THE OMAHA BEE DAILY (MORNING) - EVENING-SUNDAY

THE BEE PUBLISHING COMPANY NELSON B. UPDIKE, Publisher.

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS de Associated Press, of which The Hee is a member, is en-dry entitled to the use for publication of all news dispatched d to it or not otherwise credited in this paper, and also the news published herein. All rights of publication of our special thes are also reserved.

BEE TELEPHONES sch Exchange Ask for AT lantic 1000 For Night Calls After 10 p. m.: OFFICES OF THE BEE atn Officet 17th and Farnam 15 Scott St. | South Side, 4935 Out-of-Town Offices: Steper Bidg. | Paris. France. 420 Rue St. Honory

The Bee's Platform

- 1. New Union Passenger Station.
- 2. Continued improvement of the Nebraska Highways, including the pave-ment of Main Thoroughfares leading into Omaha with a Brick Surface.
- 3. A short, low-rate Waterway from the Corn Belt to the Atlantic Ocean.
- Home Rule Charter for Omaha, with City Manager form of Government.

Diplomacy of the Old Sort.

No entangling alliances such as the one between Japan and Great Britain, whose renewal is now being discussed, has ever been made by the United States. Distrusted for ourselves they are equally so when between others. Premier Meigen of Canada has done a friendly service to America in protesting against the extension of this treaty and his claim that special agreements of this sort are antagonistic to the spirit of the times and the movement for world peace and disarmament calls attention to the world-wide influence of this single diplomatic maneuver.

That the spirit of the League of Nations is violated by such a regional agreement is a matter seemingly of no moment. A characterless document, where its provisions are distasteful to the great powers, they are violated at will. It is not to be doubted that Japan expects some very real gain from an alliance with England-a gain at the expense of the open door in the Orient, giving a monopoly in the development and exploitation of vast areas of Asia. Exclusive commercial and perhaps political control of Eastern Siberia, where American concerns have recently secured valuable concessions is considered to be one of Japan's aims. Under the old diplomacy which still controls world affairs it is not inconceivable that England would be committed to defense of Japanese aggression in the far east in return for guarantees concerning India and Australia.

Meanwhile American negotiations with Japan over Yap, immigration, alien land restrictions and the question of Shantung, which seems to have crept in no one can say how, are said to be progressing toward settlement. It would indeed be regrettable if at the same time new international suspicious and jealousies should he roused by the signing of an Anglo-Japanese treaty drawn according to the political and economic principles (or lack of principles) that the common people of the world had hoped to see done away with after the war.

Let the Children Play.

Like the old woman who lived in a shoe, Omaha has so many children it doesn't know what to do. The proposal of the Board of Publie Welfare for the leasing of land for public playground purposes between Cuming and Lake and Thirtieth and Sixteenth streets is a move toward solution of the vexing problem of keeping the youngsters off the streets and out of the range of automobile accidents.

School lets out this week, and some other outlet for the high spirits of the children than that afforded by neighborhood gangs should be provided in every populous district. Sooner or later the city will have to come to the purchase instead of lease of such breathing spots. And it is not enough to provide a vacant lot with swings, sand piles, slides and other playground equipment, turning the young spirits loose to follow whatever wild inclination comes into their heads. Such supervised play as Omalia now has should be extended. Supervised play has a forbidding sound, but it is a source of unsuspected pleasure to the children, teaching them new games, instilling a respect for fair dealing, protecting the smaller tots from the natural dictation of the older ones and assuring the full utilization of the public recreational facilities. Assuredly Omaha should have more play spots for the children, and they should be put under the charge, not of policemen, but of young women who not only love children but know what is good for them and how to direct their efforts to the best ends.

Ready for Another World's Fair.

Philadelphia, scene of the Centennial exposition of 1876, wants to hold another world's fair in 1926, in celebration of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. It might indeed be a good thing thus to bring the nations of the world together in an exhibition of their industrial arts, in meetings of scientists, philosophers, educators and engineers, and in the exchange of thoughts and experiences.

Relieved of slavery and sectionalism, America was entering a new epoch when the exposition 1876 was held, just as now the whole world seems to have reached another turning point, The Centennial brought together several million people of this country at a time when travel was not a common thing, to see displayed the wonders of invention, the resources of the various states and the remarkable exhibits of foregn nations. From the educational and art exhibits of Belgium was carried away new ideas of sanitary school surroundings, from Germany and Switzerland came the idea of manual training, and the rapid spread of the kindergarten method also is attributed to the model schools at the fair.

