

Girl "Raffles" From Omaha Held In Kansas City

$5,000 in Jewelry and Clothing and Hotel Keys From Various Cities Found in 7 Suitcases

Kansas City, July 16.—(Special).—Room keys from the Paxton hotel in Omaha were found in the possession of Henrietta Davis, 26, arrested here for investigation in connection with activities of a petticoated hotel raffles.

Jewelry, silverware and expensive clothing found in the woman's possession in a downtown hotel here were contained in seven suitcases. Their value was estimated by police at more than $5,000.

Keys of Various Hotels.
Included in the assortment were cuff links, scarf pins, watch charms, necklaces, rings, cuffs, gold badge inscribed "Lieutenant, American Detective League, auxiliary of the U. S. Department of Justice," expensive woman's clothing and room keys from the Paxton hotel in Omaha, Meuhlebach and Baltimore hotels in Kansas City, Hotel Fort Des Moines in Des Moines and the Utah hotel, Salt Lake City.

More than 200 letters from Ralph Davis, alias James Robert and J. C. Brooks, husband of the woman, mailed from various midwestern cities were found in her room.

Husband Arrested.
Police say Davis has been posing as a secret service agent while robbing hotel rooms in Omaha, Des Moines and Kansas City, using the badge and handcuffs to strengthen his contention he was a detective.

The woman was arrested on information from St. Louis police after her husband was arrested in the Hotel Statler there yesterday.

Davis was caught after the room of Naomi Childers, motion picture actress, had been looted, according to St. Louis police.

New Omaha Song Wins Approval of Ak-Sar-Ben

There'll be a new song sung at Ak-Sar-Ben Den Monday night. The chorus and principals of the "Frolic's Ears" cast have been rehearsing it over in the form for which they are noted.

Moreover, it's truly an Omaha song, despite the fact it first became popular in London. It is named "Omaha Waltz," and, although it was written by Englishmen, it was an Omaha youth, alone and lonely in a London cafe, which inspired it. Although the "Omaha Waltz" is sung everywhere in Great Britain and is being played by orchestras in transatlantic liners, Monday night will be the first time it has been introduced here.

Samson will entertain visitors from Missouri Valley, Mondamin, Dunlap, Woodbine and Logan, Ia., Monday night.

Omaha Lodge Leads Elks For New Memberships

Omaha lodge of Elks made the largest membership gain during the past year of any lodge in the country, according to a message reaching here last night from Otto Nielsen, secretary, in Los Angeles. The only lodges of Elks larger in membership than Omaha's are New Orleans, Seattle, Brooklyn, New York and two other lodges, names of which are not known.

A special train of 300 Philadelphia Elks, including a band of 100 pieces, will arrive here Monday. Efforts are being made to secure a three-hour stopover for the Philadelphians that they may attend the Ak-Sar-Ben initiation at the Den.

Grand Island High School Student Drowns in Lake

Grand Island, Neb., July 16.—Robert L. Zook, son of Mrs. Mary Zook, of Lincoln, lost his life by drowning while taking a swim in the pool at Riverside, two miles south of Central City. He had been on an outing with relatives. Though able to swim, he was suddenly seen to go down, after which it is believed he cramps. His mother, with him at the time, called for help, but it was 15 minutes before the body could be located. He was a member of the senior class of the Grand Island High school and made his home here with relatives.

Ex-Head of Welfare Board Enters Insurance Game

O. M. Adams, who recently resigned as superintendent of the Omaha Welfare board, will leave early in August for Lincoln, where he will enter the life insurance business in partnership with his brother-in-law, C. L. Vesey, who comes to Nebraska from Dubuque, Ia.

The new partnership will have supervision over 17 counties in southwestern Nebraska for H. O. Wilhelm & Co., state agents for the Northwestern National Life of Minneapolis.

Omaha Chief Asks Papers For Bond Bunco Suspect

Lincoln, Neb., July 18.—(Special).—Chief of Detectives Van Deusen of Omaha conferred with Attorney General Davis today relative to starting extradition proceedings against Ross P. Johnson, who is wanted in Omaha for getting $50,000 in Liberty bonds from the United States Trust company under false pretenses. Johnson is under arrest in Montreal, Canada.

In the Kingdom-of-Never-Forget

Recently someone suggested that Brandeis Stores provide the children of institutions in Omaha and Council Bluffs with the opportunity to see Jackie Coogan, the child actor, in "Peck's Bad Boy." We were very glad to act upon the suggestion and we enjoyed it immensely.

These excursions into the Kingdom-of-Never-Forget—that Kingdom peopled by little ones into whose lives the sunbeams only occasionally dance above the shadows—make deep impressions upon the tourist. For the commercial institution these excursions amount to a good business proposition. The good lies in the retrospective phase which is as valuable a business concern as to an individual. There is, moreover, in any effort toward good out of the ordinary channels of business endeavor a large contribution to the morale of the commercial institution itself.

"A Gran' and Glorious Feelin'"

Then it's a "gran' and glorious feelin'" to do something to help carry happiness into the lives of little children.

Remember how much fun you've had in watching your own children prepare for a day of unusual pleasure? Well, you can multiply that many times before you'll find the equivalent of the fun some of us had in several glances into what will be to us—as it was to these little ones—the Kingdom-of-Never-Forget. Whether it was the enthusiasm of the fine lads from Father Flanagan's home or that of the equally fine lads from the Masonic home for boys; whether it was the joy shown by the children from the Christian Home at Council Bluffs; the smiles of the little tots from the Child Saving or the laughter of those who came from the City Mission, the privilege of seeing the smiles, hearing the laughter, observing the enthusiasm and sharing in the happiness of these children will long be remembered.

There is something, too, in the privilege of coming into direct contact with the great work being done by these institutions. They all deserve help and they all need help. Don't forget them. As you look into the faces of these little ones—faces pinched with pain, others upon which the touch of honor in the days gone by has left its most indelible mark—you instinctively think of John Hay's poem, "Little Breeches."

The Story of Little Breeches

A very small lad living on a western ranch had been dubbed "Little Breeches" by reason of the pants-letches he wore. One day the child wandered from home. Ranchmen for miles around were summoned for the search. Hour after hour they scoured the plains with a western blizzard raging, expecting every moment to stumble over the child's dead body. About 2 o'clock in the morning they came across a sheep fold and there among the sheep, as safe and sound and warm as he would have been in his mother's arms, they found "Little Breeches." Then the father, in western vernacular, tells the story: "How'd he get thar? Awful! And I think that taking a little child and bringing it to its own is a dern sight better business than loafing around the throne."
