

Husband Held On Suspicion of Wrecking Home

Family of Man Seeking Divorce Suffering From Nervous Shock Following Mysterious Explosion.

On suspicion that he knows something of the mysterious explosion which wrecked the rear half of Mrs. Blanche Davis' home at 3812 North Eighteenth street, Sunday night, police are holding her husband, Ed, who is seeking a divorce from her. Davis denies any connection with the bomb placing. He suspects a "certain enemy," he told police officers.

His landlady, Mrs. Christina Elston, 2883 Capitol avenue, supports his alibi that he was at home when the outrage was perpetrated.

Mrs. Davis and her three sons do not believe him capable of the act.

The Davis couple made a property settlement when they separated June 20, 1920, by which Mrs. Davis acquired the home at 1626 Locust, in which they then lived and some diamonds. The divorce action was dismissed April 1, 1921, but a new suit was filed the next day.

All of the Davis family who were home at the time of the explosion were suffering from nervous shock yesterday.

Window panes of many houses in the neighborhood were shattered, wooden splinters were driven like nails into nearby houses and a large board was lodged in a window across the street.

The explosion was heard all over North Omaha.

Allies Give Germany Until May 12 to Pay

After an hour's consideration, the council adjourned until 5 p. m.
The interval of a few days provided for in the ultimatum to Germany will not be for the purpose of negotiation, it was stated, but to give the German government time to reflect, negotiations being considered at an end.

Since Germany made her latest "peace gesture" through Washington, it was considered possible the allies would choose the United States as their intermediary in sending any ultimatum to Germany.

M. Jusserand, the French ambassador in Washington, has cabled her the outline of a conversation he has had with Secretary of State Hughes. The American government, the ambassador reported, desires to take no attitude on the reparations question that would irritate the allied governments. Secretary Hughes said that the State department has no further communication to make to Germany. The message added.

Secretary Hughes indicated a preference that Germany should settle without the occupation of the Ruhr valley, as such occupation suggested a kind of war, M. Jusserand's cable said.

The conversation, the ambassador stated, was entirely informal and sympathetic.

British Gain Ends

London, May 2.—The British delegates yesterday, at the meeting of the Allied Supreme council, secured French agreement to their plea for delay of the occupation of the Ruhr valley to compel Germany to carry out the reparations clauses of the Versailles treaty and also adoption of the British policy of issuing an ultimatum with a time limit which would allow Germany to decide upon the course she will follow.

French Note Made Public

Paris, May 2.—(By The Associated Press.)—The reparations commission made public its note to Germany which burdens commission on reparations. The communication informs the German commission of the intention of the reparations commission to establish the amount of damage for which Germany is under the treaty of Versailles.

Meanwhile the reparations commission notified the German government that 12,000,000,000 marks in gold are due today.

Germans Still Hopeful

Berlin, May 2.—(By The Associated Press.)—The German government does not propose to get into touch with the London conference while awaiting President Harding's answer to the German proposal.

This declaration was made by a member of the government who, in discussing the rumor that suggestion was coming from the entente that Germany present fresh counter-proposals direct to the supreme council at London, said:

"So long as the door to Washington is open for us, we do not propose to knock at other doors."

House Damaged by Bomb Blast

Newberry Set Free By Supreme Court

to the federal constitution to empower congress to regulate expenditures in congressional and presidential primaries. He said he had indicated that a new law, exactly similar to that of the supreme court's decision would only hasten this step.

Some senators, however, took the view that while the supreme court's decision knocked out the present law, so far as it related to primaries, the statement of Justice McKenna indicated that a new law, exactly similar to the one just nullified, would be upheld. An effort towards action along these lines may be attempted after more thorough study of the options.

May Resume Seat

Senator Newberry was at his home in Detroit when the decision was handed down. Following his conviction on March 20, 1920, the senator withdrew temporarily from the senate announcing that he would not participate in its proceedings until he was set free by the supreme court. It is expected that he will now resume his seat in the senate.

The supreme court decision does not finally settle the question of Mr. Newberry's right to his seat in the senate. The senate privileges and elections committee still has before it the charges filed by attorneys for Henry Ford, Detroit automobile manufacturer, charging unlawful expenditure and corruption in the election following the primary. Senator Spencer of Missouri, chairman of the subcommittee which has been investigating the Newberry case, said:

Will Continue Probe

"Our work is entirely unaffected by the court's decision and before it was announced we had made our plans to continue our hearing. We will take it up in the near future and will give both sides an opportunity to present any additional evidence they desire. The committee will not allow the evidence at Grand Rapids to be resubmitted, but will confine itself to the new evidence that it may be desired to present both as to the primary and the election."

"We have two functions; one, to determine whether Newberry was elected; two, as to whether, in that election there was anything that would disqualify him from serving as a senator in the senate of the United States."