The wonders and beauties of art, architecture and invention as seen in Philadelphia encouraged progress along these lines. The attention of foreign visitors was attracted to the commercial possibilities of America and an increased export trade dated from this event, among the discoveries being oleomargarine and corn, up until that time little known abroad.

In matters both material and spiritual there is opportunity for a drawing closer of the people of the United States and those of the rest of the world. The occasion of the sesqui-centennial of the Declaration of Independence, a document whose high idealism has not even yet been realized to the full, could most fittingly be chosen for a world reunion.

Disappointing the Democrats.

No one grudges Senator Harrison of Mississlppi or the rest of his democratic colleagues the opportunity to play a little harmless politics. This is part of the game and is indufged in on occasions by members of both parties. The Harding administration has been in power only fifteen weeks, and congress has been in session two months, but although the processes of government do not move as swiftly as do those of private business, it may be time for an ac-

The aggressive way in which the cabinet has taken hold of affairs has made a better impression than has the record of congress. If one wished to be as partisan as Senator Harrison one might account for this fact by saying that there are no democrats in the cabinet, as there are in the legislative branch. Economy has been kept to the front by this executive body and in addition to the prompt and efficient handling of routine matters, a general reorganization of the departments, with the gradual weeding out of surplus federal employes has been put well under

The passage of the budget bill, the emergency farm tariff act and the restriction of immigration by congress comprises the principal accomplishments of congress. The reorganization commission which started its work this week represents a real effort toward reform and economy in the transaction of federal business. One would be ill-advised indeed to censure congress for its delay in accepting the army and navy appropriation bills without thorough discussion, and the taunts of the democrats on the slow movement of tariff revision are patently insintere and would be harmful if accepted as if they were really

In the judgment of many observers a mistake was made in deciding to consider tariff measures before bringing up the subject of revision in the tax system. The desire of President Harthis postponement, but from dislike of appearing to dictate to congress he did not use his influence Although the practice of driving congress has been overdone, the time may come when President Harding will have to crack the executive Landis—Comet or Planet?

Kenesaw Mountain Landis, federal judge, base ball autocrat, labor war arbiter and other things too numerous to mention, continues to be paradox of American public life.

Landis drew a storm of criticism when he accepted a salary of $42,500 a year as supreme umpire of base balldom while continuing to serve as federal judge at $7,500 a year. He was the target for further attack when he turned loose a youth who confessed to bank thievery simply because he thought he "deserved another chance." Congress debated his impeachment. Landis went right ahead. It was not the first time he had been attacked in such fashion.

Other men would have succumbed to such assaults, insofar as their official career was concerned. Others would have lost public confidence. Not so with Landis. The public would to serve two masters as did Landis, apparently approved Landis' course. Both sides to a bitter war between labor and capital turn to him for a solution of their difficulties. They have fought for two years. Many another avenue of settlement has been tried and failed. Now they turn to Landis. "Let Landis decide; we will accept his decision," they say. And 25,000 men go back to work without knowing what that decision will be, because Landis makes that a condition of his tackling the problem.

There is still a question as to whether Landis is warranted in all that he docs. For him it may do. But one may wonder as to the effect upon others who may try to imitate him. One may question whether, in the final analysis, it is well for a judge, even a Landis, to defy so many of the principles which are accepted as proper ones for men in his position to follow. What is the effect upon others? Every man cannot be a law unto himself.

But meanwhile Landis is serenely confident of the good will of a great mass of the people, knowing with reason that they believe in his integrity and ability. And so, Landis continues to be-

A Tug at the Heartstrings.

Don't forget the babies!

No matter how critical the famine in China or Armenia, no matter how serious the plight of the unemployed in this country, no matter what the demands of charity for other purposesgreater than any other is the call of the little child. The babe is helpless of itself, utterly so. Yet a very little will help it. Every such little mite has the making of a noble man or woman in its being. Yet that fine destiny may be ruined forever by death or crippling illness in the first few months of its life.

