High Admission Keeps Many Away From State Fair

With Exposition Practically Over Figures Show Decline in Attendance Of 45,627.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 9.—(Special)—With only "Get-away-Day" to go the total attendance at the state fair this year is 45,627 less than last year. The total attendance tonight was 225,037, as compared with 270,664 last year. Friday's attendance was 18,789, as compared with 29,372 last year, a decrease of 10,583.

Despite the falling off in attendance, the fair management announced tonight that the percentage decrease in attendance of the Nebraska state fair was less than that of other fairs held in the country. The difficulty along financial lines facing farmers, who in past years were regular attendants, together with failure of the management to lower admission prices, were given as reasons for the smaller attendance. The management declared that lowering of admission prices would have been financial suicide as practically all large contracts necessarily were signed at a time when prices were at the peak.

Despite the rain, hundreds witnessed the stock parade today. The horses, ponies, mules and cattle wearing their ribbons won during the fair made a pretty spectacle. The parade was led by the Boys' band of Kimball, the Boys' Industrial School band of Kearney, the Boys' Scout band of Chadron and Desdunc's Greater Omaha colored band.

Consolidated Schools Fight Is Continued In Hamilton County

Aurora, Neb., Sept. 9.—(Special)—Answering the petition for a writ of mandamus of the moderator, the director and treasurer of school district No. 53 of Hamilton county filed in district court their reasons for opposing a contract with the Phillips consolidated school for the transportation and education of the children of No. 53. The director and treasurer say in their answer that the Phillips district has no authority to go outside of its territory and haul the children of other districts. The director and treasurer say that Phillips cannot haul its own children. It deals with the drivers as independent contractors and requires bonds of them. The contract proposed by Phillips was to haul the children at 30 cents per mile or about $9 per day and to teach the children below the high school at the rate of $4 per month.

Growth of Aurora Schools May Demand Large Staff

Aurora, Neb., Sept. 9.—(Special)—Because of the large advance enrollment in the Aurora High school, it is probable that an additional teacher will have to be employed. The divisions in Ninth grade classes will be too large without additional teaching force. Many high school students from the country districts will attend at Aurora this year.

Randolph Farmer Badly Injured by Kick of Horse

Randolph, Neb., Sept. 9.—(Special)—Bert Laurence, farmer, was nearly killed here when a horse kicked him in the abdomen and severed his small intestine. An operation righted the condition and it is believed that he will live.

Airline Network Ends in Office in Heart of London

Regular Service for Most Points in Central Europe Available From Air Travel Bureau.

London, Sept. 9.—"Car for Amsterdam at the door." A couple of passengers, exhorted by the leather-lunged official, reach for their suitcases and pass out into the street.

"Brussels." Another couple follows. "Paris." This time there are half a dozen, four men and two women. The latter are Americans, each with a "grip" and horn-rimmed spectacles, beaming at the thought of "doing Yurru" by airplane. The scene is an air travel bureau in the heart of the West End—the terminus of a score of airways spun like a spider's web across Europe, radiating from Warsaw for east to Malaga in the south of Spain. It is 9 o'clock in the morning and the cars are setting out for Croydon airfield.

"What about my machine for Copenhagen?" asks a nervous passenger. "Car in a minute, sir," says the official, reassuringly. "Yours is a private machine. We've had to phone the airframe to see if a pilot was available." There is no regular airway to Copenhagen yet, but the travel bureau can always arrange for a private machine. If necessary one can ring up for a machine to Constantinople—and the car for Croydon would be waiting on one's doorstep inside of half an hour. Air travel, however, is not the simple matter that it seems. While to the average man flying is merely an unusual sensation, to the authorities it is a method of travel requiring regulations such as no other form of locomotion has approached.

Some of the regulations are of intimate interest to the passenger. For instance, he must not take a camera without permission or carry a letter in his pocket or drop anything overboard from the machine. All these are crimes, and liable to heavy punishment. The laws, too, against aerial smuggling are particularly drastic and include everything from a gramme of radium to a revolver, a packet of saccharin or a pound of tobacco, while for a passenger to take a carrier pigeon aboard is sheer outrage.
