Vases, Jardinières, Trays, Etc.

FROM the quaint, tumbled down potteries in the old country, where the art of hand work has been handed down from generation to generation, come these beautiful and unusual shapes and colors; in vases, jardinières, incense burners, card trays and numerous other small articles. As a touch of color to the den, or a novelty for the library table or desk, you can find nothing more appropriate than a piece of this antique pottery. The birthplace of this pottery is found in the remote spots of the old country, where father and mother, sister and brother work hand in hand for the love of the art itself and where the thought of bargaining for prices is farthest from their minds. As a consequence we are able to offer these pieces at remarkably low prices.