The Bee's milk and ice fund deserves the aid of every reader of this newspaper. Every penny contributed buys milk and ice to sustain some little child. Not a cent is spent for "overhead." Every dollar given means a dollar's worth of milk or a dollar's worth of ice placed where it is needed most. The distribution is under the control of the Visiting Nurses, whose efficient and wise management is unquestioned.

Don't forget these little ones at home. Give what you can and give it now.

Turk and Greek are reported to be seeking arbitration of their dispute, but it might have been more satisfactory all around to have tried peaceful means before going to war. Instead of seeking to put the question before Secretary of State Hughes, why don't they take it to the League of Nations, about which so much used to be heard?

Iowa and the nation suffer a real loss through the resignation of Representative James W. Good from congress. His understanding of the fianances of the government and his interest in retrenchment made him an ideal chairman of the appropriations committee.

It may be difficult to live on $400 a month but there are a lot of brave souls who would like to volunteer to make the effort.

The Greeks are announcing an offensive against the Turks, but the whole squabble is offensive to the rest of the world,

Saving Civilization

Warning of Noted Britons Said to Ignore Individual From the Villager.

Recently in the Manchester Guardian there appeared a letter pleading that all good men pause and take thought for the safety of civiliza-The letter bore signatures known even outside England; Frances Balfour, Hugh Bell Buckmaster, the canon of Westminster, Dr. L. P. Jacks. With great earnestness, these men and women call attention to the present state of the world; riven with faction, nations antagonistic, classes at each other's throats, individuals hazarding principles and people for their political places or for their pocketbooks-indeed, it would seem that all the ideals we have painfully raised up through the centuries are falling, and that civilization itself is on the wane.

It is becoming increasingly evident, these leaders and teachers avow, that somewhere "the world has taken a wrong turn." As to what that wrong turn may be, they are not explcit. But they think they know the right turn. "It is only by maintaining the highest possible standard of right between nations, between classes, and between individuals that the present situa-tion can be adjusted and the dangers overcome. So long as each nation, through its statesmen, considers exclusively its own interests, and refuses to consider the common welfare of all nations, the dangers cannot be overcome. Nor can they be overcome while every one is seeking to benefit himself at the expense of the community, instead of rendering to the community the best service he is capable of performing. . . When statesmen and citizens, employers and employed, acknowledge joint responsibility and decide to stand for the right even when it is apparently against their interests as well as when it favors them, only then can the spiritual and moral health of the nations be renewed, progress be resumed, and the general economic well-being be once more established."

Does it sound true to you? Do you agree with it? Do you applaud it? Do you, too, believe that if Japan would do to China as it would be done by, if the leaders of Poland and Germany would be scrupulously just, if Mr. Gary would do what is right by the workers and Mr. Gompers respect the feelings of capital, if all the politicians would conceive a desire to serve the world first and best, and all the rest of us would suddenly love our neighbor even ding appears to have been directly contrary to half as well as we love ourselves, do you believe that thus the enervating conflict which rages over the globe would subside and civilization be saved-do you, too, believe that? We do not. Indeed, we think the letter of the preachers and teachers and serious thinkers of England is itself as strong evidence as we need look for to know, not only that the world has taken a wrong turn, but that it is keeping on down the mistaken way.

In that letter it is admitted that each one of us is seeking to shift the blame for all our difficulties to the next man's shoulders; people reproaches people, class denounces class, individual points to another individual. do these letter writers themselves? Is it themselves they are criticizing? Will any of those who read the letter be compelled to search their own hearts? Will the effect of it not be that those who read will be further encouraged to denounce the unjust deeds which are being perpetrated throughout the world and demand tice and harmony and beauty and fair play? But who will admit he is unjust? Where will the complaint find lodging if none of us is ready to receive it? The court must have a defendant; we cannot all be judge and prosecution.

