

Rotary Spirit Making Itself Felt in Europe

Local Club Receives Reports On International Convention and Hears Addresses By Banker Kennedy.

The spirit of fraternity among business men of the world and a better understanding among all nations will do more to promote world peace than treaties and armed forces. John L. Kennedy, president of the United States National bank, declared in a speech made before the Rotary club Wednesday at the Rome hotel.

Tom Kelly and Harry Weller, delegates to the international convention of Rotary clubs at Edinburgh, Scotland, in June gave short reports of the convention. Both men were guests at Rotary dinners given in Paris and London and declared the "spirit of Rotary" was finding many friends in Europe.

Mr. Kennedy and his family have just returned from a several week's tour in Europe, in which they visited many battlefields.

Address by Kennedy.

While in Edinburgh, Scotland, Mr. Kennedy talked with several Scotch business men who had attended the international convention of Rotary clubs which was held there in June.

"The seed planted there by the American Rotarians in convention will bear fruit," said Mr. Kennedy. "The European business men caught the spirit of fraternity and the Rotarian idea of service above self. International conventions in which business men of the world may exchange ideas for the betterment of civilization will do more to promote a higher civilization than anything tried before."

"Europe's opportunity to get back to normal and to a business and industrial stability lies in the efforts it makes to get back to honest labor. Europe is growing tired of being entertained. Europeans are beginning to see the necessity of producing and getting back to work."

"The great war has taught Europe, in fact the whole world, a horrible lesson. Europe will arise from the ashes of that war with its lesson well learned. A higher civilization is bound to follow."

Slogan, "Get Better Acquainted."

A majority of the members of the club was in attendance at the meeting. P. F. Peterson was chairman. "Get Better Acquainted" was the slogan adopted by the September group of Rotarians who will stage all the programs during this month.

Intensive work along the line of getting all members better acquainted with one another will be done from now on.

Tramway Directors To Consider Reduction Of Employees' Wages

Directors of the street railway company will meet today to consider a possible reduction of employees' wages, according to R. A. Leusser, general manager. The street car men said yesterday they would not act until an order had been issued authorizing the wage reduction.

The combined salaries of eight officers of the company totaling $58,700 a year also drew the fire of the commission. The lowest salary of any of the officials is $4,000. The average pay of the carmen is $153 a month, according to an annual report of the company filed with the commission.
