HAVE you a pair? Yes? Then you may take your place with the best of the fashion leaders. You are up-to-the-minute, although you are many years behind the times. In other words, you are wearing the lace mitts fashionable with little girls and debutantes of days long departed.

Mrs. C. N. Dietz has two pairs of the mitts in black lace. They are like gloves, but made without fingers in them and do not reach quite up to the elbow.

Helen Phelan has a pair of the white ones as has Eleanor Baxter. They are considered quite chic when worn with organdy frocks or any other fluffy summer gown.

Mayer-Rogers. One of the prettiest of the May weddings was solemnized Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, when Miss Frances E. Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Rogers, became the bride of Henry J. Mayer, of Dalton, Neb. The ceremony was performed in the living room of the Rogers home before a canopy of palms and spring flowers.

The Rev. Titus Lowe read the marriage lines. Miss Irene Ayres sang. Miss Olive Huntley played the wedding march. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white georgette crepe. The bridal bouquet was of white roses.

Miss Edith Rogers was her sister's only attendant. Her gown was of pearl georgette and she carried pink roses.

Jesse E. Rogers, brother of the bride, was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Mayer will be at home at Dalton, Neb., after August 1.

For Brides-to-Be. Mrs. Irving Benolken entertained at luncheon at her home Wednesday, honoring Miss Esther Smith and Miss Betty Ringwalt, brides-to-be. The other guests were Winifred Smith, Erna Reed, Elizabeth Barker and Dorothy Stovits.

Strawberry Festival. A strawberry festival and lawn party will be given Monday evening at the Charles T. Kountze home under the auspices of St. Elizabeth's Guild of St. Barnabas church for the benefit of the fund which is being raised to purchase a new church organ to replace the one which was destroyed by fire some months ago.

Mrs. E. S. Road, assisted by Miss Elvior Kountze, president of the guild, will have charge of the affair assisted by the following members of the organization: Dorothy Davidson, Jane M. Johnson, Veron, Helen Montmorency, Barbara Christie, Janet Willmatt, Marjorie Pancoast, Emma Ritchie, Charlotte Smith and Marjorie Morehouse.

Flower and candy booths and dancing will be features of the festival.

Benefit Luncheon. Ninety reservations were made for the benefit luncheon which was given Wednesday noon at the colored branch of the Y. W. C. A. at Twenty-second and Grant streets, the proceeds to be used for screening the porch of the club house.

Mrs. W. A. C. Johnson's guests at the luncheon were Mesdames Joseph Barker, F. A. Nash, W. J. Hynes, Frank Judson, George Brandeis, W. H. Wheeler and W. J. Foye.

Others who entertained were Mesdames George Joslyn, Luther Kountze, J. L. K. Kenney, Victor Caldwell, A. L. Reed, F. P. Kirkendall, Henry Wyman, L. P. Crofoot, Dr. Jennie Callias and Miss Jessie Millard.

Miss Lena Paul, chairman of the house committee, and Mrs. T. P. Mahammit had charge of the luncheon.

Family Reunion. Mrs. Maggie Aden Sturgeon will entertain at a family reunion at her home Saturday and Sunday. This will be the 11th to be held by members of her family. Her brothers, A. H., John and L. Aden, and their wives, of University Place, Neb., will be present. Her sister, Mrs. Richard Dey, and Mr. Dey will come from Graham, Neb., and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Louis Aden, of Shelby, Ia., will also attend.

Mrs. William K. Columbus, of Neb., a daughter of Mrs. Sturgeon, will come with her husband. Two other daughters, Misses Mary and Lydia Sturgeon of this city, will also be at the reunion.

English Scholar to Speak. Dr. J. Holland Rose of Cambridge, England, will speak in Omaha next week under auspices of the Omaha school forum. He will appear at the Central High school auditorium Tuesday afternoon, May 31, and again Thursday afternoon, June 2.

His subjects will be "England and the High Seas," and "England in the Late War."

Dr. Holland has specialized in history and is considered an authority on Napoleonic history. Students of history in Omaha regard his coming as an event of importance.

