Tells of Fight Representation

R. B. Howell, Back From Capital, Says Reduction Made by Committeemen Totals 40 Per Cent.

R. B. Howell, republican national committeeman for Nebraska, returned yesterday from Washington and dictated the following statement on his mission to the national capi-

Of course in the case of my recent visit, the meeting of the subcommittee on southern representation of the national committee consumed a full be engaged to Charles Chaplin. week. The results in this case, while not all that I could wish, were of a parts in several recent releases by distinctly progressive nature. The Goldwn. fight to reduce southern representation began as the result of the convention of 1912 and in 1913 I served of his "hit and run" escapades. . . on the subcommittee that brought about a reduction at that time of something over 22 per cent. This reduction, together with that of the national committee last week, makes a total of 40 per cent reduction in a relative way of southern delegations conventions as compared with

Reduction of Seven.

"The actual reduction made last week was seven in the case of South Carolina, reducing its representation to four in the next convention. This state cast but 2,240 votes for Harding in the last election. Were the other republicans of the country represented in the next convention in the same proportion, there would be 150,000 delegates in all.

"The delegation from Mississippi was reduced from 12 to 4, the state having cast 10,000 votes for Harding in the last election; in other words, the basis of representation in the last convention, with 10,000 republican votes in Mississippi-a state that was hopelessly democratic—would have equalled the influence of the 300,000 republicans in Michi-

"On the same basis of representathe republicans in Nebraska could fill every seat in the next national convention and then have 200 delegates waiting outside.

Cut From 17 to 10.

"Georgia was also reduced from 17 to 10. However, the great gain was made in finally breaking away from the theory that each congressional district was entitled to one wote, whether it cast any republican Man Walking Out votes or not. It has been this theory that has been the stumbling block in the past and I think now it is finally relegated to the scrap heap.

'It seemed to be the view of some the negro vote in the south. As a matter of fact, it was the so-called lily-whites that were chiefly making the fight to maintain representation southern states.

Mob Fury and Race Hatred a National Danger

"There is one problem in American life for which I forsee no solution. It is the race problem, the negro question." These words of Grover Cleveland are recalled by the Louisville Courier-Journal in its editorial discussion of the sudden and appalling flareup of mob fury and race hatred in Tulsa. In this Oklahoma city, which according to one of its journals "has the highest per-capita wealth of any city in the world," the rumor that a colored boy was to be lynched brought a crowd of armed negroes to the jail to prevent it. With the white mob and the black confronting one another, somebody fired a shot, and the result was a pitched battle with scores of casualties, the burning of the city's negro section, and the addition, as the New York Evening Post remarks of "a ghastly chapter to the record of national disgrace."

THE LITERARY DIGEST, in this week's issue dated June 18th, presents the editorial opinions of newspapers, including the negro press, published in all sections of the country upon the Oklahoma riot. It shows the causes that animate such outbreaks, the remedies suggested to prevent them, and the effect that the reports of them have in the eyes of foreign nations.
