

Grand Jurys Getting Down To Fine Points

Many Indictments Expected to Be Returned in October—Stock-Broker Witnesses Lose Debonair Attitude.

The special grand jury which began its deliberations in the court house, September 8, will enter upon another busy week this morning.

Investigation with respect to promotion schemes is not the only business before this body, although stock company operations was the chief business which moved the district court judges to call the jury.

It was noted last week that some of those summoned before the grand jury did not carry the debonair appearance they assumed in the heydays of their stock-selling operations.

Some of these men formerly had been observed in richly appointed suites, smoking choice brands and otherwise indicating easy money.

Their faces last week were not the same. The glad-to-meet-you expression had faded and in its place there were looks of serious apprehension.

Some were accompanied by lawyers. Trunks and suitcases filled with records of the concerns being investigated also indicated that this grand jury is not a swivel-chair rubber-stamp jury, but is getting down to serious business.

Over in the Omaha National bank building Attorney General Clarence A. Davis, Judge W. C. Morsey, special counsel for the attorney general, and T. J. McGuire, assistant attorney general, are working until nearly midnight every day and on Sundays, preparing their cases for the grand jury.

The actual proceedings inside the grand jury room are a closed book and will be until the indictments shall have been returned and those indicted have been taken into custody by the sheriff's department.

It is anticipated that along about October 1, some indictments will be returned and that is why some officials that formerly wore fancy official titles are now resting uneasily.

President Harding and Party Review Future Army Officers at West Point

President Harding Reviews West Point Cadets.

For the first time since he became the nation's chief executive, President Harding paid a visit to West Point. After being escorted by the Hudson by destroyers, the president and his party, which included Secretary of War Weeks and Attorney General Daugherty, landed at West Point. A small boat took Mr. Harding ashore from the Mayflower, and he was greeted by Gen. Douglas MacArthur. A troop of cavalry escorted the president's motor car to the garrison. Upon reaching the parade ground at the academy, the president reviewed the cadets. This was followed by a luncheon, after which a golf game was planned. The photographs show President Harding and Secretary of War Weeks, with his escort, inspecting the cadets.

Warden Fenton Has His Troubles

Arrival of "Human Fly" Announced After Busiest Day in History of Prison.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 18.—(Special Telegram.)—Warden Fenton of the state penitentiary says "Old Man Trouble" was surely lurking on his trail Saturday.

The state prison had one of the busiest days in its history. Twelve convicts were received from county sheriffs and 18 removed to the state reformatory. Those moved to the reformatory were furnace men and laundrymen. With winter coming on it was thought advisable to get the laundry furnace in operation.

In transferring the prisoners it was necessary to use extreme care in selecting the men. There are no walls around the reformatory and men whose integrity was considered best were moved. The reformatory now has 34 "human fly" prisoners living in it.

While resting up from the busy day the warden received a telephone call from Sheriff Duffey of Holt county, announcing that he was bringing Ames Fancher to begin serving a sentence.

His arrival would not prove troublesome were it not for the fact that he is a "human fly" and has made a boast that he can climb any building.

"How am I going to keep that kind of a man in?" the warden queried after receiving the news.

Body of Soldier Is Found Floating Down River Near Bluffs

Nebraska University

The body of a negro soldier, badly decomposed, was found Saturday afternoon floating in the Missouri river opposite the Thirty-seventh street pumping station of the Council Bluffs waterworks. A big sandbar has formed near the middle of the river at that point and J. Fleckner, foreman at the pumping plant, saw something that resembled a body floating in the current and drift against the bar on the Nebraska side. He jumped in a rowboat and caught the body after it had floated from the bar and was speeding down the river.

Coroner Henry Cutler found the man to be wearing the full military uniform and when he examined the clothing he found the discharge papers of Joseph McKee. He had been discharged from the 24th infantry, negro, August 7, 1921, at Columbus, N. M. The discharge papers showed that he had enlisted at Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis, August 6, 1920. He was 21 at the time of his enlistment.

There were no marks of violence on the body, which apparently had been in the water several weeks. Not a cent of money was found in his pockets, but when his shoes were removed 25 cents rolled from one of them.

Mayor Misses Chance to Make Aviation Speech

One Hundred Flyers Gather in Council Chamber to Hear Sunny Jim But He Was Hour Late.

For once in his career as an eloquent orator, a public citizen and mayor of Omaha, "Sunny Jim" Dahlman couldn't find an audience.

Yes! listen: Mayor Jim had a knockout of a speech all carried up on aviation, even if he never knew of Darius Green and his flying machine. He was to be honored speaker at a mass meeting of Omaha boys in the council chamber of the city hall Saturday night, the occasion being the opening of a stamp-selling campaign advertising the International Aero congress in Omaha or November 3, 4, 5.

All Primed for Speech. What the mayor wasn't going to tell those boys about aviation and the proposed aero meet! Oh, glory! He was all ready for 'em and at 7 o'clock, the boys were ready to hear the honorable mayor. They waited impatiently and he failed to show up.

It was only an hour later when Mayor Jim stepped "tout sweet" into the city hall to spring his speech on the boys, for the little ones are dear to his heart.

The place was as dark as a catacomb—no one sitting around but the janitor. The council chamber was as bare of boys as a Sunday school picnic.

Arrived One Hour Late. Mayor Jim had mistaken the time of his appointment one hour. He mused, then silently slipped from the building to save his speech for another night.

Nearly 100 boys responded to the early meeting and waxed enthusiastic over the stamp-selling campaign. They were each given 1,000 stamps to start in the contest to capture that first prize—an airplane trip to Chicago. Others wishing to enter the contest are instructed to

Hickmans Are Sentenced To Life in Prison

Murderers of Page County Deputy Sheriff Denied New Trial—Will Go To Fort Madison.

Atlantic, Ia., Sept. 18.—(Special Telegram.)—Art and Ben Hickman were sentenced to the state penitentiary for life for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Bert Patton of Page county, who was shot while running down the Hickmans following their holdup of a dice party at Sennagoah on the afternoon of February 12.

The pronouncing of sentence followed the overruling of a motion for a new trial filed by the defendants' attorneys. One of the grounds on which a new trial was asked was that W. E. Mitchell, one of the prosecuting attorneys, was unduly familiar in his talk to the jury. It was charged that he laid his hand on the jurors' knees while talking to them.

Judge Cullison, in sentencing the Hickmans to the penitentiary for life, merely carried out to the verdict of the jury which found the Hickmans guilty. The Hickmans were found guilty in district court here three weeks ago.

They will be taken to Fort Madison by Sheriff Borland of Page county.
