

Five Physicians On Stand Declare Chester Normal

Two Doctors Say They Heard Defendant Talk While Under Influence of Anesthetics.

Kansas City, June 3.—Five physicians who attended Denzel Chester in the city hospital here after his return from Broken Bow, Neb., last November, testified at his trial that in their opinion the man was normal and that he had not been mistreated. Two of them declared they had heard him talk while under the influence of anesthetics. Since he was brought from Broken Bow, Chester has been mute.

Chester, who is accused of having killed Miss Florence Barton, testified Wednesday that he was mistreated at the hospital.

During the trial Chester has communicated with his attorneys in writing and his testimony yesterday was written. It is the contention of his attorneys that he was subjected to mistreatment at the hands of detectives, which permanently deprived him of power of speech.

Yesterday's evidence was introduced by the state in rebuttal after the defense had rested its case.

Laughing Gas Used.
Dr. G. W. Robinson, a neurologist, testified that, in his opinion, Chester was able to talk when he left the hospital, January 3, and that he believed he could have been discharged sooner. Dr. Robinson said that laughing gas was administered to the patient by his direction to ascertain whether there was any affection of the throat. In his opinion, he said, there was not.

Dr. G. H. Thiele, an interne, told of being present when Chester talked while under an anesthetic. He said as nearly as he could remember, Chester said: "Oh, God, let me talk. I'll talk."

Fight Over Borah Navy Bill Amendment Warm

disarmament, we should consider the question of naval disarmament or reduction of armament, and not merely the reduction of programs, as the Borah amendment provides."

Action Postponed.
Representative Kelly of Michigan moved to send the bill to conference without instructions, but Mr. Garrett objected and action was postponed till Monday.

Senator Borah said the broadening of his amendment is exactly what the opponents of disarmament want. "It seems to me if those who are suggesting that the disarmament amendment be broadened to include land forces as well as naval forces, will reflect upon the situation as it now exists in Europe, they will readily conclude that to thus broaden the amendment is to kill the whole proposition," he said.

"It is impossible to make any headway at all in the way of land disarmament at present in Europe. At the meeting of the Geneva assembly France stated plainly that it would not consider the question of disarmament at this time and it refused to even vote for the principle of disarmament. It gave as its reason that its situation was such that it would not, and could not take such action now. Six other nations followed it. To include land disarmament, therefore, is to kill the matter outright."

Naval Situation Different.
"With reference to naval disarmament the situation is entirely different. The three nations which are now actually engaged in a naval race are the United States, Great Britain and Japan. The French navy is a third-class navy, so recognized, and they are doing practically nothing toward bringing it up to date. The Italian navy is in like condition."

"But Japan, the United States and Great Britain are expending millions, even billions, in building navies and they are the only three powers which bid fair to enter into competition for the next 25 or 30 years. So far as land disarmament is concerned, it does not make any difference to the United States, as a matter of security, how many troops France has. The house has very wisely limited our army to 150,000. France has an army of 800,000. But it didn't make any difference to the house in curtailing our army that France had 800,000.

"If we are sincerely going forward with the question of disarmament and sincerely desirous of curtailing expenditures and reducing the chances of war, we will start where we can start and make progress, and that is with the naval powers which are now in actual naval building competition."

Omaha Masons Protest At Tax on Cathedral

Lincoln, June 3.—(Special.) Carl Herring headed a delegation of Omaha Masons who called on W. H. Osborne, state tax commissioner, to protest against a proposed assessment by H. G. Counsman, Douglas county assessor, of $140,000 on the Scottish Rite cathedral, Omaha.

The delegation claimed that the activities of the cathedral were aimed at charitable purposes, exclusively, and that while the supreme court ruled the Scottish Rite cathedral at Lincoln should be taxed the Omaha cathedral was without the law because it was primarily a charitable institution.

Osborne asked the delegation to submit its protest, with facts attached, to him in writing.

Official German War Documents Given Harvard

Several Hundred Proclamations Dealing With Regulations for Civilians Issued Before Aug. 1, 1914.

Cambridge, Mass., June 3.—Official German war documents and war time periodicals, some presented by Ellis L. Dresel, American commissioner at Berlin, has just been added to the collection being made at the Harvard university library.

A study of several hundred war proclamations dealing with regulations for the civilian population, sales of food, war loans, etc., showed that several issued apparently prior to August 1, 1914, were not dated. The date posters began on August 1, and thereafter every proclamation bore a date.

The question whether the dates on the earlier publications were omitted by accident or because they were prepared in advance is one on which the Harvard university announcement says historians will draw their own conclusions.

Prehistoric Ruin Different From Mesa Verde Found

Navajo Mountains Declared to Hold Dwellings of Ancient Cliff Dwellers Never Before Discovered.

Durango, Colo., June 3.—Discovery of prehistoric ruins of what is believed to have been a different race of cliff dwellers from those who inhabited the ruins in the Mesa Verde National park was reported by Charles Hayes of Mancos, Colo., who returned today from an exploratory trip.

The discovery, he said, was made in an almost inaccessible region to the north of the Navajo mountains, unmarked by trails. Hayes said he believed he was the first white man to view the ruins, many of which were larger and better preserved than those in the Mesa Verde National park.

The dwellings were found, he said, at the point where the mountains break away into the deep canyons that open into the San Juan and Colorado rivers.

Other discoveries have been made by scientists near Fagosa Springs, according to reports received here. No details are given.

Dr. J. Walter Fawkes of the Smithsonian institution at Washington is in charge of excavation work in the Mesa Verde. He is planning further explorations in the San Juan on the Yucca national monument, Mummy lake district and around Aztec, N. M.

Air Service Not Affected By Wreck of Ambulance Ship

Washington, June 3.—The organization or policy of the army air service will not be affected by the airplane disaster at Morgantown, Md., in which seven persons were killed in the army ambulance plane last Saturday, Secretary Weeks said today.

The secretary explained that he was waiting for full reports, but said he was disposed to regard the accident as an "act of God." The violent storm and the absence of a landing place, he added, seemed to him to be responsible for the disaster.

House Committee Acts Favorably On Peace Proposal

Republican members voted solidly to adopt the Porter measure as a substitute for the Knox resolution passed by the senate repealing the declaration of war. The democrats merely voted present.

Chairman Porter announced that the resolution would be presented to the house next week for immediate consideration. A minority report will be filed by committee democrats.

House leaders informed Chairman Porter that the resolution would be given the right of way when presented.

Fairbury Youth Saved From Drowning by 'Road Knight'

Lone Man's Fight For Life in Open Dory Disclosed

Schooner Brings in Body of Unidentified Man Which Was Picked Up at Sea In Boat.

Boston, June 3.—A lone man's unsuccessful fight for life in an open dory at sea with little food or water was disclosed here today when the fishing schooner Waltham brought in his body, picked up yesterday 25 miles east of Highland light.

The body was found in the bottom of a dory that was riding the waves as right and tight as if under a fisherman's hand. In the stern stood a bamboo pole with a piece of red attached to it, a marker of distress. The body was badly emaciated. By its sides were the bones of several fishes plucked clean.

Capt. Clifford Hopkins of the Waltham said the extent of emaciation indicated that suffering from thirst and hunger must have been great and that it was days before death delivered the man from his troubles.

The fish that he caught apparently were his only food and he had no fresh water.

The man was well dressed and appeared to be about 45 years old.
