Commerce High Holds Outing And Field Day

Girls' Gym Classes Present "Festival of Four Seasons;" Seniors Win in Athletic Contests.

fourth annual Commerce High school outing and field day was held yesterday at Elmwood park. Old Sol, after remaining hidden until 9:30, blazed forth in herce fury in time to sunburn the participants in the "Festival of Four Seasons," presented by the Commerce girls' gym classes, the chief attraction of the day's program.

Students and faculty members numbering 2,500, boarded 20 chartered cars at 8:30 and by 10 the stage was set in a natural amphitheater for the pageant in which more than 100 costumed girls took Solo dances by Reigena Helsing, Martha Funk, Ruth Elliot and Goldie Peterson brought rounds of applause. The girls' glee club, led by Miss Johanna Anderson, rendered the vocal selections.

Games for both boys and girls followed the outdoor luncheon. Every student participated in at least one of the events. The Senior class led with 53 points, while the Freshmen piled up 45 counters. Henry W. Campbell, Commerce professor, defeated all contestants in the rope, jumping contest. The clerk of the course in the potato race was forced to use oranges for potatoes, but when these disappeared in the pockets of some sticky-fingered freshmen, "wooden potatoes" were sub-tituted.

Eight Debaters and Three Orators of Central Gets Awards

Eight Central High school debaters and three members of the declamatory team received certificates of recognition at a mass meeting held before school yesterday at the Central High school auditorium.

The debaters are Eleanor Hamilton, captain of the negative team and girl star athlete; William Cejnge captain of the affirmative team; Karl Kharas, Eloise Maggarett, Lyal Quinby, Ruth Godfrey, Richard Elster and Morris Block. They probably will receive medals for their work. Coach Chatlaine presented the awards.

The three members of the de clamatory team are Leon Connell. Annette Fanger and Wayne Pope Miss Fanger won first place in the state dramatic contest, held at Cozad last month. Connell won second place in the state contest in the humorous class. Wayne Pope won second place in the district contest on oratory. He was entitled to represent Central in the state contest, but did not attend, through a misunderstanding of the officials. Athletic monograms were also pro

The Decision Madge Made.

"Well! Is the promised view up specifications?" Lillian asked slyly, when, after climbing the slope leading from the barn to the woodland upon the property next to the Ticer farm, we turned upon the highest point, and faced the way we had come. But her question had not penters and masons, and painters been uttered until a long minute after we had turned, for-beauty lover that she is-she had been stilled, even as I was, into appreciative thrilled silence at the view which lay before us.

From the acclivity upon which we stood the ground dipped downward Ticer, who had gone to Sag Harbor in a lovely undulating slope of wood- early, came up the path waiving a land and meadow to the ocean, fully three miles away. We could clearly see the dancing silvery gleam of the water in the sunlight, and make out the sail. (Continue the sail of the sail.) the sails and masts of the fishing boats and other craft plying their way through the waves.

To one side the church spires and picturesque houses of an old village nestled in the trees, just bursting into leaf, while from an isolated farmhouse here and there spirals of smoke curled lazily.

And all around us, extending as far as our eyes could see, the ground was carpeted with violets and cow-slips. Marion, the beauty of the dis-tant view dwarfed by the loveliness near at hand, was already on her knees busily gathering the spring blossoms. Mrs. Ticer knelt to assist the child, but Lillian and I stood Wolsey stood he caused the cardinal side by side in silent admiration until a remark by Mrs. Ticer recalled us golden basin which was presented to carth, and Lillian seized the opportunity to remind me of my prom-

Parents' Problems

Nature study is the best means of interesting city as well as country children in being outdoors. The use of parks, playgrounds and back-yards should be encouraged. Most children like to play in a park or a playground. As for the backyard, the bit of outdoors open to most city children, a fondness for being in that can, perhaps, best be brought about by the present of a package of vegetable or flower seed, and one or two inexpensive garden tools. Whether for children or grownups in the city, gardening, if even in a small wooden box,nourishes a love for outdoors.
