

Darwinism One Of Big Menaces, Says W. J. Bryan

Statesman, in Lincoln Address, Urges Prevention of Atheist Teachings by Instructors in Schools.

Lincoln, May 8.—(Special Telegram.)—Darwinism, which he declared led to the superman and survival of the fittest theories of life and left its believers cynical, with no fear of future judgment or hope of future rewards, is one of the greatest menaces in the world, William Jennings Bryan told a capacity audience in a Lincoln church today.

Bryan declared these alleged false theories in which the spirit of brotherly love had no place were leading to organizations against the masses, pitting of the public and unappreciated for everyone. He declared that numerous university and college professors, who were atheists and theorists, were responsible for this condition in a large degree and declared that the taxpayers of the country who paid for the schools had a right to demand that their hired teachers should keep atheist ideas out of the rooms.

Bryan took cognizance of an attack on him in Senator Hitchcock's paper, the World-Herald, this morning, and declared: "He has been a tool of boozing interests for years."

Bryan arrived in Lincoln on the eve of a meeting of the Lincoln city commissioners to elect a mayor. His brother, Charles W. Bryan, is a candidate for election as mayor. Frank Zehring is another candidate. Both were elected at the recent city election. Bryan on a platform for a municipal coal yard.

William Jennings Bryan did not allude to the election, but during his lecture he did state that the coal men had mulcted the country of hundreds of millions of dollars in the last few years.

This statement drew loud applause from the audience congregated in the church.

Alien Registration Advocated by Davis

Pittsburgh, May 8.—All aliens in the United States should be registered as a measure of safety, said Secretary of Labor Davis, speaking at a Moose testimonial banquet in his honor.

"It is time for us to register all aliens, that we may know where they are," he said. "The communist group among them is well organized. They do not come here to learn the principles of our government, but to overthrow this government. We must adopt a system of education to offset this communist propaganda. There is no room in America for any man that preaches the overthrow of this government."

Mrs. Stillman Fights With Fury of a Woman Scorned

Affairs of 10 Persons To Be Aired in New York Divorce—Claim to Have Letters Written by Plaintiff, to Offset Ones Signed by Indian Co-respondent.

By A STAFF CORRESPONDENT. Chicago Tribune-Omaha Bee Leased Wire. New York, May 8.—Affairs of 10 women, including "Mrs. Florence Leeds" and James A. Stillman, will be dragged into the divorce case of Mrs. "Fifi" Stillman.

Mrs. Stillman is going to fight back with all the fury of a woman scorned and driven to desperation to protect her own name and the future of her son, Guy Stillman. The 10 women in Stillman's affairs were described tonight as follows: No. 1, "Mrs. Florence H. Leeds," mother of Jay Leeds, two and one-half years old. Mrs. Leeds present residence was said to be unknown to Mrs. Stillman's attorneys, all trace of her having been lost after she left Miami, Fla., where investigators had located her.

No. 2, a beautiful dark-haired, dark-eyed and dark-complexioned woman, believed to be in society or on its fringe. Proof was said to have been obtained that this woman was a frequent visitor on Mr. Stillman's yacht, Modesty. No. 3, the "woman of the west side apartment," said to have been rented by Mr. Stillman in 1917, 1918 and 1919. The first name of this woman was said to be "Mabel" and the information concerning her as well as concerning No. 2 was described as specific.

No. 4, the woman known as the "$6,000 girl." This woman is said by persons friendly to Mrs. Stillman to have obtained $6,000 from and to be singers, dancers, chorus girls or in some way connected with the stage, either at the time Mr. Stillman is alleged to have known them or preceding that time. Definite information concerning Mr. Stillman's acquaintance with these young women was said to be in the possession of Mrs. Stillman's attorney, but it was said that it was not as specific in character as the information concerning the first five.

In addition to information concerning these 10 young women, Mrs. Stillman's attorneys were said to have located a series of letters, believed to have been written by Mr. Stillman to one of them. These letters, it was said, appeared to be of intimate nature and will be produced by the defense at the proper time as an offset to the letters alleged to have been written by Mrs. Stillman to one of them. Railroads Make Final Arguments In Wage Squabble

Executives Stand on Original Contention That Salaries in Other Industries Are Now Lower.

