My Marriage Problems

Adelle Garrison's New Phase of "REVELATIONS OF A WIFE"

(Copyright, 1921, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

The Duel Bess Dean and Midge Gaily Fought. My little feeling of triumph over Bess Dean because of Dicky's apparent indifference to her comfort was intensified by the quick gleam of disappointment which shot from her eyes when he requested me to drive them over to the hotel for her luggage.

She was too good an actress to make any outward objection to the arrangement, and I, on my part, was determined that she should not think I had the slightest objection to her taking the short motor trip alone with Dicky in his new car. I assumed the authoritative conjugal air which is the prerogative of a wife past the bride stage, and spoke with little spin in it. You'll have time to go down to the five-arch bridge and the high bridge before dinner, and pick up her luggage besides. And I really ought not to take the time to go this morning. I've neglected my mending to go fishing with this Bess lord of mine until there isn't a button on Junior's rompers, and my husband's clothing is disreputable.

"Oh all the indolent masculine creatures in this world! Bess, he simply is too lazy to get out his new car. But I'll not let him get away with anything like that. See here, Friend Husband, just run out that new beauty and give Bess a little spin in it. You'll have time to go down to the five-arch bridge and the high bridge before dinner, and pick up her luggage besides. And I really ought not to take the time to go this morning. I've neglected my mending to go fishing with this Bess lord of mine until there isn't a button on Junior's rompers, and my husband's clothing is disreputable."

I was rewarded for the effort with which I got out this speech by seeing a look of impatience on Dicky's face and a gleam of distinct respect in Bess Dean's eyes. That she gauged exactly my true feeling toward her was sure, for I recognized at their full worth her keenness of perception and her intuition.

"You Never Can Tell—" But I knew, also, that in any antagonist, for it made the zest of the game the keener. And that there was a definite grade of battle between us, the prize the avenging of her vanity for the old thrust I had given it, or a new wound, we both by this time understood, all the more clearly because it was an understanding that could not be spoken, but ran like a compelling undertow beneath the apparently placid current of our intercourse.

Mrs. C. M. Wilhelm is chairman of the exhibition committee for the society. She spent a busy Monday morning, as did Mr. Block, getting "set" for the Nebraska exhibit, which opened at noon, to continue throughout the month.

Problems That Perplex

Answered by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

How to Manage Husband.

An interesting game is to have each person use the letters of her own name to make up a set of sentences on "How to Manage a Husband." Miss Eden Smith, for instance, might have something like this:

He levate his mind. It on't nag. Never make fun of him. A agree with his political views. S mill often. Make him think he's having his own way. I treat myself in his hobbies. I treat him with consideration. He ave meals on time.

Thankful: From what you say I judge your scalp is too dry. Rub some kind of oil or vaseline into the scalp before each shampoo and a very little afterward. Get it well into the scalp and it will not make your hair greasy. Not often than every other week have a shampoo. In your case perhaps once a month would be often enough. Your scalp might respond to a good massage. Often one's scalp is very tight to the head. This prevents circulation. It should be loosened by rubbing and lifting.

D. A. R. Notes. Shelton chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution were entertained at an all-day meeting Saturday, October 1, by Mesdames Clarence C. Bliss and Anna Scott at their homes in Elm Creek.

Mrs. M. A. Hostetter, regent of the chapter gave a report of the Continental Congress held in Washington, D. C., in April.

Miss Parish a Guest of Honor. Miss Winifred Brandt entertained several tables of bridge for Miss Helen Parish on Tuesday.

Miss Pauline Richey will give a luncheon Wednesday at the Athletic club in honor of Miss Parish, a bride of the week. Her guests will be the Misses Helen Parish, Margaret Parish, Dorothy Hipple, Dorothy Cavanaugh and Winifred Brandt.

"And almost as invariably they come back home when they are tired of roving. But here is Dicky with the car. Let me give you an infallible recipe for binding his soul to yours with hands of iron. Just keep up a continual incense burning about that car, its speed, its beauty and especially its hill-climbing. And if you are motorically enough to throw in a question about its consumption of gas and oil, which will give him a chance to deliver his daily incantation upon the economy of his car, he will be yours forever."

She rose from her seat and held up her hand frantically in a warning imitation of a school child signalling a teacher. "Please kin I be excused now, teacher?" she asked, with apparent anxiety. "My maw sez I mustn't let you learn me too much in one day or my brains will leak out."

This time my laugh was genuine for Bess Dean is irresistible when she is imitating one of the pupils whom she detests so cordially. And as I caught mother irritated glance from Dicky as he helped her into the new car and sped away, I felt that perhaps this two-weeks' visit might not be so uncomfortable as I had feared, if I could but plan my steps carefully that Dicky might not suspect my real motive in urging him to politeness.

WHY—

Does a Kettle Sing? According to the generally accredited story, it was the observation of a "singing" kettle which led James Watt to a clearer understanding of the steam engine and what it might be made to accomplish, for, like Newton's analysis of the falling apple, Watt not only heard the kettle sing but he analyzed the reasons behind this and sensed the fact that made to perform a number of useful functions.

Primarily, of course, the "singing" of the kettle is due to the fact that the water inside the vessel is being heated and transformed into steam, which, being hot, seeks to rise and escape through the spout. In doing this, it passes through the comparatively narrow opening with a hissing or whistling sound like that when the wind forces itself through the limbs of the trees or the narrow cracks in the side of a house. Not only do the particles of steam vi-

Where It Started

"Whistle For It." "If you want such-and-such a thing, go whistle for it" is a common enough expression. It originated in a quaint drinking custom, probably dating as early as 1669. Tankards were made with whistles attached in such a way that as long as there was any liquor in the tankard the whistle could not be blown; when the mug was empty it sounded. So if the drinker wanted more to drink

How Many Men Keep Youthful Looking

It is well known that within recent years the men have become extremely nervous of beauty specialists and masseurs. Not only the fastidious, but men generally have a care for personal appearance. This has also led to the employment by many of home methods calculated to enhance the presence of physical attractiveness. Of these perhaps the most widely used is the mercurized wax treatment, which explains the mystery of the silver-haired gentlemen with the boyish face. The mercurized wax, obtainable at any drug store, is applied the same as cold cream, only not rubbed in. This gradually absorbs the dead and half-dead cuticle in tiny particles, revealing the fresher, health-erased skin beneath. To secure best results many apply the wax at night, washing it off in the morning. Women not only encourage husbands in this, but use the treatment themselves.

To keep away wrinkles and flabbiness, many men use, after shaving preferably, a simple lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered vasoline in a half pint of witch hazel. This gives splendid results.

Irritating Itching Skin and Scalp Troubles quickly ended by zemo FOR SKIN IRRITATIONS
