Mrs. C. E. Hulsebus and Mrs. Gaylord Swift came up from Harlan, Ia., to attend the luncheon given Wednesday by Mesdames Howard Butler and Blaine Wilcox.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Green leave Sunday morning, May 15, for Montreal, Canada, from where they sail on the following Saturday for three months' travel in Europe.

Activities of Women. Cockleleckie soup, which originated in Scotland, is made of cocks or other fowls and leeks, taking its name from the two chief ingredients.

Tan stockings, khaki suits and linen-colored clothes should have a little brown dye added to the last rinsing water.

Junket makes milk easy to digest because it coagulates the casein, which is one of the processes that occur in digestion.

Cloves are the dried flower buds of a large evergreen tree cultivated in the West Indies, Brazil and other tropical countries.

Mrs. Francis P. Keyes, wife of United States Senator Keyes, has been conferred the degree of Bachelor of Letters by George Washington university.

To fry out suet cut it in small pieces, place in the top of a double boiler, and let cook until fat is free from fibre—strain through a cheese cloth and keep for frying.

To saute food is to cook it in a frying pan with a small amount of fat. Up-to-date cooks use the word fry to apply only to the process of cooking food in deep fat.

Pan broiling is the process of cooking in hot frying pans without any fat. It is the best method for cooking beef steak and lamb chops when they cannot be broiled.

Summer Traveler Abroad

Many Council Bluffs people are planning summer trips, but Miss Leontine Louie is one of the few in the younger set who will be the recipient of "steamer letters" to persevere while crossing the Atlantic.

She leaves here with her mother the last of the week, and enroute to Montreal, from where they sail on the Megantic, will spend a few days with former school friends at Ferry hall.

After about three months of travel through some of the most interesting parts of Europe, Mrs. Louie and her daughter will reside with a French family in Paris for a year, in order to further their study of the language. Miss Louie will also devote a great deal of time to music.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Green are the only other Council Bluffs people who will be passengers on this boat, which sails May 21. They expect to be absent from the city until about the first of September.

Sculptress Is Known to Omahans

By PATRICIA BENDER. Artists are born and not made. That is the general verdict, but a few there are who prove otherwise. Some of them just "happen." Such was the case of Mrs. Sally James Farnham, sculptress of the widely acclaimed Bolivar statue presented to the United States by the government of Venezuela.

When convalescing from a serious illness a number of years ago Mrs. Farnham accidentally discovered her latent talent. Idle hands longed for a pastime and the invalid began to fashion small figures from clay. Friends were surprised at her exceptional ability, for until that time Mrs. Farnham had never, even in her most fanciful dreams, imagined an artistic career.

And then, you say, she immediately commenced to study modeling under an excellent instructor. You are right. Experience became her teacher and, unaided, Mrs. Farnham slowly unfolded the priceless gift bestowed upon her. She spent no time in art schools, learning dry rules and theories, but began to accomplish the desired results in an incredibly short time.

It has been with unusual interest that a number of Omahans have watched this woman "mold" her way to fame. E. S. Westbrook and Dr. W. O. Bridges, when small boys, lived in Ogdensburg, N. Y., where, as Sally James, the sculptress spent her girlhood.

She was the daughter of Edwin C. James, a wealthy lawyer of New York City, and her grandfather was Judge James of Ogdensburg, member of a pioneer family of New York state. Her mother was a member of the Perkins family, pioneers in Pennsylvania, many of whom are now prominent in circles of finance in New York.

The artist has three grown children, Judy, James and John. James, who has recently been in Cuba, went to New York by airplane to surprise his mother at the unveiling ceremonies of the Bolivar statue. The daughter, Judy, who has completed her education, was at one time enrolled at Bristol school where she was a roommate of Mrs. Shaji Osato of this city, formerly Frances Fitzpatrick of Washington, D. C. The girls spent many of their vacations together, both at the Fitzpatrick and Farnham homes and Mrs. Osato developed a close friendship with her schoolmate's mother.

