You Will Read It In the Revelations of Our

August Fur Sale

Which Begins Monday On Our 2nd Floor

They Are Irresistible

Muskkrat Coat—36-inch length; large shawl collar and belt; a very smart model for the miss. $149

WISE people buy Furs in August for the reason that, as a rule, they are cheaper in that month than they are later in the season.

Soft and Luxurious

Sealine Coat—36-inch length—large shawl collar and bell cuffs of opossum; also belt "full sweep." $98

Fox Scarf—Very stylish for the fall suit or dress in Taupe or Rose shade, for 18.50

Jap Mink Stole—Rich dark brown; 14x32 pockets and trimmed with 22 claws and 27 tails. $98

Good Advice In 1920

Last year we did not hold an August fur sale. After a faithful study of market conditions we concluded that in August, 1920, fur prices were higher than they would be during the winter months. Our decision was upheld by subsequent lower prices and our customers who adopted our advice to make no fur purchases in August, 1920, profited accordingly.

Now Is the Time to Buy

This year the same faithful study of market conditions brings us to the conclusion that August of 1921 is the time to buy furs. The wisdom of this year's advice is strengthened by the big advantage which Brandeis Stores' buyers obtained in the 1921 market. These buyers went into the market in July. They found manufacturers, after a season of business slowed up by prohibitive prices, hungry for money and willing to let go their enormous stocks at prices involving a sacrifice. They were anxious to obtain cash to meet later requirements. Brandeis Stores was prepared to pay cash and the advantages thus obtained are passed to our customers.

Pelts of Silky Softness

Never before have the styles shown such beauty and diversity of line, and never have the skins used so beautifully completed the ideas. Countless new features are shown in the furs best suited to display them. Tuxedo collars are strikingly new and show a refreshing contrast to the wide collars so long in vogue. Mandarin and kimono sleeves are numbered among the many new styles, and various innovations carried out in sleeves, cuffs, collars and pockets make the new styles an interesting study. Long coats share popularity with shorter sports models and American Broadtail and Persian wraps are two types sure to be popular.

$100,000 worth of furs will be on display on our Second Floor Monday
