

American Heiress Object of Search Of French Police

Beneficiary of Texan, Wife of British Aviator, Disappears
From Maternity Hospital
With Her Babe.

Paris, June 24.—The French secret police and private detective agencies are ransacking France seeking the whereabouts of Frances Quinn Bellaris, wife of a British aviator, and said to be heiress of several million dollars, who disappeared with her 3 weeks old baby from a maternity hospital at Neuilly last Monday morning.

Accuses Mother-in-Law.
Bellaris believes his mother-in-law has estranged his wife because Mrs. Bellaris' grandfather, named Woodfin, a millionaire plantation owner living at Lago, Wharton county Texas, is said to have made a will leaving his entire fortune to his granddaughter, Bellaris alleged his bride's mother, Mrs. Quinn, seeks to break this will, as it cuts her off.

Engages Beauvais.
He was a frank, sturdy, genial person, this young guide. He could speak to her in a kind of Canadian French which was a perpetual amusement to her. The Americans at the St. Maurice club recommended him as the best guide to accompany her on the river.

Mother Is Reticent.
New York, June 24.—Mrs. Florence Quinn, mother of the missing heiress, at her home, 36 West 59th street, declared that she had no knowledge of the disappearance of her daughter, Mrs. Bellaris, from a hospital in Paris, but did not indicate any particular surprise.

Farmer Arrested.
Beatrice, Neb., June 24.—(Special.) Deputy State Sheriff Fulton arrested a Bohemian farmer named Turlek near Milligan, Neb., 16 gallons of mash being found on his place. His hearing will be held at Wilber.

Mrs. Stillman, Seeking Quiet in Canadian Wilds, Meets Beauvais

(This is the seventh of a series of articles telling Mrs. Stillman's own story. They will appear exclusively in The Bee. The eighth article will be published Sunday in both morning and evening editions. Copyright, 1921, by Daily News, New York.)

In a remote and heavily wooded corner of the province of Quebec, Canada, where the St. Maurice river is the only highway of traffic, Fifi Potter Stillman went to find rest and quiet in the spring of 1916.

Proofs Impossible.
It will be thoroughly impossible for Mr. Stillman to prove any of his charges, Mrs. Stillman's friends believe. They are united in thinking that the free cameraderie of the woods was one of the happy interludes of Mrs. Stillman's married life.

First rumors that her Canadian servants did not understand her attitude toward Beauvais came to Mrs. Stillman that summer. A woman here and informed her that she was ridding gossip by her kindness to the young guide. She was passing a few days then in the village at the house of the old priest, Father Lemay.

Lady at All Times.
"My only answer to whatever people may say about me is: I have always been a lady and I shall always be one."

Wedding in Morocco is celebrated by the women friends of the bride at her home and by friends of the bridegroom at his home.
