

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES

Y. M. C. A. Schools To Cover a Wide Range This Year

Accountancy, Salesmanship And Advertising Included On Course of Study for Winter Session.

Accountancy, salesmanship, public speaking, advertising, commercial law and commercial art will be among the leading courses to be offered by the Y. M. C. A. this coming fall and winter. Thirty different courses will be taught.

H. C. Moeller will be the dean of the school of accountancy and business administration. He will be assisted by G. L. Greenfield, public accountant; Kenneth Finlayson, attorney; and O. J. Dickey, teacher at Commercial high school.

Accountancy and business administration is a very popular course because it meets the needs of every line of business. The Y. M. C. A. national course is standardized and being offered in all of the leading cities of the United States.

George Barker will have charge of the commercial art department. E. L. Holland, advertising manager Orchard & Wilhelm, will have charge of the advertising course. The course will be enlarged upon this year and will be much better than offered last year. Any person interested in advertising ought to investigate this course.

To Teach Law. Kenneth Finlayson will teach the commercial law.

With the advantage of the home study offered by the Y. M. C. A. the department of education is in a position to satisfy the needs of every young man no matter what course of study he desires to follow.

Any one wishing information should see C. J. Shaw, director of education, or Daniel Jensen, assistant director.

The two missionary societies of the Bethany church held an open meeting on the college campus Friday evening in honor of Miss Wenona Wilkinson. Miss Wilkinson gave an address on the work of her field.

School Gives Training In Actual Office Work

Young men and women entering business should thoroughly understand the routine work of the average office.

E. A. Dworak, certified public accountant, founder of the Dworak School of Accounting, has prepared an up-to-date complete training course for his school. Every student learns the office routine duties from actual work.

Omaha business men are calling on the school for trained accountants, stenographers, private secretaries and general office help. Young people must realize that a thorough training is the only successful road to a high-class position.

Personal Attention To Be Featured at New School in Omaha

The School of Individual Instruction, 3507 Harney street, is a non-sectarian school for boys and girls 4 to 16 years old. The curriculum includes the following department: First and second-year high, grammar, primary and kindergarten.

The school centrally located near the Blackstone, fills a long-felt want. The refined atmosphere, airy rooms and personal attention make for the mental and moral growth of boys and girls.

Personal attention given to the average child means that he does not have to wait for backward ones to "catch up." On the other hand the backward pupils need not skip or hurry work to keep up in class.

The modern, attractive kindergarten department will be ready for the little tots September 6 on which date the fall term of the school opens.

University of Omaha
Prof. Vahan H. Vartanian of Parsons college, Fairfield, Ia., has been elected professor of ethics, psychology of religion and Bible extension work at the University of Omaha.

Professor Vartanian is a graduate of Anatolia college and also the Bible school of New York, in which institution he taught before coming west. He also received the degree of master of arts at Columbia university, New York, in the department of pedagogy.

The law school opens the second week in October.
