Believes Tax Revisions Bill Will Be Passed

Iowa Congressman Says Senate Will Enact Measure Next Month in Same Form Passed by House.

By E. C. SNYDER.
Washington Correspondent Omaha Bee.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—(Special Telegram.)—Now that the members of congress have had a chance to catch up in their loss of sleep and rest a bit from the strenuous days preceding their adjournment, those left in town, and by that is meant republicans, have come to the unanimous conclusion that the first session of the Sixty-seventh congress, thus far, has been a "humdinger."

It is generally agreed that the democrats will have to do some tall misrepresenting to throw dust in the eyes of the people over the actual work by the congress now in recess until September 21.

Congressman Green of Iowa, the ranking member on the ways and means committee, which formulated the tariff and tax revisions bill asked about the changes he throught the senate would make in these measures, said: "It is generally believed that the tax bill will be enacted by the senate in substantially the form it passed the house.

"There is some claim that the majority of the senate favor making the repeal of the excess profits tax and the reduction of the surtaxes in the higher brackets retroactive so that they would apply to the taxes for this calendar year to be paid during the next year, but I am satisfied that there is so strong a majority in the house for the bill in its present form that it would be useless for the senate to undertake this.

"In my opinion the excess profits taxes having been repealed largely on the ground that they were passed on to the consumer, it would be indefensible to take off the taxes for this year, for if this is correct, they already have been, for the greater part of the year at least, added to the price of products. I shall certainly, as one of the conferees on the bill, resist any such attempt.

"As to the remainder of the bill there seems to be little controversy and from what I can learn the bill as a whole is being very well received by the country at large. Over 2,000,000 taxpayers will be directly benefited by the provisions raising the amount of exemption to heads of families and the additional allowances for dependents, which we reinserted on my motion.

"The repeal of the transportation taxes will, of course, benefit everybody, but more particularly the farmers, to whom the tax on freight has specially been a burden. There has been some claim on the part of the opposition that the bill would not provide sufficient revenue but, as it stands, with the excess profits tax collectable next year and the surtaxes remaining the same, we will have about $200,000,000 more than the bill provided as originally introduced. With reasonable economy this should be sufficient.

"The ways and means committee was attacked on the floor of the house by Bourke Cockran of New York because it had announced that it proposed to raise only a certain amount and that the amount must suffice. It did so state and we believe that we have a sufficient number of the house who will support us so that the amount which the bill will raise will not be exceeded by expenditures. This may not be our special prerogative but we are satisfied the country will support us in our economy program and in turn we propose to give the country the relief from taxation that is provided by the bill."

Health Bequest Of Rockefeller Figured Closely

Reason for Odd Number of Dollars Is Kept Secret by Donor and Harvard Authorities.

By HOLLAND.

Why the gift of $1,785,000, which was made a day or two ago by John D. Rockefeller for the purpose of establishing a school of public health at Harvard, cnsisted of a somewhat odd number of dollars is known only to Mr. Rockefeller and to the Harvard authorities. Mr. Rockefeller is careful in estimating the amount of money needed for his benefactions and he undoubtedly discovered that $1,785,000, instead of $2,000,000 or $1,500,000 were all that were needed

This benefaction will be followed by the establishment of the health school in neighborly touch with the Harvard medical school so that the two institutions can conveniently work in co-operation. The Harvard medical school received a gift of a large amount of money from the late James Stillman, who was long a personal friend as well as business associate of John D. Rockefeller and of Mr. Rockefeller's brother, William.

This gift was made public a few days after the departure of Mr. Rockefeller's son, John D., Jr., for China. There the younger Rockefeller will take part in the dedication or foundation of the medical school in which the senior Rockefeller has taken much interest. As John D. Rockefeller, jr.'s, guests went three or four men, some of them of eminence as health authorities. Among them was Dr. William H. Welch of Johns Hopkins university. Dr. Welch has been for years recognized here and in Europe as the foremost American authority on biology, bacteriology and kindred subjects. His mastery of these sciences led him some years ago to pursue a thorough study of the relation of them to the establishment of health especially among school children.

Health First.

Some 25 years ago John D. Rockefeller said to the late James D. Layng, with whom formerly he had important business association, that he had been occupied all his life up to that time in gaining wealth. He was no longer thus occupied, being careful only to conserve the wealth he had gained. His new work he said was to be the wise and beneficent distribution of his wealth in the service of humanity.

At that time Mr. Rockefeller was considering a large endowment for the establishment of an institute of research in the hope that it might make possible the discovery of the causes of some diseases so that if discovery were made then the remedy or prevention would be indicated. This institute was established and to it Mr. Rockefeller gave millions. It made possible the marvelous achievements of Flexner and the not so widely recognized but nevertheless important work of discovery by Avery, Stillman and others. Dr. Stillman, who is absorbingly interested in the research work at this Rockefeller foundation, is a son of the late James Stillman, and brother of James A. Stillman, who, until recently, was president of the National City bank.

Mr. Rockefeller was persuaded some time ago that valuable as are the discoveries which have been made at the foundation and perhaps still more valuable are to be the discoveries of which the world may in the course of a year or two have knowledge, nevertheless this work should be supplemented by instruction in health given to the young. In Europe some of the public schools already include health instruction as a part of the curriculum. The knowledge and practice of the rules which, if obeyed, give health and regarded in some of the European nations as of the first importance in the educational system of the schools.

Will Provide Teachers.

Mr. Rockefeller's gift to Harvard by means of which a school of public health can be established and adequately directed, means that the institution will graduate by and by young men and women who are qualified to go forth and teach the children in the schools the rules upon which health is based.

