Germany Likely To Buy Heavily In U.S. Market

Business With Central Europe Expected to Expand as Result of Reparations Agreement.

By HOLLAND.

The many persons who stood over the stock exchange ticket throughout the business day which followed the announcement that Germany had yielded, having accepted in full the demands of the allies for the reparation, wendered why the stock mar-ket quotations did not respond to ficial reading of the quotations it Chi. Gt. West. this momentous news. At a supereemed almost as though the news ad caused depression.

Had they turned to the record made in the securities market in the latter part of April and in the early days of the present month they would have been able to read quotations which, properly understood, told a story of confidence that Germany would yield in the last hours of the time granted to her. In fact for some time the securities market for some time the securities market discounting the favorable Gioseberg. been discounting the favorable effect which is sure to follow this enforced action upon Germany. while the news reports from Europe were telling of dangers, of disagreements and the probable loss by Germany of the Ruhr district our international bankers were arrefully scrutinizing other reports, very dry, consisting of a few figures not understood by the public, but which when interpreted were encouraging. For the movement of foreign exchange has since March been such as to justify the belief that Germany would yield in full to the demands of the ailles.

War Foreseen. War Forcacen.

Foreign exchange is a more accurate recorder of financial world conditions than are the published reports which tell of discussions by statesmen, diplomats and others. It was the movement of foreign exchange which as early as June, 1914, foreshadowed the outbreak of war, although the world did not suspect that war danger was imminent. One of our leading rallway authorities approached the Paris market in June of that year, in war danger was immined with the leading railway authorities approached the Paris market in June of that year, in the hope that he would be able to finance there accurities which his railroad company proposed issuing. He met with failure. The bankers told him that evidence which could be relied upon pointed to an outbreak of war and therefore new financing was impracticable. When he saked what the evidence was, saying that the statesmen of France, Great Britain and other countries seemed to be without apprehension, the bankers called his attention to the movement of foreign exchange. Upon that they relied for their judgment and they were justified by the event. So also the movement of foreign exchange since March has been regarded by those who understand this highly difficult science as pointing to the ultimate yielding by Germany to the demand made by the allies.

It Will Be Felt.

Without doubt the acceptance by Garmany of the allies' demand will be of influence, perhaps next week, perhaps next month, but surely before the hot weather comes, in the securities market. There were some local conditions which explained the unexpected attitude of the securities market on the day following the announcement that Germany had yielded. For it is inevitable that when sail the details of the reparation are perfected and when the good faith of Germany is made evident, then an expansion of business between the United States and extral Europe will take place. That of itself will tend to speed up industry, although not for some time is Germany likely to become a heavy purchaser in the American ranket of raw material. It will need these materials by and by because it will convert them by its industry into the manufactured products with which it will try to seek world parkets and in that way severe some arkets and in that way secure some portion of the amount needed for the payment of the reparation. American Workers Affected. Bearing in mind the subsidies which the German government is paying to in-dustry, and the willingness of the German dustry, and the willingness of the German workmen to produce to their capacity, there is no doubt that Germany can manufacture and export commodities in successful competition with United States unless there comes a change in the attitude of organized labor and in fact some change in the attitude of employers towards labor. rds labor. Then the late Abram S. Hewitt told

When the late Abram S. Hewitt told the British iron and steel manufacturers, to whom he spoke when they were in convention a few years before his death, that the United States could and would pay wages in the Iron and steel industry far in excess of the average wages paid to the Iron and steel workers of Great Britain and would nevertheless be able to gain pre-eminent position in finit industry, the British iron and steel leaders said that his statement was not to be believed because the high wages paid in the United States would make the cost of production so great that England would still command the iron and steel markets. In reply Mr. Hewlit said that with high wages in the United States went corresponding output on the part of the workmen. They produced in excess of the products of the British workmen. In the American steel industry the most modern apparatus was employed. The result was that high wages stimulated production.

Reduction in Production.

Beduction in Production.

The British iron and steel industry discovered in a few years that Mr. Hewirt was justified in his statement. Since then, however, many of the rules adopted by the unions have secured an increase in wascs and at the same time caused a reduction in production. Intelligent employers do not care what wages they pay if only they receive the equivalent. But they say that Germany and Great Britain will push the United States back to a secondary place if, to use one example, bricklayers who formerly received 35 per day and laid 1,000 bricks continue to demand $10 per day and limit the output made by any one man to 500 bricks.

