

SLEEPY-TIME TALES
THE TALE OF CHIRPY CRICKET
 BY ARTHUR SCOTT BAILEY

CHAPTER VII.

Johnnie Green's Guest.
 There were enough night noises before Chirpy Cricket came to live in the farmyard. What with Solomon Owl's hooting, his cousin Simon Screecher's quavering call, and the musical Frog's family's concerts in Cedar Swamp, it was a wonder that Johnnie Green ever managed to fall asleep. The Katydid alone were almost enough to drive anybody frantic—if he let himself listen to them—with their everlasting cry of Katy did, Katy did; she did, she did. Johnnie Green himself said he wished the Crickets had gone somewhere else to spend the summer. At least, he thought they might play some other tune besides cr-r-r-il cr-r-r-il cr-r-r-il over and over again. If they would only fiddle "Yankee Doodle" now and then he said he wouldn't mind lying awake a while to listen to it.

Maybe he wanted to punish him.

Perhaps Chirpy Cricket heard what Johnnie Green said. Maybe he wanted to punish him. Anyhow, he crept into the farmhouse one evening and found his way into Johnnie Green's chamber, where he hid in a gaping crack behind the baseboard. And that very night, as soon as Johnnie Green put out his light and jumped into bed, Chirpy Cricket began to fiddle for him.

Johnnie had been sleepy. But the moment Chirpy Cricket began fiddling right there in his room he became wide awake. He had had no idea how loudly one of the Cricket family could play his cr-r-r-il cr-r-r-il cr-r-r-il indoors. The high, shrill sound was piercing. It rang in Johnnie's ears and drowned the muffled creak of the fields and swamp which the light breeze bore through the window.

For a few minutes Johnnie lay still. And then he sat up in bed. "I'll have to get up and find that fellow," he said. "If I don't, he'll keep me awake."

The moment he stirred, the fiddling stopped. Johnnie was glad of that. And once more he laid his head upon his pillow. But in a few moments that cr-r-r-il cr-r-r-il rang out again.

Then Johnnie Green tried several remedies. He shook the bed. He knocked over chair. He caught up a shoe and threw it toward a corner of the room, whence the sound seemed to come. And then he threw the other shoe.

Every time Johnnie Green made a noise Chirpy Cricket stopped fiddling. And if Johnnie had had enough shoes no doubt he could have kept Chirpy from making any more music that night. But, of course, Johnnie couldn't have slept any, if he had done that. Besides, he would have kept the whole family awake, too. He thought of that after he had buried the second shoe. For his father called up the stairs and asked him what was the matter.

"There's an old Cricket in my room!" Johnnie explained. "He's keeping me awake."

"I should think you were keeping him awake," said Farmer Green. "Get up and look for him, if you must. . . . But don't let him bite you!"

"You wouldn't joke if this old Cricket was in your room," Johnnie grumbled.

He did not grumble often. But he had had a long hard day, swimming in the mill-pond and climbing apple trees. And he wanted to go to sleep.

Johnnie Green thought it was no time to crack jokes.

Jewel, Flower, Color Symbols for Today

By MILDRED MARSHALL.
 Today's talismanic stone is the coral. It brings sure recovery to those who are ill; in fact, the ancients believed that one who wore a bit of coral could not fall ill. It was also credited with power to bring great strength and the power to resist contagion.

The amethyst is today's natal stone, which, according to an ancient legend, protected its wearer from harm resulting from either physical or mental dangers. Those who are inclined to be too impulsive should wear the amethyst, since it somewhat reacts this tendency.

White should be worn today; sacred to the moon goddess, it is symbolic of purity, and is particularly fortunate for young girls. Today's flower is the yellow rose, which dispels treachery and brings true friendship.

Parents' Problems

How can a boy of 12 be helped to be considerate of a visiting invalid relative?

A great deal in this case might depend upon the aunt. If cheerful even though ill, the boy will easily be induced to try to be considerate of her. Should her invalidism, however, be such as makes cheerfulness not always possible, the parents of the boy must do the best they can to explain the situation to their son, and if necessary, insist upon right behavior.

Mr. Motorist

Did you see the great lens testing demonstration Thursday evening, July 14th, at the Ak-Sar-Ben Field under auspices of Commissioner of Police Henry Dunn?

This was the biggest lens testing event ever held in the United States. Passed every test and met the strictest requirements, and in addition gave greatly increased driving and side light.

The demonstration showed why fifty-five lighting engineers of the leading automobile factories of the country have adopted Patterson Lens as standard equipment. Equip your car with Patterson Lens and you comply with all the State Laws and City ordinances, and get the best road light it is possible to secure.

Insist on Patterson and Accept No Substitute

PATTERSON lens has been officially approved by the Department of Public Works of the State of Nebraska in accordance with the new state law.