Junior League Girls to Pour Tea. Junior league girls will pour tea at the Chinese carnival to be given Friday and Saturday at the Auditorium under the auspices of Chinese merchants of the city for the benefit of the Chinese relief fund.

Other features of the carnival will be a Chinese play, "The Lion," given by a cast of Chinese actors; vocal solos by Lou Moon King, who is said to be a noted Chinese singer; side shows and fortune telling.

Nurses' Banquet. The graduates and faculty of the University of Nebraska hospital were guests at a banquet Wednesday evening given by the alumnae at the University club. Covers were placed for 25. Decorations were in scarlet and cream, the university colors. Following the banquet an alumnae association was organized and the guests attended a theater party to be given by the alumnae.

Field Club. Mrs. William M. Anderson entertained informally at a bridge luncheon at the Field club, Wednesday. Covers were placed for eight.

Reservations for the Wednesday evening dinner-dance were made by S. R. Kirkpatrick, M. J. Coakley, George Wilson, and Clarence Nelson.

For Mrs. McShane. Mrs. E. H. Sprague will entertain at a luncheon of 12 covers at her home Friday for Mrs. John A. McShane.

Song Writer

Mrs. A. I. McKinnon

Mrs. A. I. McKinnon of Lincoln is composer of the fox trot "Somewhere," which is being shown with colored slides at the Rialto this week to a pipe organ accompaniment played by Julius K. Johnson. Mrs. McKinnon has written a great many songs during the last year, says that the popular airs like "Somewhere" and "Marjorie" are in demand in America, but that the ballads, "Idyll of Love" and "The Bird," have met their best success in Canada and England.

Country Club. Mrs. Allan Tukey entertained 13 guests at luncheon at the Country club Wednesday noon.

Arthur Keeline entertained a party of 12 at the dinner dance Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Gertrude McCarthy, guest of Mrs. Paul Gallagher.

Mr. W. A. C. Johnson had 23 guests at the dinner dance and E. W. Van Brunt entertained a party of 14.

Mrs. E. S. Westbrock will have 30 guests for luncheon Thursday and Burdette Kirkendall will entertain 10 guests at dinner Friday evening at the club.

Clubdom

Woman's Club May Party. One hundred and fifty reservations were made for the Omaha Woman's club May luncheon Wednesday afternoon at Camp Brewster. Spring flowers formed the decorations.

The house and home committee, Mrs. John R. Golden, chairman, had charge of the affair. It is probable that other social meetings will be held during the summer months as Mrs. Charles Johannes, of Wales, president, favors a year-around club.

W. R. C. Notes. The George A. Custer Relief corps will meet for luncheon Friday at the home of Mrs. P. W. Smith, 816 South Forty-sixth street, to arrange for flowers for Decoration day.

During 1920 nearly 400,000 couples were married in England and Wales, which is far in excess of all previous records.

Problems That Perplex

Answered by BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Weights Too Much. Dear Miss Fairfax: As I am a steady reader of your column and see you help many I thought I'd come to you for help also. I am 16 years old, 5 feet and 4 inches high and weigh 175 pounds. How much should I weigh? And how can I reduce my weight?

Would a pink or rose color dress be nice for summer? I have medium brown hair and light blue eyes. Is "Certainly" all right to say when a boy asks you for a dance? Thanking you, I will remain,

A READER.

Little Blue Eyes: You ask me how to make the boys like you. Well, what kind of boys do you mean? If you mean well-mannered, honest, good young fellows, then I would recommend that you be sincere, natural, attractive in appearance so far as possible and as entertaining as you can honestly be. The classiest clothes sometimes do attract boys, but not always the kind you would like.

His Father Objects. Dear Miss Fairfax: I am going about with a young man, whom I love dearly and my love is reciprocated. Our acquaintance has extended over three years, and while his father does not know me except by sight, he objects very seriously to me. As they do not speak it is impossible to obtain an explanation from his father. I know if he were to give me up the father would be happy, but we love one another too much. What means could you suggest, whereby father and son could do so?

After we clean them, if you so request, all winter garments will be sealed in boxes or bags.

Cleaning will remove the material on which the moths feed, and sealing will prevent their reaching the garment.

Auto Club Will Have Early Breakfast

Early morning breakfast in the woods sounds most alluring, particularly a breakfast following a motor trip of several miles just after sunrise.

