

Eight-Year-Old Poison Mystery Found in Chicago

Out of Graves of Three Is Being Gathered Chain of Evidence That May Show Triple Murder.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Out of the graves of three there is being gathered the links of a chain of evidence that may soon lead to an arrest and charge of triple murder.

The same evidence may solve the mystery of a love quadrangle in which the three who have since died are believed by the neighbors to have been involved.

An investigation by Coroner Hoffman into the deaths of Fred Kolze, his wife, Etta Kolze, and John Demmer has revealed that Kolze and his wife were victims of poison.

While the analysis in the case of Demmer has not been completed.

If poison is found in his body also, the coroner will order an arrest immediately, he said today.

Kolze Last to Die.

Kolze was the last of the trio to die. The things the neighbors said about his death two weeks ago caused the coroner to investigate.

Poison was found.

Then the neighbors said, "I told you so," and added to the gossip.

The coroner thereupon ordered the grave of Mrs. Kolze, who had been dead eight years, opened. More poison.

Then the neighbors began talking about the death of John Demmer, who was supposed to have died from drinking too much ice water two years ago.

The coroner ordered his grave opened and the body is now being analyzed.

Kolze Neglected Wife.

Before Mrs. Kolze died, Demmer and his wife took rooms at her house. Kolze, so the neighbors say, began paying a great deal of attention to the pretty Mrs. Demmer.

This caused strenuous objection by his wife and Mr. Demmer. After the death of Mrs. Kolze the neighbors began to speculate as to whether the Demmers would separate, but they didn't.

Demmer, however, began to grow weak and complain to his friends that he didn't know what was the matter with him. Then he died.

After his death Mrs. Demmer became housekeeper for Kolze.

Wife Is Suspected.

Since the latter's death Mrs. Demmer has been questioned and told the coroner that Kolze had recently been infatuated with another woman.

"I believe all three were poisoned," said the coroner today. We have proof of poison in two cases. It is probable that the poison was given in small quantities in food and water. It could hardly be detected if administered in that way. If poison is found in John Demmer's body I will order his wife's arrest."

Kolze was the grandson of a pioneer who founded the town of Kolze, Ill. He left a will but it had not been announced what he did with the $50,000 he is known to have had.

Girl Prefers Police Station to Beatings At Hands of Mother

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Most people shun a jail, but to Frances Hahn, 17, a pretty telephone girl, it seemed a peaceful haven. Several days ago she appeared at the Chicago avenue police station and begged the officers to lock her up to protect her from her mother. The officers made her as comfortable as possible and began an investigation.

Today in the juvenile court, Judge Pomeroy gave the girl a new home with a woman who owns a place near the telephone exchange. Her mother, Mrs. Katherine Carroll, was ordered not to molest her in any way.

The girl says her mother always met her down the street on pay day, wrenched her money away and then beat her after she had become drunk on the proceeds.