We have here this letter signed by the canon of Westminster, signed, too, by the editor of the most important theological and ethical magazine of the Christian world. In the whole course of that letter God finds no place. In every line of that letter man's duty to man is stressed, but there is no line which suggests that man has a have condemned another, which would have duty to God. We do not speak as a pious perquestioned the motive of another if he undertook son would, missing merely the name of God from a sober document intending reform. It is the sense of God we think of; you may call it by any name you please, but we mean that part of man's relation on which he must concentrate his best endeavor before he can expect his relation to his fellow-men to be anything but ugly. Stop injustice! you cry. How will you do it? Few men think themselves unjust; it is always the other man who is unjust, and always the other man is at a loss to find it so; always he can produce what he thinks is justification-the word itself is significant. Tell a man that he s not wise, that he does not know the facts, that he has a restricted vision, that he does not grasp the truth, that he has no eyes for beauty, and he will acknowledge these deficiencies with a mock ruefulness which lets you know they do not matter; tell him he is unjust, and he will flare into indignation; it seems never to occur to him that he must make good all the deficiencies he has above confessed to before he can be just; he thinks all that matters is his good will; it follows automatically that he serves his fellow-men well.

"Render to the community the best service he is capable of performing." When shall we cease this dodging of our responsibility, the responsi-bility of making ourselves worthy members of a community? When shall we cease the flattering business of considering "the common welfare," and look each one within? This age has been possessed of a mania for thinking in terms of the common welfare and in terms of the community; when shall it come to its senses in the recognition that the community is made up of individuals, and that none serves his fellows who has not 3rst served himself, none lifts others to truth and understanding and the right way who has not labored and struggled and studied and patiently sought the right way? Is truth so easy to come by? You would think we were all born with it like a golden spoon in our mouths, so ready are we to dispense it to our fellows. Is our sense of values so accurate? It would seem we thought this, so sure are we, from the day of college graduation on, that we can "serve mankind." The world will sicken and civilization die unless beauty and rightness are its daily bread. But shall we arrive at beauty and rightness by denouncing ugliness and viciousness? It is no such easy task; it is a constant labor.

O let us turn from this lazy delusion, these self-satisfactions! Man's relation to his fellows is a secondary consideration. There is a whole world of things which must come first, which have nothing to do with man's relation to man, which would be were there but one man on this sorry earth; there is a world of beauty, a world of science, a world of law and government even, for these derive from a higher law and from the pattern of a perfect city laid up in heaven. Are my eyes open to these high things, is my spirit led up to them? O let us ask ourselves these questions, let us ascertain where we would stand before truth and beauty before we settle where we stand with our fellow-men! "All the ways of a man are clean in his own eyes, but Jehovah weigheth the spirits."

That's When!

Senator Penrose's plan to transfer the en-forcement of the prohibitory act to the Depart-ment of Justice ranks well with the other fiddlefaddle of the day. The prohibitory act will be enforced when the people of this country, speaking through a majority of its voters, demand its enforcement.—Jay E. House in Philadelphia

What's Your Guess?

Who knows? Perhaps Susie May Wade of Wartrace, Tenn., has an old-fashioned mother, who tells her to hang her clothes on a hickory limb.—Schenectady Union-Star.

Who remembers when a regular patron at the barber shop used to get a ticket good for eight snaves for a dollar?

"It is sweet to suffer," opines an ancient philosopher-having reference, no doubt, to the small boy who gets a toothache eating candy.

The Boe's A

Omaha, June 15 .- To the Editor f The Bee: All men are human and make mistakes and may be forgiven but that speech of Sims' certainly cannot be classed as a for-givable mistake.

themselves into the machinery of the mac being spread in the United States and the real Americans will not be your baby is to nurse it. Seven botfooled by it. Ask any ex-service man about this question and see how the British were favored over there. American statesmen should have real American patriotism in their hearts when they travel. their hearts when they travel We real Americans toady to no country and will not stand er be sponged with cool water once for any man or faction representing or twice daily. us, to misrepresent us at foreign The Chiropractic Dispute.

I would be pleased to have you kindly make mention of this mis-statement, as it looks bad in print and is not true. And furthermore, many chiropractor graduates of other schools and also of the Palmer school are standing with the old association for the protection of the people and the upholding of the law.

H. C. CRABTREE.

M. D. D. C. Ph. C.

Jewel, Flower. Color Symbols for Today

Today's talismanic gem, the most agate, is said to be the luckiest stone than a woman can wear. The ancients believed that it would bring her her heart's desire, making it impossible for anyone to refuse her anything. They also attributed to it the power to cure insanity. The natal stone for today is the its deep green color is said to bring to those who wear it the power to succeed in physical or mental contests. Marbodis claimed that it would vanish laziness. Red, the symbol of bravery and strength, is today's color; it is especially lucky for those lacking initiative, Today's flower is the rose; it brings happiness and wealth to its Copyright, 1921, Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

Latest Vocation for a Woman. Wilmington, O., has a girl fire truck driver who answers all calls promptly with the other firemen.-Dearborn Independent.

