

Jury Verdict of Suicide Fails To Stop Probe

County Attorney Not Satisfied By Finding in Case of Farmer Shot to Death at Plattsmouth.

Plattsmouth, Neb., June 1.—(Special.)—County Attorney Cole announced that he is not satisfied with the finding of the coroner's jury this afternoon that Clint Andrews, wealthy farmer and auto man, whose body was found Monday in his home at Manley, near here, came to his death by his own hand.

Andrews' body was found by his divorced wife. In his left hand was clutched a revolver. There were powder burns on his hand and around the death wound on his left side.

Andrews and his wife were divorced five years ago, but they continued to live in the same house. Each used half of the house.

County Attorney Cole said that public sentiment is not satisfied with the verdict of suicide and that he will conduct a probe.

No definite cause for suicide has been established.

Marriage Sequel To Jail Romance

Jack Johnstone, 25, was released from the county jail Tuesday morning and 30 minutes later was married to Miss Gladys Robinson, 22, in the county court house by Justice of the Peace Bunce.

The marriage is the result of a romance carried on while Johnstone was serving a six months' jail term on the charge of breaking into the storeroom of Morris Deiches, 206 North Sixteenth street, with his pal, Ray Beecher.

During his incarceration Miss Robinson visited her lover in durand velle. According to jail attaches she had much competition as there were other girls calling on Johnstone. The couple will make their new home in Peoria, Ill., where Johnstone says "wifey and I'll spend the rest of our days keeping me out of jail."

Detective Saved When Cartridge Fails to Explode

Man Who Admitted Having Stolen 20 Automobiles Foiled in Attempt to Shoot Officer.

City Detective William Cich narrowly escaped death yesterday afternoon when Arthur Beard, 1114 North Twenty-fourth street, an automobile thief whom he was arresting at the Sprague Tire and Rubber company plant, Eighteenth and Izard streets, whipped out a revolver, pressed the muzzle against Cich's breast and pulled the trigger.

The cartridge failed to explode. Detective James Murphy, Cich's partner, who was near, knocked the revolver out of Beard's hand and grabbed the man. Cich then held him while Murphy ran out and arrested another man who had driven up with Beard in a Nash car and who gave his name as Clyde Harow, 3824 North Twenty-fifth street.

The car they were driving was stolen from Eddie Wirthsater, proprietor of a cigar store in the Peters Trust building.

The detectives were lying in wait at the tire factory on a tip that the two men would appear there this afternoon.

In a confession to Lieut. John Peszanowski of the automobile bureau and Chief of Detectives Van Deusen, Beard admitted that he has stolen about 20 cars, most of them of the Nash make. He said he took most of them just for joy rides with girls. Some, however, he said he stripped in order to sell the accessories.
