Host of 400 Uni Students to See Wonders of City

College Folks to Be Guests of Omaha Merchants Friday; Roof Garden Dance.

Four hundred students from the University of Nebraska will visit Omaha today as the guests of various business firms and will be conducted on tours of the places of interest in Omaha during the day.

From 9:15 to 1:30 p. m. the students will be taken on various tours of the city and will be entertained at luncheon by various firms.

At 2:30 they will meet at the Chamber of Commerce, where they will listen to an address by John Gamble of the First National bank, who will describe the activities of the Chamber of Commerce and the salient points in business administration.

CHAPTER XX A Free Ride.

Inside the jug, where he had hidden to escape Henry Hawk, Grumpy Weasel yawned widely and licked his chops. He was having a dull time, waiting until he was sure that Henry Hawk had given up the chase and gone away.

In a little while Grumpy believed he could venture out in safety. But suddenly, to his great disgust, a wagon came clattering in from the road and pulled up right beside the pile of empty barrels near him.

It was Farmer Brown, driving his old horse Ebenezer. And of course Grumpy Weasel didn't care to show himself just then, especially with old dog Spot nosing around. He had already heard Spot give several sharp yelps.

"That old dog knows I'm here somewhere but he can't tell exactly where," Grumpy said to himself. "He can yelp his head off, for all I care."

And then Spot began to whine, and run in and out among the barrels, until he all but tripped Farmer Green, who was loading the barrels into the wagon.

"Let him whine," said Grumpy Weasel softly. "His yelping and whining don't scare me. He can't get into this jug of mine. And I certainly shall leave it so long as he stays here."

Meanwhile he could hear Farmer Green talking to old Spot, telling him not to be silly.

"From the way you're acting anybody might think there was a bear around here," he told Spot.

Old dog Spot explained to Farmer Green in no uncertain fashion that it was no bear—but a weasel—that he was looking for. His nose told him that. And there was no mistake about it. But somehow Farmer Green couldn't understand a word he said. So after putting the last barrel on the load Farmer Green climbed up himself and started to drive off.

But old dog Spot wouldn't budge an inch. He hovered about the jug where Grumpy Weasel was hiding and made such a fuss that Farmer Green looked back at him.

"Well, well!" he exclaimed. And he stopped the horse Ebenezer and jumped down and walked back again.

"I declare I'd have forgotten to take this jug if you hadn't reminded me of it," he told Spot. And thereupon he picked up the jug and set it in the back of the wagon.

This time Spot followed. This time he was in the wagon before Farmer Green was. And all the way down the road, until they reached the farmyard, he acted (or so Farmer Green told him) like a simpleton.

The whole affair made Grumpy Weasel terribly angry. He thought it was an outrage for Farmer Green to kidnap him like that. And he was so enraged that he would have taken a bite out of anything handy. But there wasn't a thing in the jug except himself.

At last the strange party drew up in front of the barn and stopped. Farmer Green led Ebenezer into his stall. And then he took the jug, with Grumpy Weasel still inside it, and in spite of Spot's protests set it high up on a shelf in the barn.

It was easy for Grumpy, after that, to crawl out of the jug. He scurried along the shelf, climbed up the wall, and glided through a crack in the ceiling, to hide himself in the haymow above.

"Old Spot didn't get me this time!" he said gleefully. "Not by a jugful, he didn't!"

More Truth Than Poetry By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

THERE ARE PEOPLE AND PEOPLE There was a certain manager Whose shows were mostly girls, And girls who wore but little more Than brown and golden curls. He brought the show to old New York. And, simple truth to tell, Though critics panned it out of hand It really did quite well.

There was another manager Who chuckled when he got A play that had a very bad Or wholly vicious plot. He brought the show to old New York. And though folks more or less Were scandalized, as he surmised, It made a big success.

Another manager put on A play of simple life, The sort of show to which you'd go And take your kids and wife. And now there're crowds around the door Who clamor and entreat, And think they've struck a run of luck If they can get a seat.

ANY RATE THEY MAKE THEMSELVES The railroads are willing to accept business at any rate. PRACTICALLY NOTHING Hotel prices in the big cities have dropped so far that the average clerk can buy a dinner for himself and wife for less than two weeks' wages. OBSOLETE Since the booze raiders went to work the expression, "You can search me!" has disappeared from our language.

Jewel, Flower, Color Symbols for Today

By MILDRED MARSHALL The talismanic gem for today is the agate. Cardona, who was a great authority on the meaning of precious stones, claimed that the agate was sure to bring its wearer pleasant dreams, and deep, calm sleep. It is also said to be a protection against accidents and contagious diseases.

Where It Started

"Up to the Scratch." This expression originated in the old bare-knuckle days of boxing. As there was no ring, but merely a roped-off arena on the turf, a scratch was made in the ground dividing the space into two equal parts, and the fighters "came up to the scratch" to meet each other.

WHY

Are Windows Broken by Explosions? Those who were in the vicinity of the Long Tom explosion in July, 1916, or the explosion of the bomb in Wall Street last year, will recall clearly that the roar which announced the detonation of the explosives was followed almost instantly by a shattering of glass for a considerable distance.

The reason for this lies in the fact that the force of the explosion sets the air in the immediate vicinity in violent motion, with the effect of a high wind, which, instead of moving in one direction, sweeps out in a constantly widening circle. These air waves move forward with great force, and, coming in contact with a broad expanse of brittle glass, shatter it just as waves would shatter a flimsy breakwater.
