

Coyotes Holding Lead in Drive for New Ak Members

Jack Rabbits Expect to Stage Comeback and Win Dinner Which Is Stake in Campaign.

The score: Coyotes, 65 members. Jack Rabbits, 32 members. Thus did the rival Ak-Sar-Ben member-getting teams stand at the close of activities last night. At stake in the drive is one good dinner and the reputation of Ak-Sar-Ben for never having a membership setback in its history. The losing team must buy the dinner for the winners, but despite the lead of the Coyotes, the Jack Rabbits expect to stage a comeback, and eat at their rival's expense. But two and a half days remain for the membership hustlers to gain the desired number of new members. The drive, which was started Tuesday noon with 700 new members as its objective, closes at 1 p. m. Saturday. Six hundred and three more members must be roped into King Ak's realm before that time. But Ak-Sar-Ben-ites are confident the drive will succeed.

Three Hundred Jacks Being Used in Raising Two-Story Building

Passersby have been tarrying for several days at the southeast corner of Seventeenth and Howard streets to observe the work of raising the two-story brick building used for general office purposes by the L. V. Nicholas Oil company. The grading of St. Marys avenue necessitated raising this building six feet, the work being done by the L. P. Priesteadt company without interference with the usual routine within the building. Three hundred raising packs are used in the operation and 24 men turned the jacks in response to signals from a whistle. A party wall on the east added to the engineering difficulties. The building was erected 35 years ago and was originally used by Henry St. Felix as a grocery. A. J. Volkman, superintending engineer in charge, also supervised the recent remodeling of the Peters Trust building.

The penalty for manufacture and sale of liquor, on which charge all except Haines are held, is a fine of $500 to $5,000 or 30 days to one year in jail, or both. Haines is held on bond as a witness. ### Wife Kidnaps Own Child

"Leave her? Bless her heart! Mother never would." That's what Mrs. Charlotte Catherine Mayo was saying between kisses when the above photograph was made. Determined to leave her broker husband, Roy Alfred Mayo, and determined, too, not to desert her 2-year-old daughter, the mother had started in a limousine kidnaping de luxe in New York City with five private detectives to help her. Following differences with her husband, Mrs. Mayo left him and consulted a lawyer. Later in the day she returned to her home in an automobile with detectives. The limousine, with engine running, waited outside. On gaining admittance to the apartment, accompanied by the detectives, Mrs. Mayo snatched up the child, made her way to the ground floor and was whirled away in the auto.

Sovereign Commander Fraser Decorated by Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Dispatches received from Woodmen of the World Headquarters in New York City state that Claude Wilkerson of Missouri and William Franklin of Oklahoma, leaders of the insurgents in the convention, were expelled from the order for 10 years by practically unanimous vote. These men attempted to unseat Nebraska and Texas delegates active were opposed to the present supreme officers, headed by W. A. Fraser, sovereign commander, all of whom were reelected last week for a term of four years. These dispatches also state that Mr. Fraser was decorated with a medal by Commander Sullivan of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, in the presence of that organization and the entire membership of the convention, "in recognition of services rendered the government during the war as a member of the bureau of war risk insurance" and on account of "his activity and success in promoting the sale of Liberty bonds." Fraser was sworn in as a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars by Commander Sullivan when the medal was bestowed upon him. The Omaha end of the insurgency was headed by County Commissioner Unitt.
