

Fireworks Mark Consideration of U. S. Tax Bill

Rough and Tumble Narrowly Averted During Debate on Proposed Amendments Before House.

Washington, Aug. 20.—Turbulent scenes marked consideration of amendments to the tax bill on the floor of the house Friday. The controversy between republicans and democrats over the question as to whether the Fordney bill lightens the tax burdens of the rich at the expense of the masses, reached such an acute stage that the acting speaker ordered the sergeant-at-arms to preserve order. A rough and tumble fight in the center aisle was narrowly averted.

Representative Fordney started the fireworks when he referred to a charge by Representative Byrnes of South Carolina at last night's session of the house that the tax bill was framed for the benefit of the rich and also to reduce the taxes of heavy contributors to the republican campaign fund.

Fordney Starts Row.
Mr. Fordney referred to the fact that Mr. Byrnes had called him a liar when he told him that he was telling an untruth and knew it was untrue when he made such a charge. Mr. Fordney reiterated that such a charge was untrue and that Mr. Byrnes knew it was. The South Carolina member jumped to his feet and renewed his charge that the tax bill is designed to help the rich.

Representative Chandler of Oklahoma, republican, started to jump across the aisle at Byrnes, shouting "You should not talk to an old man like that."
Representative Hammer of North Carolina, democrat, advanced to meet Chandler, waving his arms and calling him to "come over here, you Acting Speaker." Walsh, rushed Sergeant-at-Arms Rodgers to order to the scene and he arrived just in time to keep the combatants on their own sides of the aisle.

Mr. Fordney then apologized to the house for what he had said and Mr. Byrnes followed suit and the matter was dropped.

Amendments Adopted.

The house, in committee of the whole, adopted about 60 amendments to the bill, all of them proposed by the ways and means committee. The chief controversy occurred over a committee amendment relative to the definition of a foreign trader and a foreign trade corporation, both of whom, under the bill, are exempt from taxation on the portion of their income derived from outside the United States. The amendment provided that not only must at least 80 per cent of the income come from outside the United States, but also at least 50 per cent of the total income must come from the active conduct of a business without the United States by a corporation or, in the case of an individual, from the active conduct of a business, either on his own account or as an agent for another. The purpose of the 50 per cent limitation was to prevent the exemption from taxation of any except those actively engaged in foreign trade.

Democrats Open Fire.

The democrats took the occasion to open fire on the extension of tax exemption to foreign traders and foreign trade corporations.
Another amendment adopted, which caused a controversy, was one permitting exemption from taxation of contributions by corporations for religious and charitable purposes, provided the total contributions did not aggregate more than 5 per cent of the corporation's net income. The vote on this amendment was 64 to 25.
The house also approved the committee amendment eliminating the proposed $10 annual license tax on dealers in soft drinks.

By The Associated Press.
Berlin, Aug. 20.—Unless unexpected complications develop in the next few days, a formal peace treaty with the United States will be signed by the German government next week. Chancellor Wirth's confidential discussions with the parliamentary leaders of all parties with the exception of the communists, now are concluded, and as a result of these exchanges of opinions and confidences and consultations with other influential persons outside parliament, the government is assured an ample majority in the reichstag when the treaty, which is now being given its final draft, comes up for the ratification vote before that body.

Ellis Loring Dresel, the American commissioner in Berlin, and Dr. Friedrich Rosen, the foreign minister, have agreed on the fundamentals and the document only awaits approval from Washington. This is expected to arrive in a day or two. The treaty will not be discussed by the foreign relations committee, but will go direct from the cabinet to a plenary session of the reichstag.

So far as can be learned, the treaty about to be concluded through the mediation of Mr. Dresel will be given in outline. No date has been fixed for the reichstag vote, but it is believed the government will endeavor to have the event take place simultaneously with action by the United States senate.

Aside from the reichstag's approval, the treaty must also be ratified by the reichsrat.

Beatrice, Neb., Aug. 19.—(Special Telegram.)—R. L. Stone, formerly of Beatrice, is wanted by the authorities of Jefferson county and Marshall county, Kansas, but they have not succeeded in apprehending him. It is alleged he secured $1,000 worth of stock in the Omaha Rubber company from a farmer near Harbine for the purpose of sale, and that he is wanted at Maryville, Kan., to take up a protested check for $85 drawn on a Beatrice bank. J. Thomas Warder, treasurer of Marshall county, was in the city in conference with Sheriff Emery regarding Stone's whereabouts.

Mrs. Stone recently sold the furniture from his office and has left the city presumably to meet her husband. Stone and his wife came to Beatrice two years ago during the palmy days of stock flotation and did considerable business in that line. ### Rich Furs Lend Their Beauty in ever more tangible loveliness to the costume of the hour, whether it be a smaller "piece" or a warm, luxurious wrap; or the hour be early or late. Our assortments of furs are especially beautiful this year.

The Length of Skirt

is delightfully undecided, so that one may suit one's own dearest fancy. "8 inches," Paris says for the tailored frock, while that bewitching, uneven hem line is found in many of our lovelier gowns, especially for evening wear. Which brings us to the point of—

One Shoe or Another

If it is for day time and street wear, to be smart it must look comfortable, for the walking oxford with walking heel seems here to stay. We are showing an excellent new line of these favorite low shoes at $7.95.

Fall Fashions

ALL comes surely and fastly and with it the crisper days and more vivid colorings which inspire the fall costume. While the modes themselves reflect the beauty of the golden leaf and the ripening berry.

The many Burgess-Nash models, now assembled in all their beauty, assure tasteful and individual choice in the authentic styles of the coming season.

Many new fabrics appear in our new models. In the silks, canton crepes hold their own, with increasing favor, while several of our loveliest gowns are of rich dull crepe, revealing, in the draperies, the reverse side to be satin.

In the heavier fabrics, which are found more in the suits and wraps, we are showing:
Wandora, Erminine, Panvolaine, Pollyanna, Moussyn, Duvel de Laine and the ever-desirable serge and tricotine.

At present black is a prevailing color, though many rich new colors are far too lovely to be overlooked:
Malory Brown, Sorrenta Blue, Zanzibar, Malay
And for late afternoon and evening the rich shades of the acorn and the fall woods:
Copper, Flame, and Gold, Shades of Apricot—and Mulberry in the lighter fabrics. While black and white holds high favor.

Hats Which Become Their Wearers

are of broader and sometimes taller crown, many with a fetching tilt to the softly-shaped brim.

While One Suit

is richly trimmed with fur—and we are showing dozens of beautiful fur-trimmed models—another is simply tailored, longer of coat and severely unadorned. These, doubtless, as the colder weather approaches will prove very practical under the fur cloak, which may then be slipped off when one is once inside the shop or theater.

The "Blouse-Gown"

shows the sleeve in all its new charm. For the blouse has never been more lovely than this season. It is shorter than the French over-bloss of last season and so exquisite that we are ordering the skirt to match, of the same rich fabric, and often with the same rich trimming, especially if that trimming be fagoting.

The Long Glove

is, of course, essential and you will find these especially desirable in soft French kids, in 12 and 16-button lengths.
