Bureau of The Bee, Washington, April 29.

Two other annual conventions of women's organizations have ended their sessions in Washington since the close of the 30th congress of the D. A. R. last week, which was a very important one to the D. A. R. These last two were the Daughters of 1812, who always follow on the heels of the D. A. R., and the Parent-Teachers' association. Delegates to both these conventions were received by President and Mrs. Harding in the White House on different afternoons, and what will be the visit of the distinguished foreigners and other duties in between, the chief executive and the first lady of the land have lived a strenuous life the last 10 days. In fact, it has been a strenuous one ever since March 3 for them, and they have discharged their obligations to their country well and conscientiously. No president and wife have ever been more hospitable to individuals or organizations than they have. The wonder is that their strength holds out.

They left Wednesday on their first cruise on the Mayflower, going to Hampton Roads to view the Atlantic fleet, returning here yesterday. Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby went down on board the Spith and both had interesting parties with them. Mrs. Denby has not yet arrived in Washington. The trip on the Mayflower are bright spots in an otherwise strained existence of a president and in the past several administrations have been worth while features of the spring, summer and autumn. Mrs. Roosevelt rarely went aboard, as she was not a good sailor. The second Mrs. Wilson thoroughly enjoyed the cruises with her husband and they rarely took any guests but immediate members of the family, and at that there were never but one or two of these.

The prince of Monaco, that dazzling island of wealth, which Monte Carlo has made famous, quite stirred things up in Washington this week during his visit here. He spent the week at the Hotel Washington, where he entertained a number of parties at luncheons and dinners. Returning obligations and incidentally making a few "W" when he arrived he had a heavy mail filled with invitations. The French ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, the Secretary of State and Mrs. Hughes, Professor and Mrs. Alexander Graham Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor and others of scientific as well as diplomatic circles, entertained in his honor. The ceremony of the presentation of the Agassiz gold medal for his contributions to the science of oceanography to the prince and a similar one to Rear Admiral Sigsbee, took place on Tuesday evening, by the National Academy of Sciences, at its annual banquet. The prince is a princely figure, but not a youthful one. He has made a fine impression and is a really brilliant person.

And still another set of merry festivities during the past fortnight have been those for Mrs. James Robert McKee, daughter of President Benjamin Harrison, who has been the guest of Mrs. Elkins, mother of the senator from West Virginia.

The D. A. R. accomplished several things of importance during their congress of last week. Chief among them was the purchase of the site of the battle of Yorktown and the surrender of Cornwallis, which will preserve it to future generations. They also raised their initiation fee from $1, which has always been considered too small, to $5. This does not affect the annual dues of the chapter dues. The daughters will begin the work upon their new building to the west of their beautiful memorial hall at once, as it is much needed to house their business offices.

The D. A. R. of the state of Nebraska, at their state meeting last March unanimously agreed to furnish one room in the new building, that one to be occupied by the reporter general of the Smithsonian Institute. This will be done in honor of the retiring vice president general from Nebraska, Mrs. Aull, who is a sister of Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey, former president general of the D. A. R. Mrs. Aull has spent much of her time for the past several years in Washington where she and Mrs. Guernsey maintained an apartment. Since Mrs. Guernsey's retirement from the office they have given up the apartment and yesterday left for their homes, Mrs. Aull in Omaha, and Mrs. Guernsey in Independence, Kan. The office of the reporter general of the Smithsonian Institute is necessary one because the D. A. R. are required to make an annual report to the institution. The reporter general is Miss Lillian M. Wilson, who is a member of the Lincoln, Neb., chapter D. A. R. She has been in Rome, Italy for many months doing some research work, but is expected to return here some time this spring. Mrs. S. I. Ringer of Lincoln, state regent of Nebraska, was here last week at the head of the Nebraska delegation which was a much larger one than usual, consisting of eleven. Mrs. Ringer was succeeded as state regent, by Mrs. C. S. Spencer of North Platte, at the recent election of state officers.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Wright of Omaha arrived in Washington the middle of the week and made a short visit at the Hotel Washington. Representative and Mrs. A. W. Jeffries of Omaha have as their guest the former's sister, Mrs. Mary R. Swayne of Downingtown, Pa., who came to attend the convention of the Parent-Teachers' association. She will return home in another day or two.

