Animals in Preparing for an early and unusually severe winter and their opinions are backed Squirrels are storing up unusually large quantities of nuts. The prairie presumably preparing for migration a month earlier than usual. Raymond L. Ditmars, curator at the Bronx zoo, admits the animals are making preparations for winter much ahead of the usual time, but he inclines to the belief that they have been deceived by the misbehavior of the seasons. Spring came in a month ahead of time this year and now the leaves have about
