Mirrors of Culture

Almost as tiresome as the person who talks shop is the person who talks house. The person with this bad habit very often is a tyro at house furnishing and house decorating. To him it seems as if his idea of taking pains over making rooms attractive and expressive and soul satisfying is something new, that no one ever thought about until this generation. So he tells you of his long searches for just the right sort of desk, of his wrangle with the paperhanger to get just the right shade of paper even if it had to be made to order, of his sleepless nights over the question of chintz, of his difficulty in getting his window seat low enough and broad enough, the general stupidity of people who make electric fixtures, etc.

If he has had a well known decorator "do" his house or apartment he does not fail to inform you of this fact, and when he shows you the result he speaks with awed reverence.

Now the fact really is that cultivated people have always sought to have attractive interiors. To try to keep out of their houses the things that are commonplace, crude or inappropriate comes to be a matter of course—something that they do not think meet to talk about. If they

Bride of Week

Mrs. Martin Johnson

A recent bride is Mrs. Martin Johnson, whose marriage took place Thursday afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Stauffer. Mrs. Johnson was formerly Miss Ruth Stauffer. Mr. Johnson and his bride have gone on a western trip. They plan to make their home in Omaha.

achieve an effect that pleases them they wait for you to praise it. If they consult a well-known decorator they do it as they would consult a specialist in medicine, law or engineering. They do not permit the specialist in decorating actually to dictate the entire course of their life indoors to them, refusing to place a chair or an ornament anywhere but where the decorator left it.

Associated Charities.

Momentum is gathering for the mammoth Associated Charities benefit to be held in the new Brandeis tea room next October. When McCord-Brady read the story of the drive, and the handsome donations already made, they asked the privilege of giving all the coffee to be used for the luncheons and dinners to be served at that time.

Mrs. T. J. McDearmon has promised a reservation of space on her farm on North Fifty-eighth street, where she will have roasting corn and potatoes planted, to be fresh and ready for the fall charity festival.

Speaking of slogans, how about "One new dish a week?" It will add interest to the one who does the cooking, and the family will like the novelty.

Problems That Perplex

Answered by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

By All Means Apologize.
Dear Miss Fairfax: I have been going out with a young man for the last eight months, but recently we had a quarrel in which I said something which hurt him, and he has not spoken to me for a whole week. I know I am to blame. Do you think it would be right for me to apologize or wait till he comes over? I love him dearly, and he often said he loves me.

LONESOME.
Don't withhold the apology any longer, Lonesome. And here's hoping everything is all patched up right away.

He Wants to Know.
Dear Miss Fairfax: I am in love with a girl of my own age, but do not know whether or not she loves me. Advise me as to how to find out without asking her, C. A. B. If she shows a decided preference for your company above that of other men, you may suspect her of caring deeply for you. But, then, why not ask her? It is the shortest and easiest cut to first-hand information.

Don't Encourage Him.
Dear Miss Fairfax: I am sincerely in love with a young man who works with me and who is to be married soon. He and I are great friends and though he has never asked me out I am pretty sure he cares for me by his actions. He never fails to notice me at all times and has even gone out of his way to walk home at night. Do you think he cares and is there still a chance for me? MARGIE.

MARGIE.
I wouldn't encourage him to walk home with me, if I were you. If he is to be married soon, there's no use in your borrowing trouble for yourself and the other girl. Suppose you were soon to be married, wouldn't you be hurt to death to know your fiance was paying another girl attention?

Schoolgirl: Your excessive candy consumption would undoubtedly cause the disorders of the skin of which you complain. More than that, you will be the fat girl at the party, with whom nobody wants to dance, if you don't watch out. A couple of pieces a day ought to satisfy. A pound in two days is awful!

A Puzzled Admirer.
Dear Miss Fairfax: About six months ago I was introduced to a young lady, to whom I had become greatly attached, as I know she reciprocated my affections. In order to see her it was necessary for me to call at her girl friend's house, always making my calls on her invitation.

Recently she has been ill. I thought it bold to call without invitation, and wrote her a letter, saying that I would like to call on her if she gave me permission. She answered my letter with the kindest of words, but did not answer my request to call on her.

Will you kindly advise me if I should call to see her, regardless of the invitation, as I believe it would appear as though I were staying away on my own account. Yours very truly, F. J.

You might send her some flowers or take them to her yourself, and if she can see you no doubt she will be glad to do so.

Business Integrity

At this time of the year, a glorious time of graduation festivities, wedding plans, and anniversaries of past ceremonies, the question of giving is first in one's mind.

Of especial importance is it to buy from a firm whose name has stood for the highest quality merchandise, with a prestige gained through a selling policy based on future business rather than the sale of the moment.

A dully lustrous Mahogany Clock or a Chest of Sterling or high grade plate would be exquisite gifts for the bride.
