

Leaders in Riot Causing Death of Sailor, Hanged

'Abyssinian Princes' Who Headed 'Return to Africa' Movement for Negroes, Execute Crime on Scaffold.

Chicago, June 24.—Grover C. Redding and Oscar McGavick, negroes, were hanged together at 7:27 today for the killing of Robert Rose a sailor in connection with the 'Abyssinian riots' last June.

They appeared calm when they walked upon the scaffold.

Both slept during the night and Redding ate a hearty breakfast.

They had attempted to use the same sanity test which has saved, at least temporarily, the necks of Gene Geary, notorious murderer, and Carl Wanderer, slayer of three.

Sheriff Peters retained possession of the corpses of Redding and McGavick for more than an hour.

He gave as his reason that reports had reached him recently that an attempt had been made to restore life to the body of a man hanged two months ago in the county jail after it had left the custody of the county authorities.

The so-called 'Abyssinian riots' occurred on the evening of June 30, 1920, when a band of negroes, led by Redding and others, termed themselves 'Princes of Abyssinia' and 'connected with a movement for the return of negroes to Africa, staged a parade. The parade ended with a bonfire, during which an American flag was tossed on the blaze. Rose attempted to rescue the flag and was shot to death from an automobile. The paraders scattered and some ran into a nearby building and in promiscuous firing which followed, Joseph Hor, chief clerk, was killed and Joseph Powers, negro policeman, and William Carter, negro butler, were wounded.

Trades Council to Warn Other Cities Work Is Scarce Here

Work is not plentiful in Omaha, is the warning to be sent workers in other cities by the Omaha building trades council, it was voted at a meeting Thursday night in the Labor temple at which charges were made that 'some Omaha organization' has been advertising in newspapers of other cities urging building laborers to come here and stating that 5,000 homes are being constructed here.

Secretary John M. Gibb declared he believed the advertising a campaign to flood the labor market here to bring wages down. Nebraska will be flooded with literature on the proposed labor bank in Omaha within the next few days, Secretary Gibb declared, with a view to opening the bank by August 1.

K. C., Kan., C. of C. Men Frolic About City

They came, they saw, they conquered, they fled. They are 140 boosters from Kansas City, Kan., attired in striped suits and equipped with cow bells, who motored into Omaha at 4:45 Thursday, dined at the Chamber of Commerce, spread good cheer and motored out of Omaha at 8 a. m. yesterday en route to Lincoln.

They are on a four-days' tour of the middle west and are headed by Mayor Harry Burton and C. L. Brokaw, president of the Chamber of Commerce. J. David Larsen, commissioner of the Omaha Chamber of Commerce, was toastmaster at the banquet, while J. M. Gillan, secretary, piloted the tour out of Omaha this morning.

Epworth Leagues of District To Aid Willard Hall Drive

Epworth leagues in the Omaha district will assist in the raising of funds for the Willard Hall home for women to be established in Omaha, it was decided at a meeting of the district cabinet in Valley, Neb.

The regular booth festival held every year in the district will be abandoned this year and the various chapters will offer their reports of gifts and donations to the district convention, which will be held in the Walnut Hill Methodist church on Friday, August 26.

More than 400 Epworth leagues will attend this convention, according to James E. Layten, president of the Omaha district, who predicts the session to be the most successful ever held by the district.

Where It Started

Editorials, or 'leading articles' as they are called in England, were first used in the Leeds Mercury; this paper published a series of 'leaders,' commencing in 1801. The fashion did not take long to spread to other papers, and it is now an indispensable part of the modern journal's make-up.

Newlyweds Halted By Woman at Depot

Wild-Eyed, She Seizes Bridegroom, Who Denies He Knows Her.

If the newlyweds had reached the station two minutes earlier, it wouldn't have happened.

The newlyweds had just presented their tickets to the gateman with confident smiles. Their train was due to leave in three minutes.

A woman, fiery-eyed and resolute rushed to the gate and seized the bridegroom by the arm muttering incoherently. As his bride nervously shrank back, the man roughly brushed aside the intruder and called for an officer.

"Better remove her," he said coldly and evenly. "Probably insane. Never saw her before in my life."

The newlyweds moved on to their train. The woman gained control of herself and calmly answered questions of the officer. She gave her name as Rosa Halsey, but refused to identify the honeymoon couple.

"I learned they were married this morning," she said. "He was mine. He had no right to marry her."

The woman known as Rosa Halsey is one of the characters in "The Bogie of Fear," the Arthur Somers Roche serial starting in The Sunday Bee, July 3.

Landslide at 24th and Burt Feared as Danger to Tots

Cracking of dirt and small landslides off the bank of the Creighton university property at Twenty-fourth and Burt streets caused neighbors in that vicinity yesterday to complain to police, fearing for the safety of school children passing the bank.

Seven Persons Killed In Theater Collapse

Johnstown, Pa., June 24.—Seven were killed and seven injured, three seriously, in the collapse of the Grand Theater building, a moving picture house in Barnesboro, last night.

Workmen were excavating on the lot adjoining the theater and had gone below the bottom of the theater wall. Rains softened the ground and weakened the support of the theater wall. The men doing this work had been driven away by the rain just a short time before the collapse.
