

Eberstein Hands In Resignation As Police Chief

Promises to Support New Order; Dunn Preparing List of Promotions and Demotions.

Chief of Police Marshall Eberstein presented his resignation yesterday afternoon to James C. Dahlin and the "commissioners-elect."

Election of the "United Seven" and the decisive defeat of Police Commissioner Ringer made it certain that Eberstein would not be retained.

He was appointed chief of police by Ringer two and a half years ago. Prior to that he was head of the federal bureau of investigation here, a branch of the department of justice of the federal government. He had been in that work more than 20 years.

Eberstein has been the center of much criticism by some of the commissioners during his incumbency in the position.

Assures Support.
His resignation, which he sent yesterday to James C. Dahlin follows: "Hon. James C. Dahlin and Commissioners-Elect—Gentlemen: I herewith tender my resignation as chief of police, effective when my successor is appointed. Wishing you a successful administration and assuring you of my most hearty support as a citizen, I am,

"MARSHALL EBERSTEIN,"
"Chief of Police."

Police Judge Henry Dunn, who is slated to take the chair of police commissioner when the seven successful candidates for city commissioner take office, is spending his evenings and spare time working on a list of promotions and demotions for the police department.

Will Keep Briggs.
Some men, he said, are now higher than they deserve to be and some are lower.

"And some are square pegs in round holes," added the police judge. Judge Dunn mailed rumor No. 1 that Police Captain John Briggs would be demoted.

"He's a good man for the job and he's going to stay where he is," said the judge.

"And so will Andy Pattullo remain at his post," added Judge Dunn.

Three of the fair sex now employed at Central police station will be replaced by three of the sterner sex, it was stated. Mrs. Ella Gibbons, matron, will be retained.

Bandits Rob Man to Make Up for Lost Election Bets.
Two highwaymen who lost bets on the municipal election by playing their money on "committee of 5,000" candidates, held up Max Bernstein, 604 South Seventeenth street, late Wednesday night at the point of guns and robbed him of $200 worth of personal effects, including a diamond ring, a Shrine ring and a watch.

The holdup occurred in front of Bernstein's home.

"Sorry to do this, pal," one of the robbers said, "but we lost all our money on the election by betting on the '5,000 crowd.'"

Election Costs Losers Twice as Much as Winners

Committee of 5,000 Spent Between $9,000 and $10,000; Expense to City Expected To Be $15,000.

The municipal election cost the losing side twice as much as was spent by the united seven slate, according to a survey of expenses.

"The committee of 5,000 spent between $9,000 and $10,000," said Dr. Harold Gifford, treasurer.

The united seven, all of whom were elected, spent only half the "5,000" expense, according to James H. Haulley, chairman of the winning campaign.

"We have a small deficit, but will make it up shortly," said Mr. Haulley.

Expense of the election to the city is expected to be $15,000, Election

Commissioner Harley Moorhead

said. An estimate of $20,000 is said to have been spent by citizens in addition to that spent by the two slate organizations.

The "committee of 5,000" faces a deficit of nearly $6,000, according to F. D. Wead, chairman of that organization.

Members of the organization will make up the loss, it was stated.

Police Commissioner Ringer, one of the losing candidates, declared he spent about $485.

The winning commissioners, Zimman and Butler, spent less than the losers, according to their statements.
