Romance in Origin Of Superstitions

By H. I. KING.

Daddy Longlegs. Here are some of the superstitions common in the United States and Canada regarding that spider-like creature generally known as "daddy longlegs." Take him by one leg and say: Daddy longlegs, tell me where my cows are." He will point in the direction of the cattle with one of his other legs. Wish on a daddy long-legs "for luck." Daddy longlegs brings good luck. It is bad luck to kill him. Say: "Tell me where my love is "and he will point in the required direction. Daddy longlegs gets his reputation from the fact that he is an arachnid; the name being from a Greek word meaning spider and used to designate the class to which both the true spider and daddy longlegs belong. To all intents and purposes daddy longlegs is a spider and a field spider so that, asso-ciated with the harvest so that he and his near relations have, for long centuries, been known as "harvest-men" when not spoken of under a more fanciful name. In England he is "harvestman," or "harvest spider," the name daddy longlegs being applied to the crane fly there. All spiders, according to Pliny, were much regarded by the Romans for purposes of divination and it was considered bad luck to kill one. Daddy longlegs being a field spider, in-timately connected with husbandy, is naturally the proper sort of spider to divine with in such a matter as finding the cows. Naturally, also it is bad luck to kill such a gifted creature with us today as it was with the Romans 2,000 years ago or more. Likewise being connected with the harvest, a creature, as it were, of the grain-spirit, a "harvestman," daddy longlegs brings good luck for he brings the harvest. While all over the country daddy longlegs is used to find the cows it is in a few places only that he is employed to find where one's love is. Such unfrequent use of him is outside his special function and is merely a remnant of the general use of the spider in divination among the Romans.

Jewel, Flower, Color Symbols for Today By MILDRED MARSHALL.

Today's talismanic gem is the coral. It is believed to be especially lucky for those who are ill, bringing them strength and vitality, and also to protect those who grow tired easily or are in fear of contagious diseases. However, an unbroken bit of it must be worn, since if broken the coral loses its mystic powers. The amethyst is the natal stone of those born today; besides endowing its wearer with commonsense and sobering one who is inclined to be too frivolous, it is believed to have great curative powers. In olden times it was sometimes crushed and given as a power to those who were ill. Coral pink is today's color, and is which it adorns.
