MOVIES

"Every woman knows that, John. It's the one joke that every wife has on her husband. The one thing she daren't let him know," cries Lois Wilson portraying the role of Maggie Wylie in "What Every Woman Knows," at the Strand theater this week.

Conrad Nagel has the part of John Schand, an aspirant to political honors.

This play was immortalized on the stage by Maude Adams.

Downtown Programs.

Sun—"Skirts."
Rialto—"Beau Revel" and "The Kid."
Strand—"What Every Woman Knows."
Moon—Priscilla Dean in "Reputation."
Empress—Alice Brady in "The New York Idea."
Muse—"The Education of Elizabeth."

Neighborhood Houses.

Grand—Wesley Barry in "Bob Hampton of Placer."
Hamilton—Catherine Calvert in "The Heart of Maryland."

When Jackie Coogan returned to his Los Angeles home after having spent two months in New York City, hundreds greeted him at the depot. Perchance the most excited soul was that within the body of "Tar Baby," Jackie's dog pal in "Peck's Bad Boy." "Tar Baby's" short and stubby tail just nearly wagged itself off as his little master fondly stroked his shiny black back.

Ethel Claytons next picture will be an adaptation of Mark Swan's comedy, "Her Own Money."

"Should a Man Marry?" is the picture on which Fatty Arbuckle has begun at the Lasky studio.

Jack Holt, Lila Lee and Charles Ogle have been selected for important roles in William DeMille's next production.

Romance in Origin Of Superstitions

By IRVING KING.

Apron Strings.

"If your apron string becomes loosened your true love is thinking about you," is a common superstition with unmarried young women.

This arises from the idea of the ancients of the magical power of knots to trammel and obstruct human activities, physical and spiritual. In matters of love and marriage knots obstruct the relations between a bride and groom and to act as obstacles to the course of true love.

Professor Frazer says that as lately as 1718 "the parliament at Bordeaux sentenced a person to be burned alive for having spread desolation through a whole family by means of knotted cords," and cites a case in Scotland in 1705 where two persons were sentenced to death "for stealing charmed knots in order, thereby, to mar the wedded happiness of Spalding of Ashintilly." These magic knots, you see, had to be found and untied in order that their baleful effects might cease and the two persons who stole and secreted them had thus prevented the untieing.

Now the knot which holds your apron string may be a charmed knot, obstructing the thoughts of love. If it comes untied of itself your lover's thoughts flow to you free and unobstructed.

Far back in early classic days examples of this superstition of obstructive knots is found and it prevails today among nearly all the savage tribes of Africa. It is primitive in its origin and based on homeopathic magic—"like produces like."

Parents' Problems

Should day-dreaming on the part of children be discouraged?

On the contrary, day-dreaming on the part of children should be encouraged. One of the most precious prerogatives of childhood is to make-believe. Naturally, parents should supply a balance wheel in the form of practical regular duties and the safeguard of companionship with other children.

AT THE THEATERS

"Toy Fantasies," the stellar act of the Empress show, is a novelty of unusual merit and a new departure in vaudeville. It is presented by a company of excellent singers, dancers and clever pantomimists, who appear in some toy character in an especially written number. The act is particularly pleasing to the kiddies. An outstanding feature of the show is the vocal act presented by Rottack and Miller, who offer a study in harmony singing, yodeling and comedy. Their double song numbers are ideally harmonizing and their selective songs make their act stand out as a gem of vocalism.

Continue Drive Against State Tax Slackers

Commissioner Osborne Requests Copies of Minutes of County Boards in Exposing Wealthy Tax Dodgers.

Lincoln, June 20.—(Special.)—The state administration continued its drive against Nebraska tax slackers today when W. H. Osborne, state tax commissioner, in open letters to county clerks asked for typewritten copies of the minutes of meetings of county commissioners.

This, Osborne explained, is for the purpose of ascertaining the work done by commissioners as equalization boards on taxation questions and in order to give the state department an opportunity to ascertain if local politics is playing any part in the assessments levied by county boards on certain persons.

Osborne Has Power.

Senate File 65, the taxation bill which the democrats and corporation lobbyists fought so bitterly during the last legislative session, gives Osborne the power to demand reassessments of properties in counties if he thinks it necessary and the receipt of the transactions of the commissioners will be one of the methods used in ascertaining whether the county boards are playing favorites.

The energy of the administration since the legislative session in cutting loose from old precedents in an endeavor to get at the real valuation of big properties in order to ultimately lighten the burden to the small property owner is making old-time politicians in Nebraska's old-time state house rub their eyes.

First, Osborne wrote letters to county clerks advising the publication of tax rolls. A surprising number of clerks have followed his advice, and, as a result, the rich man who is paying less taxes than the relatively poor man is suffering no end of embarrassment in his home town. From reports received at the state house some of the revelations in the publication of tax rolls in some of Nebraska's counties will, unless remedied by rich tax dodgers next year, result in court action and unprecedented political upheavals which will cause the politicians responsible for the conditions revealed in publication of tax rolls to retire to private life under fire.

Attacks Refineries.

Next, Osborne went out to the western part of the state and investigated the big sugar refineries. At the last legislative session it was charged that some of these refineries were dodging taxes. Osborne came back to Lincoln with facts and figures in his possession which, it is claimed, will force these refineries to double and triple their assessments paid to the state.

On Saturday Osborne, backed by Attorney General C. A. Davis, wrote letters to county assessors ordering a stop on the exemption of certain educational institutions from taxation. These institutions for years, Osborne stated, have refused to pay taxes, taking advantage of a law which, the colleges interpreted, exempted all educational institutions.

Wife of Conductor Hurt In Wreck Goes to Husband

Worried over conflicting reports as to the extent of her husband's injuries, Mrs. H. H. Fickbohm, 2532 North Sixty-fourth street, wife of the Pullman conductor injured in the Crawford wreck last week, left Saturday for Hot Springs, S. D., where he is in the hospital.

No word has been received from her by Omaha friends since her arrival there.

She will remain until her husband is able to come home, she stated before her departure.

City Dads Told Movable Ice Stations Ruining Pavement

William L. Randall, attorney, told city commissioners yesterday that movable ice stations used by the city to distribute ice were not only ruining pavement, but blocking traffic. He declared they were allowed on streets from noon until the next morning and that due to their great weight they sank to great depth in the heated asphalt pavement.

City Commissioner Hopkins said he had received other similar complaints and that he would take
