Blamed for 'Riot' County Attorney Denies Factional Fight Over Court

House Responsible. Thedford, Neb., June 6 .- (Special.) -Denial that a factional fight, maintained since the burning of the court house, augmented by the conviction of County Treasurer Heilman, was responsible for the "riot" at Thedford last Thursday, has been made by County Attorney F. A. Reisner, said to have led the disturbance. According to Reisner, the trouble entered about County Commissioner I. C. Ewing, who he asserts was illegally appointed to his position and had blocked the work by ignoring the other two commissioners.

Reisner says that Ewing, who he laims had been placed back in ofin debt following a former term, stirred up trouble with state and School Building fice after leaving the county $7,000 county officers until citizens demanded that he be taken from the board of commissioners.

The other two commissioners refused to go into session with Ewing, Reisner states, and when Ewing refused to leave the meeting they went to the county attorney's room, asking the clerk to secure their book of proceedings and to take the minutes. When Ewing is alleged to have re-fused to give the clerk permission, the county attorney, at the orders of the two commissioners, took possession of the books with the aid of a constable.

County Attorney Reisner asserts that there were but few persons in the northeast corner of Twentieth the court house and that there was and Leavenworth streets. no violence of any kind,