Chicago, May 8.—Railroad representatives made their final drive for a wage slash on behalf of nearly 100 carriers before the railroad labor board.

Devoting most of their argument to denials of the charges of waste and mismanagement made by the employees, counsel for the roads finally cast the charges aside as irrelevant and stood on their original contention that wages in outside industries and the cost of living had declined.

The board was told it should consider only the factors laid down in the transportation act in fixing just and reasonable wages by P. W. Sargent, solicitor for the Chicago and Northwestern. W. J. Lauck, the unions economist, had asked the board to abandon those factors, he said.

"If the board should set up a standard of a so-called living wage for five, as urged by Mr. Lauck, the board should also fix a different standard for different sizes of families and for individuals," he said. "The very statement of the proposition illustrates how impracticable it is to apply the theory."

Conditions Changed. "I maintain that if the former wage award was just at the time it became effective, May 1, 1920, it follows that a reduction of compensation must be granted in view of the overwhelming evidence regarding changed conditions."

To adopt the theory of the living wage as a basis for determining railroad wages would be to accept "an untried theory of state socialism or to countenance creation of a super-privileged class," according to John G. Walker, summing up the testimony of the carriers. Mr. Walker, who represented the eastern roads, completed the roads' rebuttal.

The living wage, according to the railroads' investigations, he said, was not an amount necessary to maintain an employ and his family, but "represents a standard on which certain persons would like to live."

Theory Not New. "The theory of the living wage is not new," he continued. "We do not intend to ignore it, but we believe the American people should know its real purport and the ultimate effect of such a socialist theory as that laid down by the railroad employees. We have no quarrel with the ambitions or desires of any American citizen to better himself. However, establishment of an artificial minimum wage would be as fatal as attempting to stifle initiative and incentive, removing hope of reward and fear of failure."

He declared that railroad exhibits proved that, contrary to the employees' contentions, railroad wages had increased in greater proportion than the cost of living.

No intimation was given as to when a decision would be handed down, but it was said the board would require at least a month to digest the evidence.

France Honors Saint and Martyr

Government Takes Part in Fete in Memory of Joan D'Arc.

By EDWIN L. JAMES. Chicago Tribune, Cable, Copyright, 1921. Paris, May 8.—(By Wireless.)—For the first time—490 years after her death—France paid homage with a national fete to the memory of Joan D'Arc, "saint and martyr." For years the Catholic and the royalists have held some demonstration in her honor, and last, after much patient work, they have succeeded in getting the fete placed on a national footing.

Today the republican government took part, and while the ministers spoke at celebrations in Paris and Orleans, the president sent a wreath to be laid with hundreds of others, on the pedestal of the statue in the Rue Rivoli, to the girl who, by faith and practical energy, delivered France from the hold of the English kings and gave back to the most singularly ungrateful monarch of all times, his capital and scepter.

The fete was mostly a church affair and the participants were for the most part children from the schools and religious societies. But the state also took part and tried to make the day one of celebration of the patriotism personified in the martyred girl.

Incidentally, it should be mentioned that the utmost care was taken to avoid offending the susceptibilities of France's ally, England, in case she should have any affected lapse after nearly five centuries.

Haitians Demand Withdrawal of the American Troops

Military Ruled Scored as "Regime of Autocracy" in Memorial to Congress And President.

By CHARLES D. MICHAELS. Chicago Tribune-Omaha Bee Leased Wire. Chicago, May 8.—Estimates on the winter wheat crop to be sown by the government report due in Chicago at 2:15 p. m. Monday, are 635,000 to 645,000,000 bushels. Last month the estimate was 621,000,000 bushels, which allowed for an average abandonment of acreage. In May, last year, it was 485,000,000 bushels, with the harvest 577,000,000 bushels.

Estimates on condition are 87 to 90, compared with 71 last month. Last year it was 79.1, and the 10-year average is 86.8. Acreage estimates are 800,000 to 2,000,000, or from 2 to more than 4 per cent last from the 40,605,000 acres seeded last fall. Heaviest losses in acreage are expected to be in the southwest, particularly Kansas. There will be no report on spring wheat and oats until June.

