If better sense comes, she will drop the pose which she is mistaking for poise, and will come to realize the truth of the old punning maxim, "B-natural is the keynote of good breeding." Unfortunately, there are many girls and women who continue to pose long after they have passed the theatrical teens. Their voices are "too sweet to be wholesome;" their manners are stilted; their entrance and exits and center-of-the-stage attitudes are as studied as though all eyes were fixed upon them-which, indeed, appears to be their pet delusion. Too Much "Makeup." Dear Miss Fairfax: Kindly advise me as to what to do in the following case: While spending my vacation in the mountains, I met a very nice young lady whom I have learned to love dearly.

Upon return from my vacation I was invited to the girl's home and met her parents.

My people wanted to see the young lady and after inviting her to the house they object to my going about with her because she uses too much makeup.

If you love this girl enough to think of marrying her, aren't you close enough to her to discuss such a thing as rouge and lip sticks? Don't be rude or make her feel cheap -but give her to understand that that the task of the set of the s
