

'Dog Gone' Dogs Trouble Makers In $35,000 Suit

Woman Alleges Mayor Ejected Her From Bank and Broke Hip When She Protested Dog Laws.

Lincoln, Aug. 19.—(Special.)—Because the town of College View permitted her to keep only one dog inside the corporate limits, Mrs. Lorena Aten of College View became engaged in an altercation with Mayor Simeon J. Quantock, which resulted today in the filing of a suit for $35,000 by Mrs. Aten against Mayor Quantock and his wife, Pearl. The story as outlined to court officials follows:

Clarence E. Aten, the husband, sued the College View mayor for $25,000 for alienating his wife's affections. The mayor, in an answer filed charged a conspiracy to get money out of him and when the case went to trial a jury returned a verdict in favor of the mayor.

Pass Dog Law.
Dog days began in College View shortly after the case was tried and it behooved the mayor and city council of College View to get rid of a few superfluous dogs, so the story goes, and as a result a "dog ordinance" was passed.

This, according to Mrs. Aten, hit at the very heartstone of her home as she owned many dogs and the ordinance forbids any residents to own more than one dog and live inside the city limits.

Following the passage of the ordinance Mrs. Aten, so the record goes, maintained a "keep me, keep my dogs" attitude. Two and more dogs continued to derive a sustenance from the Aten ash can.

Then, according to records, Mrs. Aten was arrested for having an illegal number of canines on her property.

Ejected from Bank.
In her suit filed in the Lancaster county district court, Mrs. Aten states that following her arrest and release she called at the Bank of College View, where Mayor Quantock is cashier, to discuss better dog legislation by the village board.

Upon her entrance into the bank, she asserts, she found it was a place for action and not words, as, according to her petition, Mrs. Quantock ordered her husband to put her out of the building. Quantock being a model, obedient, twentieth century husband, did as he was told.

The alleged ejection and events which followed caused Mrs. Aten to suffer a fractured hip, which fracture, she declares, has paralyzed her and injured her to the extent of $35,000.

More Truth Than Poetry

A BLOW AT FREEDOM

(A bill has been introduced providing for the docking of congressmen's pay during absence from Washington.)

What! Shall we dock a statesman's pay When he goes out to mend his fences, And thus compel him to defray A portion of his own expenses? No wonder that our solons yelp, How can the populace expect 'em To serve the state, if they won't help To re-elect 'em?

If every time he lays off work To harvest votes but lately ripened, Some hard-faced and officious clerk Subtracts a hundred from his stipend, No congressman will dare to quit To kid along the sturdy granger, Least next year in his place may sit A total stranger.

How often has a statesman strayed To keep the home-fires brightly burning, Sincerely sure that he'd be paid And paid in full, upon returning! For jollying the boys at home His Uncle Samuel recompensed him; But now each absence from the dome Will count against him.

Alas! how fallen the estate Of those who nobly serve the nation! Yet must they meet their altered fate With fortitude and resignation. Unless, forsooth, to save their pride (And also pay) they hold communion With one another, and decide To join a union!

TOO BAD WE CAN'T PRINT IT.

Wait till you hear what General Dawes says when he learns that congressmen want their pay doubled next year. THEY KNOW WHAT IT MEANS. If the prohibitionists want any more money for their campaign in England they can get it from the bootleggers. ALARMING. We are beginning to hear rumors of peace coming from Europe. Neville Block Deeded By Late Judge to Son

The Neville block, northeast corner of Sixteenth and Harney streets, worth $429,800, was deeded by the late Judge James Neville to his son, Elmer Neville, December 26, 1918. The deed was not recorded until after the judge's death in February, 1921.

The record was uncovered Friday by Louis Piatti, appraiser of real estate left by the elder Neville. When asked why he had not recorded the deed before the death of his father, Elmer Neville, said, "It was optional with me when to record it." He says two brothers knew of this inheritance.

County officials will start a fight to collect inheritance tax on the property.

Two Theaters in Omaha Decide on 'Open Shop' Plan

Empress and Gayety Make Move Because of Inability to Agree With Employes on Wage Cuts.

The Empress and Gayety theaters will be conducted on the "open shop" plan this season. Wilfrid Ledoux, manager of the Empress, declared yesterday he had decided on the same course adopted by Manager Johnson of the Gayety sometime ago. Inability to agree with the stage hands, musicians and operators is the reason for the move managers say. "It is bad enough to have the wage scale dictated by the union, but when it attempts to regulate the number of men I shall employ, I've had enough," said Manager Ledoux. The last straw, according to Mr. Ledoux, was the operators' demand to have their wages on their next contract cut only 10 per cent. The music situation at the Orpheum has been settled, the musicians having accepted a 10 per cent cut.

Four Apartment Houses Cut Rents

First Reductions Since War Go Into Effect September 1 and October 1.

The first reductions in rents in Omaha since the war have been made by four apartment houses. The new rates will go into effect September 1 and October 1, when new leases are made. The apartment houses involved are the Elwood, Forty-ninth and Dodge streets; the Monticello, Mount Vernon and Georgia. The three last are managed by the Peters Trust company. The cut at the Elwood is from $137.50 to $125 a month, according to the J. L. Hiatt company. A cut of $15 has been made in the $140 apartments at the Monticello and Mount Vernon houses. The choice apartments will rent for $125 and $105 apartments for $100. Rates were reduced from $75 to $65 at the Georgia.

No decreases have been announced at the St. Regis, Knickerbocker and Clarinda. St. Regis apartments of four and five rooms are $100 and $125; Knickerbocker, $100, and Clarinda, $87.50 to $92.

Mother, 42, and Babe Doing Nicely After Caesarian Operation

A Caesarian operation performed Thursday afternoon by Dr. John H. Thompson at Frederick hospital, in which Mrs. George Clark, 42, was delivered of a nine-pound boy, was one of the most remarkable on record, physicians at the hospital say. The operation was remarkable in that physicians had heard of no cases where patients undergoing a similar operation were as old as Mrs. Clark.

Both mother and baby are reported in excellent condition. Among the automobiling abuses prohibited in France are unnecessary noises, blinding headlights and reckless driving.
