

Baptists Demand Prohibition of Prize Fighting

Resolutions Adopted Disapprove Movements Causing Friction Between U. S. and England.

Des Moines, June 29.—Adoption of resolutions condemning "without reservation all prize fighting and calling for the enactment of legislation of laws to prohibit prize fighting" by the Northern Baptist convention today followed the reference to a special committee of several resolutions that were offered. The prize-fighting resolution recited that the Christian citizenship of America a few years ago succeeded in outlawing prize fighting, but that the restrictions had been lifted as a "deplorable result of the world war" and "the demoralizing details are spread in our daily press."

As originally offered, this resolution sought to have barred from the mails publications which carried news or advertisements dealing with prize fighting. This provision was turned down in committee as "contrary to the belief of freedom of the press and public."

Another resolution handled by the same committee said in part: "We look with disapproval on any movements calculated to disrupt the long-standing friendly relations established between the United States and Great Britain. This resolution was aimed at the Irish agitation."

The third of these resolutions which had been turned back to the committee called for the establishment of a national department of education, unifying all agencies, and with an "adequate national leadership organized on civil service basis."

The convention adopted several resolutions urging the government to take whatever action necessary in checking Armenian atrocities; to act against the Chinese tongs engaged in slave traffic; to make war on the narcotic traffic in the Orient; and to establish a national department of education in which all education would be unified.

Utterances of Ambassador George Harvey in regard to motives prompting America to enter the war were deplored in another resolution adopted by the convention. The divorce evil was strenuously attacked in another resolution which was adopted. Greater attention to modesty in dress and moral conduct was also urged in another resolution.

State Officers Take Stand In Perjury Trial

Governor of North Dakota Denies Any Controversy Over Organization of State Bank.

Bismarck, N. D., June 29.—Gov. Lynn J. Frazier, Attorney General William Lemke and John N. Hagen, commissioner of agriculture and labor, who compose the state industrial commission, were placed on the witness stand in district court today to testify in the case of J. W. Brinton, charged with perjury in connection with testimony before executive committees last winter.

Governor Frazier and Mr. Hagen denied there had been any controversy between officials at the time the Bank of North Dakota was organized, as charged by Brinton. The governor said, however, on cross-examination, that he had received a letter from Brinton in 1919 complaining against the alleged financing of league enterprises through the Scandinavian-American bank of Fargo and declaring public funds were being used to finance a subsidiary corporation. He said he did not believe the charge.

Mr. Lemke testified that statements by Brinton that the Scandinavian-American bank was purchased by J. J. Hastings as financial agent of the Nonpartisan league on the advice of A. C. Townley, president of the league, and Lemke, were false. Lemke further branded as false statements that the Nonpartisan league executive committee had discussed the purchase of the bank and that Lemke controlled the Publishers' National Service bureau.

Lemke asserted on the stand, that although he held the majority of the stock in the Consumers' United Stores company, a league enterprise now in receivership, he took no part in its management.

Nebraskans to Pay $500,000 for New Auto Lenses

Few of 200,000 Machines Equipped With Lights Required by Law; Price to Fit Every Purse.

Lincoln, June 29.—Dealers in Lincoln estimate that there are as many as 200,000 automobiles in the state which have the legal lenses. In order to comply with the law the light must not be diminished, but it must be reflected downward so that it will not glare in the eyes of pedestrians or approaching motorists.

A survey of the auto accessory shops showed that there are as many styles in lenses as in clothes with "a price to fit every purse," as one man said. The lenses range from plain glass with a coat of white paint applied to one side, to elaborate operations in ground and colored glass. Some are ground so that the rays are deflected downward, others have "blinkers" or shades covering half of the lenses, and some are made with deflectors set in the reflectors.

Prices for these lenses range from $1.50 up—and now that they are required, the motorist is faced by advertisements showing, not the servability of any special type, but how a certain make will make his car more beautiful.
