Unions Opposed To Industrial Equality Plan

Equal Rights to Women and Negroes Provided for in Amendment of A. F. of L. Voted Down.

Denver, June 24 .- The convention of the American Federation of Labor today voted down a constitutional amendment designed to give women 'equal rights and privileges of membership in the union of their trade or industry." All affiliated unions, however, were urged not to discriminate against the woman wage earner and admit her to membership

Efforts to wipe out the "color line" in organized labor organizations also The convention took the stand that national and international anions could not be compelled to recognize negro workers and that this was a matter to be adjusted by conference between the negro wage earners and the various organiza-

Both questions were the subject of long and stormy debates, in which discrimination by certain unions igainst the negro and woman wage tarners was bitterly denounced.

The committee's report rejecting the constitutional amendment to give women "industrial equality" defended the federation's stand on women in industry and cited efforts to get better wages and working conditions or them. It declared that only a "few unions" were discriminating against women and for that reason disapproved the amendment and urged that "those international and national organizations which do not admit women to membership give early consideration for such admis-

Speak for Women.

Equal rights for women in industry was voiced by delegates from the cigarmakers' and the laundry workers' union, who declared "if a woman does a man's work she should receive a man's pay." All declared that organized labor should protect the woman wage earners.

W. D. Mahon, president of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes, declared that his organization would not allow the federation to dictate to it in the matter of woman's labor. He said he was in favor of protection for woman workers, but he did not believe that the "back platform of a street car was the place for a woman."

The defeated constitutional amendment would have provided for the issuance of a separate charter by the federation to a woman's local without the consent of the union having jurisdiction over the particular trade

Negro Not Recognized. The negro question arose on the report of the committee on laws which disapproved a resolution calling for the suspension of unions that discriminated against negro workers. The committee, however, was upheld by overwhelming voter

Replying to a question from the or as to whether it was possible to force any affiliated union to wipe out the "color line," President Samuel Gompers said:

"The American Federation of Labor has previously declared that it is the duty of all workers to organfze, regardless of sex, nationality, race, political belief or color.

The federation, however, cannot force this view upon individual or affiliated unions without their con-

Jordan W. Chambers, negro delegate of the railway coach cleaners of St. Louis, declaring that conferences between members of his race and the unions had been ordered at previous conventions, but never had been held, urged drastic action to compel recognition of the negro workers.

Vote Wheeling Aid.

Union labor organizations of Wheeling, W. Va., were voted assistance of the federation in fighting a court injunction served on them vesterday and for which a hearing has been set for tomorrow morning. A telegram read to the convention said none of the attorneys of Wheeling would consent to represent the unions in their court action. The telegram said that an employers' organization had obtained an injunction restraining virtually all trades unions of Wheeling from holding any meetings, congregating on the streets, in public meeting places or in rooming houses because of a building trades strike now in progress. The unions, members, employes and officers were also enjoined from interfering with any member of the employing organization, its patrons or prospective payons, the telegram said.