The poorest class of cftizens taken as a whole are the Anglo-Americans, those claiming Great Britain their fatherland. The Irish, Germans, Italians, Jews, etc., can mold themselves into the machinery of themselves into the machinery of the country—profit by and enjoy dren is to nurse them during the first year.

Seems to Have Symptoms.

Mrs. J. writes: "1. The physicians say my husband has angina. Will you please tell me something of the symptoms of this complaint? He has been sueffring with pains in the chest and left arm for over a Lincoln, Neb., June 15.—To the Editor of The Bee: In reading your by. All nipples and bottles should article on the chiropractic "split" of be cleaned and boiled once a day. article on the chiropractic "split" of teday I notice that Mrs. L. W. Edwards is quoted as saying that our graduates were not compelled to Do not feed the baby oftener than wish that you would correct. The department of public welfare was conducting examinations in the Castle hotel on the 13 and 14, and our school graduate was taking the examination along with one gradu-ate of the Palmer school, Mrs. John Speedie, wife of the deputy state superintendent of public instruction, was a graduate from our college and you can find her as registered at the hotel on the 12, 13 and 14, and can call the state house here, ask for Mr. Antels and he will advise you of the exactness of this statement. You will also notice that one student could get the three-year course of If one can get it, why cannot all others who wish also get it? Looks funny.

By MILDRED MARSHALL.

Colorado-

Nature's Playground

and Man's

TY/HERE else does Nature seem so

-so keen on giving you a good time?

Where else do wild animals and wild flowers seem to exhibit such joy of living?

Where such inspiriting air-dry and crystal clear-skies so blue-such illimitable vistas of beauty-such an array of wonders on peak or glacier, in valley or canyon-such opportunity to fill every hour with great

And where else can youso fully enjoy horseback riding, hiking, fishing, motoring, golf,

And reached between daylight and dark!

Visit Rocky Mountain National (Estes) Park. See

Denver and her charming mountain parks on the way. Then go on to Salt Lake City and Yellow-

Three trains Omaha to Denver; four to Salt Lake

Low Summer Fares now in effect. Let us plan your trip.

Illustrated booklets "Colorado's Mountain Playgrounds" or "Rocky Mountain National (Estes) Park" free on request.

For information ask-

Union Depot, Consolidated Ticket Office, or A. K. Curts, City Pass. Agent, U. P. System 1416 Dodge Street Omahs

Union Pacific

City. Through sleeping cars to Yellowstone.

experiences?

tennis or dancing?

stone National Park.

W like a pal—so intimate and friendly

By the Picturesque St. Lawrence River Route

MAKE RESERVATIONS NOW Sailings Every, Few Days Montreal and Quebec

Liverpool, Southampton, Glasgow, Havre, Antwerp

Ocean Trip Shortened by Two Delightful Days on The Sheltered River and Gulf

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY
Traffic Agents

How to Keep Well

HOW TO KEEP THE BABY

WELL. I have cribbed this story from the annual report of the Chicago Infant listen to an Englishman say, "You Americans do this," and "You Americans do that." They hold themselves out America has had two wars with say cries between feedings give it some boiled water. The baby should have only one feeding between 6 p. m. and 6 a. m.

The best and left arm for over a year. Is this complaint fatal? If so, how long may one hope to live? "2. I also have a friend who has some boiled water. The baby should have only one feeding between 6 p. m. and 6 a. m.

The best and left arm for over a year. Is this complaint fatal? If so, how long may one hope to live? "2. I also have a friend who has some boiled water. The baby should have only one feeding between 6 p. m. and 6 a. m.

The best and left arm for over a year. Is this complaint fatal? If so, how long may one hope to live? "2. I also have a friend who has some boiled water. The baby should have only one feeding between 6 p. m. and 6 a. m.

The best and left arm for over a year. Is this complaint fatal? If so, how long may one hope to live? "2. I also have a friend who has some boiled water. The baby should have only one feedings give it some boiled water. The baby should have only one feedings between 6 p. m. and 6 a. m.

