

A Way to Remove Every Variety of Stain

Before a garment has been worn at the color, whether it has been sold as fast color or not.

A simple method of setting colors in wash material is to soak the material, or garment, in two gallons of soft water, to which a teaspoon of turpentine has been added. Wring out and dry in the house, where the process will be slow. A garment in which the color is set will stay longer than a faded one.

Remove all stains from clothes before laundering. If stains are left in, the extra rubbing will cause a weak spot.

Grass stains can be eradicated with butter spread over the spots and laid in the sun, or washing with alcohol will remove them.

Fruit stains can be taken out with the juice of a ripe tomato.

To remove tar stains, saturate the cloth underneath the smeared area to absorb the stain. Paint stains, though hard and dry, can be done away with by using equal parts of ammonia and turpentine. Saturate the spot three times with the liquid, rubbing it hard, then wash out with warm soap suds.

To put an end to ink stains, cover them with lemon juice and salt and place in the sunshine. If the ink is set, it may be necessary to repeat the process several times.

Many heavy stains, such as iodine, can be removed by stretching the garment over a deep bowl and pouring boiling water through the spot.

Traces of mildew will yield to plain buttermilk where chemicals will not touch them. There is always a danger of fading the color by using hydrochloric or oxalic acid on blue fabrics. Soak the mildewed spot well with buttermilk and allow to stand for 12 hours in a dark place. Rinse in clear, warm water and the mildew will disappear rapidly.

Alum water, two ounces to the tub, sets purple, lavender and green. Gray, black and dark blues are improved by being soaked in a strong salt solution.

Mysterious iron rust stains are caused by bluing. The bluing contains iron, and the soda and potash in the soap left in the garment, coming in contact with the bluing, leaves a rust stain unless the clothing is well rinsed before dipping in the bluing. See that the bluing used contains no iron, as, no matter how well the clothes are rinsed, there is danger of these marks. Rust stains, if not removed, ruin the texture of the cloth.

A onion juice will take rust stains out, but be sure to soak the garment afterward in weak solution of household ammonia if there is danger of damaging the color.

Household Hints

Chopped pimentos are delicious in jellied veal loaf.

Pudding moulds should not be more than three-fourths full, as room must be allowed for mixture to rise.

Lettuce will go further and decorate better if shredded.

Lemon jelly is delicious served with a custard sauce.

A variety of herb vinegars is a handy thing to have on hand in the kitchen.

When making pineapple jam run the slices of pineapple through food chopper.

Salad ingredients should always be chilled before mixing.

Who will clean the pan? —

Sprinkle Kitchen Klezzer in pan, add a little water and bring to boil, stirring briskly.

"I Will"—Says KLENZER and I'll do it Quickly Easily and Antiseptically

Howard Stoves

Ranges and Heaters

Let the Howard representative show you how the gas and smoke consuming design of a Howard Heater gets every heat unit out of the fuel, giving you more heat with less coal.

A Howard Heater is the Good Old Watch Dog Over Your Coal Bills

And it warms the floor, throwing its cheery heat downward so intensely that the family cat finds it more comfortable several feet away, rather than sleeping under the heater.