Representative and Mrs. Robert E. Evans of Dakota City, Neb., also had guests from Pennsylvania, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. MacCartney of Wilkes-Barre, Pa. MacCartney is a sister of Mrs. Evans and they had a delightful visit sight seeing and being entertained informally. They returned to their home the middle of the week. Judge and Mrs. Evans also had as their guests for a few days this week, Dr. and Mrs. D. C. Winship, who spent the winter in New York and were en route to their home in Nebraska.

Miss Elizabeth Thompson of Atlin and Miss Ruth Anderson of West Point were in Washington early in the week and on Monday were shown over the classic building of the Lincoln Memorial by Representative Evans and several other friends living here.

To Present Pageant

Lucy Giddings

Mary Jewell

Miss Lucy Jane Giddings, director of the Y. W. C. A. department of physical education will have charge of the pageant, "Festival of Play," to be presented by the gymnasium classes Tuesday evening 8 o'clock at the City Auditorium.

Miss Mary Jewell, assistant to Miss Giddings will appear in the pageant as the "Spirit of Fellowship," attending the queen, "America," Mrs. DeWitt Babbit.

Mrs. D. J. Adams will take the part of the "Chief Trumpeter," and the Girls of Other Lands are: "China," Miss Bea Swanson; "India," Miss Svea Johnson; "South America," Miss Dorothy Gray;

"Africa," Miss Leta Hines; "Mohammedan Lands," Miss May Leach. The program will include a Swedish club dance, Highland fling, Japanese dance, Norwegian mountain march, Zouave drill, Indian club drill and the following American games: "Hark, Hark the Lark," "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star," "Yankee Doodle" and a Virginia reel. More than 400 women and children will appear in the pageant which was written by Miss Florence Durkee, director of religious education for the Y. W. C. A.

Failing to dispose of her stories in the United States, Miss Jane Burr went to England, where she has been acclaimed one of the most successful women novelists that ever came to that country.

Care of Wrinkle in Time Saves Nine

The woman whose mirror calls her attention to a wrinkle here and a gray hair there is near enough to dismay without having somebody call her attention to that platitude about a woman being as old as she looks and a man as young as he feels. But even if she takes the train seriously she need not be discouraged, for there is much she can do to make herself look younger, and feel younger, too. Wrinkles take refuge in a tired, inactive skin. They can therefore be kept at bay only by the persistent practice of habits that have an invigorating effect on the skin. An active circulation is one of the first requisites, and its attainment depends largely upon proper exercise.

Exercise should begin as soon as she wakes up in the morning and should bring into action the pores of her skin and the muscles of her body, including those used in deep breathing. Fifteen minutes of brisk exercises selected to suit her specific needs in keeping active the muscles of her face, neck, arms, legs, back and abdomen will give all the muscles something to do. And when followed immediately by a quick cold splunge or sponge bath, as her heart action must determine, her skin will be tingling with life and glowing with color. In addition, at least one hour of her day should be given to outdoor exercise, than which few forms are better than walking, though golf and tennis and gardening also are excellent.

As for gray hairs, they need not intimidate any woman so long as she keeps her locks glossy and daintily groomed. The fame of the hair brush as an effective weapon for punishing small boys may be well deserved, but few women give their hair brushes the recognition they deserve as the most effective means of preserving the beauty of the hair.

Ten minutes, or even five, of steady brushing night and morning every day in the year will keep the hair in good condition, provided, of course, that the brushes and the hair are kept free from an accumulation of dust and oil. The brushing will be more effective when preceded by a few moments of scalp massage.

The processes employed to keep the skin and hair at their best will lead to good results in the direction of a normal appetite and sleeping habits. Good habits of breathing and bathing and exercising will react beneficially upon the mental attitude and the woman who persistently practices them will find herself looking and feeling younger than when she followed only a haphazard plan of caring for her body. We marvel at the skill of acrobats, yet it is merely the result of intelligent and regular training. Diligence in daily exercise and in a cheerful mental outlook will train in the direction of making "a woman as young as she likes," to paraphrase the platitude.

Household Hints

Rub salt on the knife blade that has been used to peel onions. Both odor and stain will disappear.

Between slice of toast put cream cheese, crisp lettuce, apple jelly and chopped nuts.

Brown sugar that has become hard can be put into the refrigerator and it will soon be soft.

If nuts are soaked in hot water before cracking, nut meat will come out more whole.
