WHEN such fervent golfers as Dick Stewart, Cub Potter and George C. Smith spend a Saturday afternoon away from the links there must be something going on that is worth watching. As a matter of fact these worthies and others were keeping their eye on the ball all right, but this time it was a foot ball. On these snappy fall afternoons the Creighton foot ball field is the place to be, and a big crowd saw Creighton trim Des Moines last Saturday. Among those in the boxes and on the bleachers were Messrs. and Mesdames Frank Selby, Harold Gritche, Burdette Kirken-dall, Milo Gates, Paul Gallagher, Mrs. W. J. Graham and daughters, Helen and Dorothy, Misses Eleanor Burkley, Regina Connell, Dorothy Klipinger and Ann Kelleher, Messrs. Frank Campbell, David Caldwell, Charles Moriarty, Tom Murphy, Ted Crofoot, Charles Allison, Fred Daugherty.

Problems That Perplex Answered by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The Bride and Her Gifts. As soon as her invitations are issued a bride-elect will daily find herself the recipient of gifts. She must personally return by note prompt and cheerful, with every article as soon as possible after it arrives. Unless prevented by illness there is no excuse for her detention of this task to another, and none but an inconsiderate or ignorant person will fail in this duty or postpone its fulfillment, no matter how modest the offering may be or from whom it comes.

Loneliness. It doesn't do much good to ask people if they like you. You can judge far better for yourself by their actions. No doubt your two girl friends will be with you boys like to talk over their little affairs. But if you will not be jealous of their "secrets" and continue to be a good fellow with them, I feel sure your friendship will be welcome to them. Don't pity yourself or be suspicious that they don't like you. Just believe that they do, and good and true and friendly with them, and I think you will weather the storm.

L. O. and S. H.: A "wooden nickel" means something of no value. "Soul kiss" is supposed to be very heartfelt. Whether or not you should ask the boy in on your return home depends upon the hour. If it is early in the evening, you should do so. If it is late you should not invite him to stop, nor should he accept if you did.

Girl in Doubt: People differ. Stop listening to talkative trouble-makers. If in your own heart you know you care for this man you will be quite safe to marry him even though you do not have the high string emotional nature your friends recommend.

Janet and Olga: My dear, I think it would be a very great mistake for you to pick up strange fellows and go automobile riding with them. You say you are new in the town. Why not try to make a good reputation for yourselves by associating with people of known respectability?

E. S.: In about a week I will have some good suggestions for Halloween, with illustrations. Watch The Bee for them.

B. T.: Send me your name and address and I will write you a personal reply.

Romance Begun Nine Years Ago In Austria Culminates In Marriage of Omaha Girl

The culmination of a romance started nine years ago in Prague, was the wedding of Miss Julia Stenicka, and Vaclav Kozak, jr., Saturday morning at St. Wenceslaus church. Miss Stenicka was 15, when touring Austria with her mother, she met Mr. Kozak, 16, and though they have not seen each other since then, their regard has grown by correspondence through the intervening years. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stenicka. She has been educated at the Philadelphia music academy and the Darlington seminary, Westchester, Pa., where she taught violin last year. She plans to continue her study of music abroad. Henry Cox was formerly her instructor. The wedding was a quiet one. Helen Stenicka was bridesmaid for her sister, and her father, Charles

My Marriage Problems "REVELATIONS OF A WIFE"

Adelle Garrison's New Phase of "REVELATIONS OF A WIFE" Copyright 1921, by Newpage Feature Service, Inc. The Strange Sight Madge and Lillian Came Upon. Whatever may be said or thought of Bess Dean's principles, there is no doubt of her gameness. She must have known that her shoes were too small for her, but she took them from me with no slightest hint of the dilemma which she was facing as the result of her request to borrow my footgear, a request which—as she no doubt intended—had barred me from the projected expedition down the Rip Van Winkle roadway. "I'll be ready whenever the rest of you are," she said, and carried the shoes off to her room. "Little idiot!" Lillian commented emphatically, when a few seconds later we found ourselves alone. "She'll wear those things now if they kill her, and that's about what they will do—stretch them on at all, her toes will be all cramped together and doubled up. Of course, her stockings will be the thinnest silk, instead of the lightweight wool she ought to wear for this trip, and you can wager your last cent that she'll stretch the sneakers all she can on her shoe-trees before she puts them on. You can say goodbye to your shoes, Madge, when that lady gets through with them."

