

United Textile Workers' Leader, John Golden, Dies

Illness of Several Weeks' Duration Ends Fatally for One of Best Known Labor Leaders of U. S.

New York, June 9.—John Golden, for many years president of the United Textile Workers of America, died today at his home in Brooklyn after an illness of several weeks.

He was taken ill while attending a convention of textile workers here. John Golden was to the textile union labor movement of America what John Mitchell was to the mine workers—a leader who worked his way up from the ranks. He was born in Lancashire, England, in 1863, where as a boy he began work in the cotton mills. Blacklisted, he said, because of his activity in the Mule Spinners' union, he came to the United States in 1884 and located at Fall River, Mass., where he obtained employment as a trade leader.

Head for 19 Years. It was in 1902, when Golden was treasurer of the National Mule Spinners' organization of the United States and Canada, that the convention of the United Textile Workers, in session at Lowell, Mass., elected him president to succeed James Kansey and each year for 19 successive years Golden has been returned as head of the union labor body with its 175,000 to 200,000 members.

During the textile strike of 1904 in Fall River, when 28,000 workers were out, Golden made an impassioned speech before the convention of the American Federation of Labor in San Francisco, as a result of which, it is recorded, the American Federation of Labor, for the first time in its history, levied an assessment on all its members for the support of the idle men and women textile operatives of Fall River. This precedent has since been followed by the American Federation of Labor in giving financial support to other affiliated striking trades.

Was Conservative Leader. In 1912 Golden was in charge of the textile strike involving 30,000 workers of Lowell and Lawrence, Mass.; Paterson, N. J.; and other mill centers. His conservatism was shown, it was said, on several occasions when he helped to avert walk-outs. During the Manchester, N. H., strike of 1918 he appealed for federal mediation and the result was a compromise which brought all the operatives back to work.

Golden was one of the commissioners of the American union labor movement who, led by Samuel Gompers, went to Great Britain and Italy in 1918 and by speech and pen sought to convince their overseas fellowcraft that the workers of the United States were solidly back of their government and the allies in winning the war.

Golden's home was in Fall River. He and his wife, who survives him, have 20 grandchildren.

Scottsbluff Hotel Is Purchased by Trustee

Scottsbluff, Neb., June 9.—(Special Telegram.)—F. A. Mulhinger, Omaha attorney acting for Robert Webb, trustee, bought the unfinished North hotel of Scottsbluff for $50,000 at sheriff's sale here. The building was begun and completed, save for interior fittings, by the North American Hotel company of Omaha, now bankrupt. Stockholders in the company were represented at the sale by Jesse Newton of Omaha.

It is thought that with the assurance of good title the hotel will be bought by the Methodist church, and rebuilt as a hospital for western Nebraska. The church has already pledged $100,000 and the people of Scottsbluff $50,000 for that purpose. Mr. Mulhinger said that he had several propositions for selling the hotel, but could not now say anything about any of them.

Porter Peace Plan Attacked By Democrats

Minority Report of House Committee Says Resolution Would Not Benefit Single American Citizen.

Washington, June 9.—Democratic members of the house foreign affairs committee, in a minority report on the Porter peace resolution, declared it would accomplish nothing, would not benefit an American institution or citizen and would not restore peace or help American trade with Germany.

The report declared adoption of the resolution would serve only to strengthen Germany's claim that seizure of ships and property was unlawful. "If the administration is not willing to ratify the Versailles treaty upon such reservations and upon terms and conditions as will secure for the United States and its nationals all the rights and privileges provided under the Versailles treaty," it said, "we suggest that before this resolution is passed we request the president to enter into communication with the enemy governments and negotiate treaties by which they will agree to adjust differences fairly to it, ourselves and our associates. If our enemy governments will enter into a treaty along these lines while a status of war in effect, they will not do so with the status of peace established."

Desoto Farmer Gives Up Home

Seymour Smith Follows Example of Blair Banker and Runs Away From Everything.

Blair, Neb., June 9.—Seymour Smith, 28, secretary of the Washington county farm bureau and prominent young farmer living near Desoto, has given up his home, according to a letter received by his wife. The letter says he will never return. Smith left home Monday with Solomon Hindle of Blair for Omaha, where he sold a carload of cattle. The cattle were mortgaged, but the money was sent to Blair to pay it off. It is believed that Smith is on the verge of a nervous breakdown and that domestic troubles or debts are not responsible for his act. He owned a hrother, Roland P. Smith of Desoto $1,500 and other small debts, it is alleged.

Shortly after F. H. Claridge disappeared following the failure of the Castetter bank, Smith is alleged to have remarked that he would like to run away from everything like Claridge did. Mrs. Smith was a former teacher at Bellevue college. They were married in Omaha four years ago and have a son 2 years of age. Mrs. Smith had advertised that she will sell all of their personal belongings at public sale Saturday.

Smith is a son of the late W. H. (Corn) Smith, wealthy farmer who was active in exhibiting agricultural products at county and state fairs. His mother resides in Blair.

Nebraska Gains Two Delegates

New G. O. P. Apportionment System Explained by Committeeman Howell.

Washington, June 9.—(Special Telegram.)—National Committeeman R. B. Howell of Nebraska, who has worked for a number of years to bring about a change in the representation in republican national conventions, making such representation in the way of delegates more nearly conform to the republican votes cast in a presidential year, is fairly well satisfied with the report adopted by the national committee yesterday. It was a forward step in the direction of Mr. Howell's position, and while in the nature of a compromise, the Nebraska member accepted the situation rather than precipitate an outright disagreement.

The committee on southern representation of which Mr. Howell was a member together with Slemp of Virginia, chairman, Mulvane of Kansas, Kealing of Indiana, Kinsley of Vermont, Williams of Oregon, Chairman Will Hays and Secretary Miller, held daily sessions for a week in an effort to find a common ground for affirmative action in cutting down the representation of the south in future republican conventions. But with all their efforts the report, which was unanimous on the part of the subcommittee, and was unanimously adopted by the national committee, was the best that could be done with the southern members standing like a stone wall against any reduction in their representation.

Mr. Howell said, regarding the report: "This reduction together with that of 1913, makes the total reduction from the 1912 strength about 40 per cent. Under the plan adopted Nebraska gains two additional delegates at large, in common with other states that chose republican electors in the last election. Of course, this means a gain in strength of 12 per cent for Nebraska."