Some of Mr. Rockefeller's friends are of the opinion that his attention was first directed to the value of health education and also to the value of research work at the time when he recovered from a siege of ill health which has made him a hermit for almost two years. The treatment he then received and the knowledge which he at that time gained brought to his mind the thought that the world would be benefitted if there were adequate knowledge of the causes of disease and adequate means for the prevention of them as well as the training of the young in such manner of life as to make it certain that health would be established and maintained. This latest gift of Mr. Rockefeller although one of the smallest in the amount of money which the gift represents, brings the total of the distribution of the vast wealth which he gained up to somewhat in excess of $500,000,000. There are intimations that other benefactions will in due time be made by him.

Cattle—About 150 cattle were received fresh today, but no sales were reported and the market was nominal at the week's decline. For the week receipts have been 32,800 head and as a result of a slow demand and a mean market for dressed beef in the east, both range and native beeves are 50c to extremes 75c lower than a week ago. Cows and heifers and stockers and feeder grades are off 25@50c. Western killing cattle of all kinds are the lowest since 1911 and stockers and feeders are lower than they have been at any time since 1912.

Quotations on cattle: Choice to prime beeves, $9.00@9.60; good to choice beeves, $8.40@9.00; fair to good beeves, $7.75@8.35; common to fair beeves, $7.00@7.75; choice to prime yearlings, $9.35@9.85; good to choice yearlings, $8.75@9.35; fair to good yearlings, $8.00@8.75; common to fair yearlings, $7.00@8.00; choice to prime grass beeves, $6.75@7.50; good to choice grass beeves, $6.00@6.75; fair to good grass beeves, $5.00@6.00; common to fair grass beeves, $4.00@5.00; Mexicans, $4.00@4.75; choice grass heifers, $5.00@5.50; fair to good grass heifers, $3.75@4.75; choice to prime grass cows, $4.75@5.35; good to choice grass cows, $4.25@4.75; fair to good grass cows, $3.50@4.25; common to fair grass cows, $2.00@3.50; choice to prime feeders, $7.25@7.65; good to choice feeders, $6.50@7.10; fair to good feeders, $5.60@6.50; common to fair feeders, $4.75@5.50; good to choice stockers, $6.00@6.60; fair to good stockers, $5.00@6.00; common to fair stockers, $3.75@5.00; stock cows, $3.00@4.25; stock heifers, $4.00@5.00; stock calves, $4.50@8.00; bulls, stags, etc., $2.25@3.00.

Hogs—The week is closing with a small Saturday run of hogs, about 2,500 head, and a dull lower trade. Prices were mostly 10@25c lower than yesterday's average or in some cases about steady with yesterday's low close. Packers were indifferent buyers and shipping demand was very narrow, a dozen or more loads of hogs going over unsold. Best light hogs made a shipper top of $9.15 and bulk of the entire receipts sold from $8.50@7.75. A lower trend to prices have featured trade during the past week but declined have been very uneven and current values may be quoted anywhere from 45c@$1.00 lower for the week.

The New York Times.

By ALEXANDER DANA NOYES.
Chicago Tribune-Omaha Bee Leased Wire.

New York, Aug. 27.—On the stock exchange a week which had brought about the first substantial recovery from the mid-summer weakness and depression ended with an uncertain market. Declines and advances fairly balanced one another and in each direction the changes were in numerous instances a point or more.

The market's action seemed to confirm Wall street's belief that the preceding recovery represented retreat of the speculators for the fall, rather than new buying, and that so far as the general public was concerned the whole recent movement of prices has meant little more than that this public, in its present mood, is disposed neither to sell nor to buy. That is a familiar enough attitude for this time of year, but it is also a perfectly natural expression of feeling in respect to a situation in which the real trend of things has not yet defined itself.

Market Not Affected.

The application for a receiver for the Interborough company was not known during business and did not affect the market. It is doubtful if it would have affected it in any case. The position of the company has been fully known to the general public during recent months and continuance of the existing status has more than once depended, as the company's president states that it now depends, on extension of existing loans.

With the European markets doing practically no business, foreign exchange was quiet. Sterling yielded a fraction and marks declined again, both movements doubtless resulting from small speculative sales in the New York market.

The most interesting in interesting in European exchange from the fact that the final payment on the 1,000,000,000 mark reparations installment will have been publicly made by Wednesday. But recent events have shown that exchange rates are no longer solely dominated, as they were a few weeks ago, by the shifting of credits in the German operation. The week-end summaries of the gold import movement indicate that something like $20,000,000 in all had arrived last week.

Loans Again Reduced.

A further decrease of $27,000,000 in the loan and investment account of the New York associated banks, reported in today's statement, brought the total reduction for the month to $108,000,000. Today's total figure showed a decrease since July 1 of $219,000,000. It was smaller by $1,082,000,000 than at the high point of loan expansion on October 11, 1919, and is $438,000,000 less than in the armistice week of 1918.

The course of the loan account this coming autumn will probably reflect the revival in general trade.

New York Cotton.

New York, Aug. 27.—The dominating influence in the New York cotton market this morning was a report of cooler, showery weather in the cotton belt.

Underselling caused by this report, the market opened 11 to 15 points lower, followed by rallies on renewed buying by local traders, who took profits yesterday. At the end of the first 15 minutes the market was steady at about 10 points net decline, with Liverpool and the continent both buying.

December sold at $15.40, or 80 points below yesterday's high record, after which the price rallied to $15.56. December sold at 16c and closed at $15.98, with the general market closing strong at a net advance of 27 to 34 points. The south was an active buyer here in the late tradings.
