Making One Dish Do the Work of Two

In a large family a bunch of asparagus doesn't go a very long way unless some device is used to "stretch" the asparagus. Here are some suggestions:

Asparagus Omelet.
Beat two eggs and add a quarter teaspoonful of salt and two tablespoonfuls of hot milk. Put butter in the frying pan and when melted add the egg mixture. Shake the pan constantly until the egg begins to brown on the underside. To determine this turn up the side by means of an egg turner occasionally to see whether it is browning. When it begins to brown let it stand on a cool part of the stove or, if you are using gas, turn the gas down very low. When it appears to be done through sprinkle over it the tender part of a bunch of asparagus that has been cooked and cut into small pieces. Allow it to heat thoroughly and then fold the omelet.

Asparagus With Eggs.
Boil a bunch of asparagus 20 minutes; cut off the tender tops and lay in a deep pie plate, buttering, salting and peppering well. Beat four eggs just enough to break up the yolks, add a tablespoonful of melted butter, with pepper and salt, and pour upon the asparagus. Bake eight minutes in a quick oven and serve immediately.

Asparagus on Toast.
Tie the bunch of asparagus up with soft string, when you have cut away the wood and cook about 25 minutes in salted boiling water. Have ready some slices of crustless toast; dip each in the asparagus liquor; butter well while hot and lay upon a heated dish. Drain the asparagus and arrange on the toast. Pepper, salt and butter generously.

Asparagus in Croustades.
To make the croustades cut bread in very thick slices and scoop out the center so as to form a shallow cup. Make them all uniform in dimensions. Brush the inside with melted butter and place in the oven until they are a golden brown. In the meantime cut asparagus into small pieces, saving the tougher ends for soup. When tender mix with a smooth white sauce and fill the freshly made croustades with this mixture.

Luncheon Set Is Preferred to Damask Cloth

IN many homes luncheon and dinner sets composed of doilies and centerpieces are superseding the formal damask cloth. Women who have at last adopted the "save work in the home" slogan are seeing the wisdom of this sort of napery, regardless of homemaking traditions.

Of course, there is nothing so nice as the damask cloth, but the scarcity and high cost of linen today makes it quite a luxury. Careless laundering will ruin fine linens, and if done at home the time and labor required often make them a serious economic consideration for the busy homemaker.

The sets, however, are easily and quickly done and they seem to keep clean longer than the formal linens used to do.

Linen in natural coloring is growing in favor, and many of the sets are being made of it. It makes an excellent background where colored embroidery is desired.

Some of the sets are hemstitched, a large initial in natural colored floss being the only decoration. Others are done in floral designs, the designs being placed in the corners of the square cloths and in wreaths for the round sets.

An attractive set made of white linen has square designs in simple fashion done in cross-stitch in the corners, and a monogram put in the center of the larger pieces. In finishing the edges of the latter the hems are folded back on the right side, and held in place by the old couch stitch with a roll of the floss filling the seam.

In still other sets the idea of facing the right side of the hem with a colored linen and buttonholing it in place over a heavy strand of floss seems to be popular. The facing matches the floral design cut from the linen and applied in place.

For use on the summer porch table an odd fancy is to bind the edges, instead of hemming them, with bias strips of old-fashioned calico or chintz in what women used to call "apron patterns," fine and small in figures. In each corner of the cloth or large square vegetables were applied in plain but natural colored linens.

One cloth had a cucumber, a small pumpkin, a carrot and a head of lettuce done in the respective corners, and the binding was a small figured yellow calico. The napkins were bound to match.

Luxurious Eyelashes, New York Vanity, Strikes Omaha Society.

MUCH to the delight of feminine Omaha it is now possible to obtain "Nesto Lashes," New York's newest vanity, at the F. M. Schadell and Company Hair Shop, 1522 Douglas. Luxuriously heavy, long and curling of just the correct shade of dark brown, they're offered at $1 a pair, are easy to apply, can be put on repeatedly in a second's time and are undeniably becoming. 'Tis whispered that several of Omaha's beautiful women have long worn the eyelash beauty aids.

It is reported that hatters' plush will be popular for fall hats.

Cordova Leather in Unusually Extensive Selection.

THE art department of the A. Hospe Company Music and Art Store, 1513 Douglas, has just received an unusually large shipment of Cordova leather, exquisitely hand-tooled and tinted. Novel in shaping and arrangement is a combination bill fold and coin purse at $7.50. Luxuriously smart the large handbags at $25 to $50.