The Omaha Automobile club, which has a club house situated near Bellevue, has one of the most beautiful locations of its kind near Omaha. The club house, which is really a large cottage, is high on a woody knoll overlooking the muddy Missouri.

In many other cities early morning breakfasts are quite fashionable events at the automobile clubs, and Omahans hope to make this innovation popular here.

On next Sunday morning the Omaha club will be formally opened for the summer months at an 8 o'clock breakfast to be given by G. H. Brewer. The guests will include the officers, directors and membership committee of the club, whose wives will also be present. The list includes W. B. Cheek, F. L. Nesbit, G. H. Brewer, J. S. White, J. L. Haskin, A. C. Pancoast, Zane Thompson, J. E. George, Gould Dietz, Charles E. Duffie, T. B. W. Jewell, J. B. Watkins, Dr. A. F. Overgaard, J. H. Lomberger, Dr. J. B. Fickes, Harry Scharf, L. A. HOLDING A HUSBAND Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

Why Madge Told Lillian She Should Be a Real Estate Agent. My spirits rose in spite of myself as our little procession reached the immense old elm which guarded the entrance to the dilapidated house next to the Ticer home. It had not yet come into leaf, but there was the hint of coming green in its branches, and it was so stately, so inspiring a thing, that one could not help a thrill of satisfaction at the prospect of owning it.

"But only God can make a tree," I quoted softly.

"I thought you'd feel that way when you got close up to this," Lillian said. "What a pity this is! But I believe a good tree surgeon could do wonders with this if any possible people owned this place."

"Look, mother, Auntie Madge! Marion called. 'See what I've found. A fairy ring!'"

She had run to the side of the yard near the road, about one hundred feet from the tree, and was standing, a picture of childish delight, in the middle of a ring of glossy green stalks from which peeped the golden daffodil blossoms. The plants entirely encircled what evidently once had been a cherished flower bed, but which was now only weeds, the season's crop already large and flourishing. Only the hardy daffodils in a grassy border had survived the neglect of years.

"They say Grandma Dacey put those out years ago," Mrs. Ticer said. "This used to be the Dacey farm, and folks say in those days there wasn't a prettier place anywhere around. But after Grandpa and Grandma Dacey died the place was sold and since then it's gone from bad to worse. Poor old Grandma Dacey! I've often thought she'd turn in her grave if she knew how neglected her house and yard were. She loved the place so, and she used to take such pride in her neat house and her flowers."

"I felt a little lump in my throat, for there is something especially pathetic to me in the thought of plants and trees one has cherished living on neglected after the one who planted and tended them has gone on. Surely if anything besides human ties could call a spirit back to earth it would be the flowers such a one had loved."

"Look at the lilacs, Madge," Lillian said, when we had waded approval at Marion's fairy ring. "Let's walk around that way first. I'd like to see the orchard."

I looked at her with smiling, comprehending eyes.

A Wonderful Orchard. Directly in front of us lay an old-fashioned orchard, of the kind which I had thought was found only in fiction. There were great gnarled trees, at least 50 of them, with sturdy branches, some pointing straight upward, others stretching horizontally as if to invite children to fasten swings to them, still others curving fantastically. They were evidently just ready to burst into bloom, for there was a rose tint covering them, which upon close inspection proved to be the exquisitely tinted edges of the unfolding buds.

The ground underneath the trees were badly cut up and trampled, but the grass was beginning to cover its unsightly lines.

"They let the pigs in here," Mrs. Ticer explained, and they rooted up the ground. Oh, then foreigners is something awful when they rent a place! They rob the land, putting so much commercial fertilizer on it for their potatoes, and they let their animals and chickens run all over. But when they get money enough to buy places of their own—they do spurge then? Well, I guess!"

"I suppose it would be easy to have some one spade and level those places and plant grass seed," I replied absently, for almost without my own volition I was already deep in a dream of what the place would look like if restored to its original state by being tenderly cared for. I was recalled to myself by Lillian's amused smile, but I did not resent it. Instead, I looked at her steadily, and laughed significantly.

"You've mistaken your calling," I said.