The best and left arm for over a year. Is this complaint fatal? If so, how long may one hope to live? "2. I also have a friend who has some boiled water. The baby should have only one feedings between 6 p. m. and 6 a. m.

The baby must have a tub bath every day and in very warm weath-Keep your milk bottles in the ice box or in cold water. Use a fresh bottle for each feeding. Do not pour the milk into another bottle.

Keep the nipples dry in a clean graduates were not compelled to take the state examinations; this I every four hours. The stomach must wish that you would correct. The have a chance to rest or the baby nave a chance to rest or the baby will get sick. An overfed baby is usually an irritable, crying baby.

A normal baby sleeps from 18 to 20 hours a day. The more fresh air and sunshine the baby gets the better it will sleep. Keep the windows open all day and all night, except during the heat of the midday sun during the heat of the midday sun. Screen your windows and as flies are carriers of disease. Many cases of summer diarrhoea are due to germs carried by flies. Keep de-caying vegetables and fruits covered.

Gerbage attracts flies. If the baby has diarrhoea stop all food, give only boiled water, and see your doctor immediately.

Do not wash out the baby's mouth. The Infant Welfare society helps to keep the babies of Chicago healthy just as similar societies in most cities aid the mothers and the health departments of thier cities. They hope, working with the mothers and the health departments, finally to get the sickness rate down to the New Zealand level—the mark at which we all are aiming.

Now about one-ninth of the babies die before reaching 1 year of age. In olden times it was one-fifth. less than one-twentileth. We might make the one-twentleth mark this year, since the first five months have been so healthy, if each mother would watch over her baby as carefully as the government watched over the soldiers during the world war. During the hot months that

Apply to Agents Everywhere or to S. Elworthy, Gen. Agt., Pass. Dept. 40 North Dearborn St., Chicago

Copyright, 1921, by Dr. W. A. Evans which must be watched is the con-dition of the bowels. It is neglect of June diarrhoeas which causes deaths in July and August.

get well at times, then worse. She has had no special treatment. She is very careless about herself. But now she has decided to go west, as she is scarcely able to be up. Do you think it too late?

"3. What is the usual length of time one may expect to last with

 The most prominent symptoms of angina are pain behind the breast bone, shooting down the left arm, and a sense of uneasiness. In true angina the prognosis is bad. Guessing as to length of life is a profit less gamble.

2. Yes. A careless consumptive who has neglected herself for over two years will get no benefit from going west or from anything else Having filled in her own death cer-tificate, nothing remains but for someone to date and sign it.

L.V. NICHOLAS OIL COMPANY

3. Guessing on this subject is Cousin Riddles Made Easy. P. Y. writes: "Would a child of my father's cousin be my second cousin? What kind of cousin would my father's cousin be to me?"

REFLY.

1. Yes. 2. First cousin once removed. The law does not prohibit the marrying of each. Thank me for guessing.

Gulbransen Player-Piano

Instruction rolls included! Learn how to play in 10 minutes! Without musical knowledge you can learn how to play a Gulbransen Player-Piano

Made in three models. White House model,

County Seat model, $600. Suburban model, $495. Either in mahogany, walnut or oak.

Terms if Desired

A. Kospe Co.

PIANO PRICES REDUCED

In This Great Sale from $200 to $300 Think of It!

And Hospe Set the Readjustment Pace.

This brings our piano prices down to a lower level than we have experienced in years. It is truly the most remarkable readjustment of prices in the history of our business. And Remember—

Every piano and player sold during our sale has a Hospe

New Meldorf Player Piano

Finished in fancy figured double veneer oak, mahogany or wainut (dull or polished) five-point motor, brass trimmings, full metal plate, transposing key device and natural expression. In fact, all that goes to make up a fine No. 1 player at the special reduced price of—

$395

Out-of-Town Customers Who cannot get in to attend this wonderful sale need only to mention the make and finish desired and our plane experts will select the instrument and guarantee satisfaction. The fact that it comes from Hospe's is an assurance of satisfaction.

Will you please send to the address below full particulars of Meldorf Player, Dunbar Piano:

Our convenient terms are sure to please you. A small deposit will hold your instrument until you are in a position to take it.