Among the other Omahans who know Mrs. Farnham are Mrs. Westbrook, Mr. and Mrs. Ward M. Burgess and Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Nash. Mrs. Farnham is now a woman of about 50 years of age, still handsome in appearance, though not quite as beautiful as in her youth, according to those who know her. Her once red hair, is now a rich auburn and her athletic figure is yet as supple as in former years. She is considered an all round athlete and is an expert equestrienne. Her love of horses clearly shows itself in her many pieces of work. She has a particular talent for modeling the fiery steeds she understands so well. The Bolivar statue stands 35 feet high and has been adjudged one of the finest works of its kind. It is a memorial to Simon Bolivar, the South American liberator. Astride his horse, the champion of freedom is hurrying onward to accomplish mighty deeds in behalf of his fellowmen. The huge, snorting animal seems about to break the bonds of bronze and go galloping away with the great Bolivar.

Mrs. Farnham originally submitted a very tiny model of this statue in an international contest held by Venezuela and was awarded the task of making a fitting memorial for the general. It is said Col. William Hayward, a former Nebraska, posed for the torso of the figure, and the horse used is one belonging to Pierre Samuel Du Pont, well-known New Yorker.

Why Read to Your Children? Here's Excellent Book List

By KATHERINE BEEBE. I have been watching two groups of little children at play. The children of one group spend most of their time trundling themselves up and down the sidewalk in various sorts of vehicles, liddle cars, tri-cycles, toy automobiles and wagons, in gazing at the traffic and various happenings of the street; in going to the store for candy, and now and again chasing each other about.

The other group is always energetically "playing something" lively outdoor games, and dramatic representations of Indians, fire departments, Red Cross first aid, giants, farmers, explorers, builders. These and endless other imitative plays all have their turn.

Why should the little boy of the first group sit drearily on the doorstep when left to himself, apparently waiting for something or somebody to come along and entertain him?

Why should the little girl of the second group sit under a lilac bush holding in her hand a switch tipped with a yellow dandelion head, and, like a dainty fairy queen touch everything nearby with her magic, gold-tipped wand, so absorbed in her imaginative play that she is entirely oblivious of passersby?

The answer is easy. One child has an undeveloped imagination, and the other a mind so full of pictures that she has unending resources for all unoccupied hours or moments.

Let me urge you, parents who read these lines, to make a practice of reading to your children every day of their lives until they are able to do it for themselves.

The librarian of any public library will gladly select and furnish the books you need.

Your effort and sacrifice will be repaid 100 fold in the happy home hours which your children will never forget, in a wealth of play material for the time they must fill by themselves, and in a mental equipment for later years whose value cannot be overestimated.

The following books are old favorites with children and form an excellent list for selection. Aesop's Fables, Jacob's edition, published by the Macmillan Co.; Grimm's Fairy Tales, Lucas translation, published by D. Appleton & Co.; Alice in Wonderland and Through the Looking Glass, by Lewis Carroll, published by the Macmillan Co.; Robinson Crusoe, by Daniel Defoe, published by Harper & Bros.; Tales from Shakespeare, by Charles Scribner's Sons.

Uncle Remus, His Songs and His Sayings, by Joel Chandler Harris, published by D. Appleton & Co.; Alice in Wonderland and Through the Looking Glass, by Lewis Carroll, published by the Macmillan Co.; Robinson Crusoe, by Daniel Defoe, published by Harper & Bros.; Tales from Shakespeare, by Charles Scribner's Sons.

Just So Stories, by Rudyard Kipling, published by Doubleday, Page & Co.; The Water Babies, by Charles Kingsley, published by Doubleday, Page & Co.; Uncle Remus, His Songs and His Sayings, by Joel Chandler Harris, published by D. Appleton & Co.; Alice in Wonderland and Through the Looking Glass, by Lewis Carroll, published by the Macmillan Co.; Robinson Crusoe, by Daniel Defoe, published by Harper & Bros.; Tales from Shakespeare, by Charles Scribner's Sons.

Don't Spoil Your Hair By Washing It When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle. The best thing to use is Unsifted coconut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Unsifted at any drug store, and a few cures will last the whole family for months. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Unsifted.

SURE WAY TO GET RID OF BLACKHEADS There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads and that is to dissolve them. To do this get two ounces of calomine powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, like blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear, leaving the parts without any mark whatever. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions from the body that form in the pores of the skin—squeezing only cause irritation, make large pores and do not get them out after they become hard. The calomine powder and the water simply dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition. Anybody troubled with these unsightly blemishes should certainly try this simple method.