Senator Spencer said he thought the investigation would be renewed in two weeks, and that it will be disposed of very quickly.

"The ultimate question for solution here," said Justice Reynolds reading the majority opinion, "is whether under the grant of power to regulate the manner of holding election congress may fix the maximum sum which a candidate therein may spend or advise a cause to be contributed and spent by others to procure his nomination."

No Support for Argument.
"We find no support in reason or authority for the argument that because the offices were created by the constitution congress has some indefinite power to regulate elections for senators and representatives derived from section four."

Justice Pitney, speaking also for Justice Brandeis and Clarke, said:

"I concur in the judgment reversing the conviction of plaintiff in error, but upon grounds fundamentally different from those adopted by the majority. My view being that there is no constitutional infirmity in the act of congress that underlies the indictment, but that there was an error in the submission of the case to the jury that calls for a new trial."

Chief Justice White said:

"Although I am unable to concur in the conclusion of the want of power of congress and in the judgment of reversal as rendered, I am nevertheless of the opinion that there should be a judgment of reversal without prejudice to a new trial because of the grave misapprehension and grievous misapplication of the Natchez, Miss., May 2.—J. T. Kerr, planter, of Concordia Parish, La., and member of the Fifth district levee board, has a pair of trained wild geese. He says they are equal in intelligence to the famous hunting dog of Col. Tucker Gibson of Natchez and Tensas Parish.

Mr. Kerr has just finished teaching the geese to fish. He declares they knew how to swim and dive, so it was only necessary to teach them to catch the fish and bring them to the boat which he rows alongside.

Speaking of the geese, Mr. Kerr said his greatest trouble was teaching them to select only perch, bass or trout. He says they learned that as he is ready to demonstrate at Lake St. John, in Concordia Parish, at any time.

The chief justice, referring to the majority contention that congress was without authority to regulate primaries, declared "the proposition is a suicidal one" and predicted new legislation that would set aside today's decision.

Elimination of Objectionable Tax Impossible

Latest Estimates of Revenues And Expenditures Makes Reduction in 1922 Unwise.

Chicago Tribune—Omaha Bee Licensed Wire.
Washington, May 2.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's latest estimates of probable revenues and expenditures during the next fiscal year caused congressional leaders who have talked of eliminating objectionable taxes without providing substitutes to admit today there is no longer any chance to carry out such a program.

The secretary's recommendations relative to revision of tax laws were anticipated and followed largely the policies approved by the Treasury department under the former administration. The unexpected features of his letter to Representative Fordney, chairman of the house ways and means committee, and Senator Penrose, chairman of the senate finance committee, was the revision of estimates which resulted in wiping out the surplus from current revenues which it was proposed to apply toward the reduction of the floating debt.

Having eliminated this expected surplus which, exclusive of public debt expenditures, had been estimated in former Secretary of the Treasury Houston's annual report to amount during the fiscal year 1922 to $962,110,773, the bottom has dropped out of the proposal to reduce taxes to the extent of the portion of this amount which would be applied on the floating debt.

Secretary Mellon makes provision for sinking fund payments and other miscellaneous debt redemption funds, totaling $551,354,865 and winds up with a prospective deficit of $18,234,033 in the fiscal year 1922.

Representative Fordney called the attention of the house today to Secretary Mellon's estimates and obtained permission to have 5,000 extra copies of the Mellon letter printed in order that it may be widely distributed.

Omaha Woman's 101st Birthday Saddened by Death of Grandchild

On the eve of her great-grandmother's 101st birthday, little Kate Walker, 16-months-old South Side baby, died Sunday night. Her great-grandmother is Mrs. Pat Convey, 5207 South Fiftieth street.

"Grandma" Convey was sad yesterday because no one brought her any birthday gifts.

She is as strong and active as a woman of 50, but says she has no rules for longevity.

"I was never sick a day in my life," she said.

Of nine children, only three are living. One is the 65-year-old son with whose family she makes her home.

Rustle of Salary Checks Alluring To Society Elite

Many New York Social Leaders Desert Tea Tables for Careers in Business World.

New York, May 2.—No longer does society level its spiritual longnettes at its feminine members who punch time clocks rather than play with tea cakes.

American ladies de luxe know that the clashing of the social cymbals is not as sweet music as the rustling of the salary check. They, as well as their sturdier sisters, have sampled of the exhilarating brew of freedom and have found it more potent than the strongest of strong wines.

The latest of Dives' daughters to show her economic freedom is Mrs. Lydig Hoyt, who has signed a contract to appear in motion pictures.

But Mrs. Hoyt is no pioneer from the social ranks in the world of work. The trail has been blazed before her by not a few of her own set.
