

Listen! The Jingle of Money That May Be Yours!

Business men, farmers, clerks, hired hands, society matrons, "flappers," school children and school teachers—all are evincing a great interest in the Intelligence Questionnaire contest. Folks who have nearly forgotten how to think have dusted out the old brain-pan and entered The Bee's contest.

Ordinary intelligence is the only qualification required. You don't have to spend any money or much time. All entries are treated the same. You have as good a chance as anyone else to succeed.

Picture to yourself what you could do should you win the First Royal Award! Clothes, education, travel, music—the world's interesting hobbies could be yours. Are you willing to test your brains against others for the sake of these things? Are you able to get out of the rut and really do some concentrated studying, to apply yourself diligently?

Interesting? Well, it surely is! Just look those questions over. They cover many spheres of endeavor. Many of the things you take for granted are not so easy after all—you'll really have to think. We repeat—all have an equal chance. A day laborer sent in a fine set of answers, yet one of the smartest men in Omaha sent in an incomplete reply. A school girl out in the state sent in a very credible response, yet a professional man, a physician, sent in his questionnaire with some absolutely ridiculous answers.

Answer all of the 100 questions you can and then make your selection of the "30 Best Questions"

Be Sure You Know What You're Doing---See Directions

1. Any man or woman who is not an employe of The Omaha Bee may submit an answer.
2. Any person may fill out and send in as many questionnaires as he or she may wish, but only one prize will be awarded in the same household. Each questionnaire will be considered as a unit and not in conjunction with any other questionnaire sent in by the same person. Only one answer is allowed to each question on each questionnaire, and this answer must be written in the space immediately following each question.
3. Write your full name and address on each sheet of questions in the space provided for that purpose.
4. All answers must be brought to the office of The Omaha Bee by 6 p. m. August 31, 1921, or mailed by your postoffice closing time August 31, 1921. This prize offering closes at 6 p. m. on the above date and answers sent by mail must be post-marked not later than August 31 in order to be eligible.
5. All answers will be checked as rapidly as they are received and the awards will be announced as soon after the closing date as possible.

RULES

6. The answer lists submitted will be judged as follows:
 First—For the number of correct answers.
 Second—For the selection of the thirty questions which would best determine the fitness of an applicant.
 Third—For neatness, spelling, etc.
 The answer list containing the greatest number of correct answers to the questions printed will be awarded first prize and so on down the list until the 25 prizes in each classification have been awarded.
 In case of a tie or ties in the number of correct answers the tying questionnaires will be judged for "The Thirty Best Questions" selected, and the prizes will be awarded in each classification according to the precedence as determined by the judges.
 If, after judging lists for correct answers and then judging the selections of the 30 "best" questions, ties still exist, the lists will be judged for neatness, spelling, etc., in order to determine the prize winners.

7. Anyone sending in a list of answers qualifies for the list of Ordinary Prizes, whether they subscribe for The Bee or not.
 Anyone sending in one subscription for the daily and Sunday Bee, paid in advance, for three months, qualifies for the list of Special Prizes.
 Anyone sending in one subscription for the daily and Sunday Bee, paid in advance, for six months, or two subscriptions, paid in advance, for three months, qualifies for the list of Grand Prizes.
 Anyone sending in one subscription for the daily and Sunday Bee, paid in advance, for one year, two subscriptions, paid in advance, for six months or four subscriptions, paid in advance, for three months, qualifies for the list of Royal Prizes.
 Either an extension of a present subscription or a new subscription is counted as a subscription for these prizes.
8. All lists of answers will receive the same consideration whether they are qualified by subscriptions or whether the person submitting the list of answers is a subscriber to The Bee.
9. Three prominent Omaha business men will act as judges of the lists of answers submitted and will determine the prize winners.