There are many details to be worked out and much important financing to be arranged before the German reparation becomes fully effective. But the chief influence in maintaining American industry against the compenition of Germany will be furnished when labor, whatever was wages may be, is giving full equivalent for its wages and ceases to insist upon three men er four men doing work which formerly was performed by one man. No rules of this kind prevail in Germany. One man does a man's work which formerly was performed by one man. No rules of this kind prevail in Germany. One man does a man's work which formerly was performed by one man labor realizes affection up to the worker's capacity and with no unnecessary division of the work. For unless American labor realizes this the chances are great that within a year or two millions of them will be without employment.

Financial

The New york Times. By ALEXANDER DANA NOYES.

Chicago Tribune-Omaha Bee Leased Wire. New York, May 16 .- Wall Street's explanation for today's irregularity in stocks and moderate reaction in foreign exchange was the collision of policy, between the French and English ministries regarding the Poles, the Germans and Silesia. Early declines of 1 to 21/2 points in a number of stocks, chiefly in-dustrial, had the effect of bringing purchases from other professional sources, in response to which not only were the earlier losses cancelled, but considerable net gains established for the day. As a whole, the market reflected only the narrowing range of fluctuation of prices, in a market which nowadays seems to have "discounted" before hand any actual news.

In the bond market, on the other hand, a rather distinct downward reaction occurred, notably in the European national and municipals stocks. That some European governments will presently enter our market again on a substantial scale there is no reasonable doubt. Despite the days large financial operations, including the payment on the $220,000,000 Burlington loan, the money market showed ne sign of disturbance and call money loaned during most of the day at 6½ per cent. Notwithstanding the recent rapid increase in our gold reserve, the country stotal stock of money decreased $140,000,000 during April and $430,200,000 since December. Reduction of the federal reserve note currency has been more than double the addition to the gold supply. The total stock of money on May 1 was the smallest since last August, but it is still $4,200,000 greater than on August 1, 1914; an increase of 112 per cent. But that comparison does not however, make allowance for the fact that the gold stock serves largely as a basis for dutstanding receive notes. allowance for the fact that the gold stock serves largely as a basis for outstanding reserve notes, so that a certain duplication of items exists in so far as concerns the effective money supply. The estimate of money in actual circulation, outside the treasury and the federal reserve, shows decrease of $357,800,000 during the past four months, but increase of $2,975,000,000 or $7 per cent as compared with the date when the European war began,

Hedging sales by country and clevator houses supplied the offerings and made a break of 1% 2c on futures from the top. Illinois and Iowa offered corn on the buige, but shut off on the break. It is only a question of time when they will be selling at the market, it is believed.

Froat reports at a number of points in Iowa created moderate buying of cats and made an advance early which met good sales and prices declined. Local traders sold on the early break and covered later on the advance, but there was not a heavy trade in all.

Owing to the holiday there were no quotations from Liverpool, and very few orders from that quarter were reported around the ring. The south was credited with selling some cotton here early, but spot houses bought, and there was some early buying by Wall street, encouraged by relievated reports of improving conditions in the domestic goods trade.

This followed the publication of the weather map showing more rain than expected in eastern boit sections and prospected in eastern boit sections and prospected in eastern boit sections and prospected in set by the conditions of the southwest. July sold up to 12.77c, or 5 points net higher, while late months were relatively firm, showing net advances of 10 to 15 points, but after the spurt of covering subsided, trading was very quiet and prices sagged off again during the middle of the day.

Gates, assistant cashier of the Packers National bank, held a conference Sat-

It was decided to enlist the aid of four greyhounds and with a number of men under the leadership of Gates a pursuit of coyotes was planned for Sunday morning. The hounds were given the scent and turned loose. A mother coyote was routed and took refuge in a creek where she submerged her body with but the tip of her nose in the air. The hounds brought the mother coyote out and the father was trailed to a strawstack. After the stack was set on fire, the father covote with four cubs were captured and killed. A postmortem on the mother and father covotes revealed two stomachs filled with freshly devoured poultry and it is thought the remaining poultry and young lambs will be safe from destruction for a while.
