laid from starting, but hopes to get away early next month. It is believed the trip to Panama by water will greatly improve her health and complete her recovery.

William Jennings Bryan was in Washington this week and brought bad news of Mrs. Bryan. She has been in very bad health for many months and is now unable to travel and get away from their winter home in Miami, Fla. The family are much alarmed about her and do not feel in very cheerful spirits about her condition.

Mrs. Guernsey, former president general of the D. A. R., is with her sister, Mrs. Aull, formerly of Omaha, where she has been for some time. Mrs. Aull keeps an apartment here and spends most of her time in Washington. Mrs. Guernsey was last week elected president of the D. A. R. Officers' club, formed of officers and ex-officers of the organization.

Beware the Heavy Curtains and Drapes

In selecting curtains or overdrapes for your room, beware of those that exclude the daylight. It is far better to have no curtains at all, than to achieve a heavy, stuffy effect by the use of opaque cretonnes, which even when used as overdrapes too often exclude light.

The room located on a court will suffer also from lack of air if swathed heavily in curtains. When illness is reported in a certain girl's college in New York, the dean of women first inquires, "Is her room on a court?" In many cases an anemic, run-down condition among students is thus traced to its source. If you must occupy an inside room, pass as much time as possible out of doors, and make your habitat as airy and cheerful as possible.

Silk mull, which may be had at about 45 cents a yard, comes in beautiful colors—deep, yellow, bright blue, and rose and makes sheer, net cheerful curtains. Used as drapes over fine net, the effect is highly decorative and yet exquisitely dainty, without sacrificing color, which is cretonne's chief claim to popularity.