WHY— Are Tears Salty? In view of the fact that health experts and physicians always advocate the drinking of perfectly pure water, it is surprising to find that this quite different from bringing the more delicate portions of the body when applied directly to them. But it should be remembered that the action of drinking water—taking it into the stomach where it is used by the blood and the various organs—is quite different from bringing the same liquid into contact with the extremely sensitive nerves of the eyes and other parts of the body. Here it is necessary for the water to be softened and slightly altered so that it will not injure the delicate tissues. It is for this reason that nature sees to it that a slight amount of salt, taken from the food which we eat, is mixed with the water which goes to make up tears—a liquid which is constantly in the eye and which, through the winking action of the Eastern Artist Comments On Exhibit Mr. Henry McCarter of Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts was in Omaha as the guest of the Omaha Society of Fine Arts on Friday and Saturday of last week. He has been in Denver for the past 10 weeks teaching and painting. After looking carefully over the Nebraska artists' exhibition at the public library he said: "I am amazed that an exhibition of this quality could be gathered here in Nebraska. The walls have the distinction of being well hung. The exhibition has a note of the substantial throughout. It is a level exhibit. There are several accents of pronounced value in the modern tendencies." After examining the work of Robert F. Gilder, he said: "This man interests me greatly—his color is so sensitive. In the central picture of the group (a snow picture) he increases the cold of that steel blue color until he comes to the ice and in the moisture of the eye he sees green next, which is right (we see color largely through the moisture of the eye). The green is greatly influenced by yellows. Under the blood line of the eye comes the pink influence on the white snow. I am surprised to find a man with such a color sense in this part of the west. He stopped before the wall of paintings by Augustus Dunbar. "This man is nobody's fool. He can paint. There are bits of exquisite painting in some of his canvases." Alice Cleaver he called "a really big personality in paint." "She has volume and comprehension, and a magnificent use of reserved color. I never in my life saw a better piece of painting than that of the tureen in the 'Still Life' (catalogue No. 39)."

Of Stanley Jack he said, "He has a good eye for color. He sees things interestingly. I like particularly his 'Land of the Rainbow'; it is delightfully witty." Robert Dinning: "Good color, good drawing." Hermine Stellar: "A fine sincerity of expression; in the one portrait there is a slight hesitation (184) while in the other she achieves a generous abandon (catalogue No. 183)."

FARMER'S WIFE SAYS SHE CAME NEAR STARVING

Mrs. Peterson Suffered Awful Pains After Every Meal —Is Now Well as Ever.

Declaring she was actually starving to keep from suffering awful misery, Mrs. Amy Peterson, wife of a prosperous farmer at Lakeville, Mass., gave out a remarkable statement recently in connection with her relief through the use of Tanlac. "Sometimes I wonder how I lived through it all," she said. "I would have attacks of acute indigestion nearly every time I ate anything. Those terrible cramping pains and the distress from gas and bloating were almost unbearable and I just thought there was no hope for me. 'But now I'm eating anything and I feel as strong and well as I ever felt in my life. I've gained back all the weight I lost and six pounds besides and I know from my experience what Tanlac will do. It's the best medicine in the world.' Tanlac is sold in Omaha by the Sherman & McConnell Drug Co., and by leading druggists everywhere.

Romance in Origin Of Superstitions

By H. I. KING. The Cows in the Corn. "Twice within the last 18 months," writes a contributor to one of the popular weeklies, "the superstitious members of my family have been thrown into alarm by cows breaking into the garden. This for generations has been considered an infallible sign of death to an inhabitant of the house, but so far there have been no deaths."

"The Murder of the Bull." It took place when the threshing was nearly over in Attica. Barley and wheat were laid upon the bronze altar of Zeus on the Acropolis and oxen were driven around the altar. The ox which approached the altar and ate the wheat and barley was selected for the sacrifice. An axe and knife, wet with water brought by maidens called "water carriers," were handy. With the axe one butcher killed the ox and another butcher cut its throat with a knife. Then both the butchers fled. But they and the water carriers were apprehended and brought to trial for their lives for having "murdered the ox." Each participant in the "murder" blaming the other it was finally decided that the axe and the knife were the guilty parties and they were "executed" by being cast into the sea.

This is the ritual as Frazer gives it and he considers the "murdered" ox an embodiment of the corn-spirit. It is easy to see that the

BETTER THAN CALOMEL Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after-effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Headaches, "dizziness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 50c
