who was secretary of war in the Harrison cabinet, and Mrs. Harrison and her mother are visiting friends. Mrs. Harrison's daughter, Mrs. Harry A. Williams, jr., of Norfolk, Va., had also been here for 10 days visiting among friends and attending the many balls and other social functions.

Mrs. Williams was the guest of honor at dinner on Monday night of Miss Brooks and Miss Kearney, who had a company of 76 to meet her, at Rausche the company going on to the ball for the Episcopal Home for Children. Saturday night they all went to the ball at Barracks and then to the supper dance at Wardman Park Inn. Every other day she has been entertained at dinner, luncheon and at dancing by various friends.

Senator and Mrs. Hitchcock and Miss Ruth Hitchcock have returned from a trip to Reno, Nev. Colgate Wood