Action of the farmers' organizations in attacking the grain exchanges as indicative of sound business judgment and fair-mindedness. "They have used every method to vilify the grain exchanges," a board official says, "and at the same time the farmers have benefited by using them to market their grain. No overtures have been made by the leaders of the farm organizations for a conference or a 'get together' movement, such as most business interests would urge, were they to consider the benefits to be derived by co-operation."

The grain exchanges have been in existence in the United States for upward of 100 years and in Chicago for more than 70 years. Speculation in grain has prevailed since the days of Joseph, who ran the first grain corner in Egypt of which the world has knowledge.

Leading interests in the grain exchanges of the country are working toward calling a general meeting of exchange representatives, farmers, bankers and elevator interests to arrive at a satisfactory basis where all will be benefited. All will have to make concessions. A few abuses that are said to have crept into the trade can be eliminated or remedied.

There is an increasing disposition to view the buying side of the wheat market with more favor and larger interests show a disposition to take hold on breaks. There is close adjustment of supplies to requirements, with practically no stock here and not much chance of getting one unless other markets decline taster than they have and get on a shipping basis with Chicago.

Bricks Fly Thick and Fast as Boys Scrap In Lobby of Theater

Persons leaving the Rialto theater following the final show Saturday night were forced to side-step a veritable hail of bricks, missiles being used by Jack Clare, 1447 South Sixteenth street, and W. L. Monogold, 1015 South Twenty-second street, in an attempt to settle a dispute in the lobby of the show building.

According to the story told police, the boys began their argument on the street in front of the theater. Picking up armloads of "Irish confetti," the belligerents carried their fight into the lobby, endangering the safety of theatergoers as they hurled bricks toward each other.

Officer Corvall collared the youngsters and took them to Central police station where they were released after a lecture on proper conduct.

Girl Tells Weird Tale of Attack On Lonley Road

Says Man Who Forced Her Into Car Gagged and Beat Her—Knocked Unconscious in Collision.

Miss Bessie Schaeffer, 24, 1812 Capitol avenue, reported to police that she was forced into an automobile, gagged, beaten and that an attempt was made to assault her during a period of two hours early yesterday morning.

Miss Schaeffer said she was going home alone from the De Luxe dancing academy about midnight when she was stopped at Seventeenth and Dodge street by an unidentified autoist who pulled her into his car after she battled with him for 10 minutes.

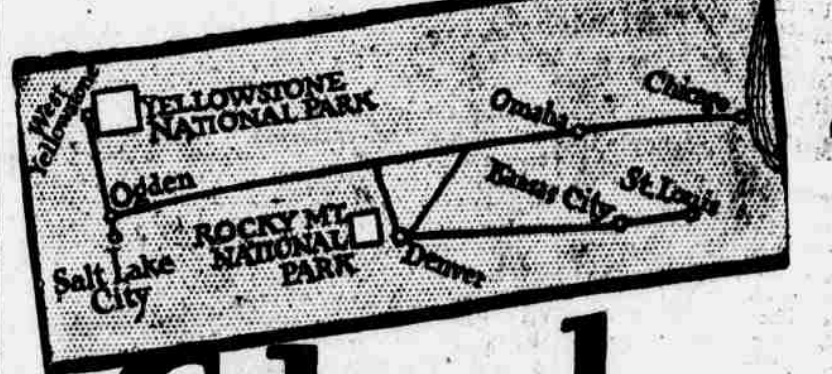

She said the driver then went to a lonely road on the outskirts of the city, and there she was gagged with a pair of gloves. "He pulled a gun and threatened to shoot me if I made any outcry or attempted to get out of the car," she told police.

The girl then told of how she warned her driver-assailant of an approaching car turning into the road. She said her captor wrecked the other car by running into it. She was thrown out and knocked unconscious, she said. Upon recovering, she found that the driver had deserted her, she told police.

According to Her Story. Two men in another automobile drove by and took her to within two blocks of her home.

"I never saw the man before," Miss Schaeffer told Detective Pzsanowski who is investigating the girl's story. "I know he was drinking, because he had a bottle of moonshine." He told me that he lived on the "South Side."

Pzsanowski is also investigating a report that the girl was drugged. She told detectives that the driver used a hypodermic needle on her arm. The girl is a waitress at the Calumet restaurant.
