

Boy War Hero's Bliss Given Jolt By Family Row

Wife Brings Alienation Suit Against Father-in-Law, Who Blames Girl's Mother For Separation.

Retreat wasn't in the military tactics book Raymond Burreigh, 16, "youngest Yank" studied when he went into the army four year ago, and he came home from war a hero. But Boche bullets were nothing compared to the stinging words of an angered mother-in-law, it seems and last Sunday Ray added the word retreat to his vocabulary, according to his father.

He had gone to the home of the parents of his bride, Corinne, 13, who, she says, "went back to mother" in a fit of jealous anger.

Father Is Sued. And now his father, J. R. Burreigh of Lincoln, has been brought into the litigation by Corinne in an alienation of affections suit for $25,000 damages.

Ray and Corinne, formerly Miss Corinne Buffum of College View, were married last January 13. Her husband abandoned her October 2, she claims, but Ray Monday night at his room in the Omaha Y. M. C. A. claimed Corinne left him.

"I love her and I always will," he professed then, "but I never want to see her again if she carries this thing through."

And now a feud looms between the parents of the boy-and-girl man-and-wife.

"We did everything to make Corinne happy," said the elder Burreigh yesterday.

"We even bought her teddy bears and silk stockings when she complained she didn't have as nice clothes as other girls."

Barrage of Epitaphs. "If anyone should be sued for alienation of affections in this business, it should be Mrs. Buffum. She told me she had no stone to throw until she separated Ray and Corinne."

"No such thing," counters Mrs. Buffum, before whose barrage of abuse to call police Burreigh says Ray fled last Sunday. When he came to see Corinne, she says, "all ways has had plenty of teddy bears and silk stockings. Her trousseau was as complete as any bride's whip she married."

"I tried to get the marriage annulled when I could," Raymond wasn't 21, but I couldn't."

Young Wife III.

Corinne, over whose alienation suit the family feud hovers, was reported ill and confined to her bed yesterday, but her mother did the talking for her.

"Do you think her illness is the result of shattered romance?" the mother was asked.

"I don't know whether it's that or a breakdown from trying to make a man out of a 16-year-old boy," she countered.

"Young Burreigh was too much of a hero to find any time for work or to look after his wife. People made too much fuss over him after he came back from France."

Both Too Young.

But Ray did work, his father claims, and came to Omaha because of the chance for a better position.

"I think the whole trouble is that they were both too young when they were married," he said.

"They had little frequent intervals and one night when Corinne saw Ray dancing with another girl at a public dance she ran out of the dance hall and was found at police headquarters at 3 a. m. She had gone there to spend the night."

Mrs. K. E. Tumbers, 194-Drake Court, relative of the "youngest Yank," laughed heartily yesterday when asked about the $25,000 alienation suit.

A Bit Rough.

"They're so young," she chuckled, "we don't take any of their troubles seriously. I haven't seen Raymond for a week but I thought they were happy and that she would join him here soon."

But it seems the youngsters' matrimonial sea was a bit rough at times, for the elder Burreigh claims one reason Ray sided he could get a better job in Omaha was because he couldn't bear the taunts of his chums who persisted in teasing him because his wife "got mad" and "went home to mother to stay over night."

The elder Burreigh is former owner of the Basket Chain stores in Omaha and Lincoln.

29 Months in France.

His son, Raymond, enlisted in the army at St. Joseph, Mo., when he was but 12 years old, but passed for 20 when examined.

He spent 29 months in France and served through the Chateau Thierry and Argonne offensives. While in the army he served in practically every branch from infantry to aviation.

Ray and Corinne went to school together before the war, and when he returned unscathed from the A. E. F., he soon fell wounded through the heart with a fatal Cupid's dart and the wedding bells rang out for them.

Doug and Mary to Spend Six Months in Paris Yearly

Beautiful 12 1-2 Acre Estate and 16-Room House at Beverly Hills Is Advertised for Sale.

Los Angeles, Oct. 11.—First authentic confirmation of a statement made by "Doug" Fairbanks and Mary Pickford in Europe recently that they plan to spend half of every year in Paris was given out in Los Angeles today.

An advertisement appearing in a morning paper announcing the beautiful 12 1/2-acre estate of the two-film leaders, for sale or lease, was verified at the Fairbanks home.

With it, it was said, they propose to stay abroad "indefinitely." They still will retain property at Santa Barbara and the Pickford home in Los Angeles.

The estate is located north of Beverly Hills. Included in the sale or lease advertisement is the information that the 16-room home is to be disposed of with the estate.

As part of the sale also is a projecting machine in the large living room.

Turkeys Plucked as "Hand Me Downs" Now Work to Keep 'Out Cold Go on "Stew" Party

Deward, Pa., Oct. 11.—Mrs. Charles Reichenbach of Deward had a barrel of cider in the cellar of her home to which some person had added a generous slug of rye, unknown to the Reichenbachs. The contents of the barrel were emptied and Mrs. Reichenbach also washed the rye from the barrel.

On the Reichenbach farm was a flock of turkeys that found the rye washed from the cider barrel, drank it and became paralyzed.

Mrs. Reichenbach found them lying on the lawn. She decided to salvage the feathers and thus lessen her loss. The turkeys were plucked, "dry." The men were requested to bury the dead birds.

The interment was postponed until the next day. The following morning they were astonished to behold the entire flock of turkeys trotting around with nothing on but pin feathers. Mrs. Reichenbach and the daughters have since made blankets for the plucked flock and the birds appear to like their new fall clothes very well.

Shenandoah, Ia., Oct. 11.—(Special.)—Wednesday marks the beginning of three gala days in connection with Shenandoah's Jubilee week, to commemorate the passing of half a century since the incorporation of this city. Citizens of Page county have evinced a lively interest in this great event which will be the most pretentious of any public occasions since the founding of Shenandoah.

Residents of Page and Fremont counties are coming to congratulate Shenandoah and to join in the festivities which have been prepared in great detail. Many former residents of Shenandoah are coming home to meet and greet the old home folks once again and to note the wonderful progress this town has made during the span of 50 years.

Birth of City. Shenandoah was incorporated in the summer of 1871. The first election was held on August 22, 1871, when 61 votes were cast. In 1887 it became a city of the second class, having acquired a population of 2,000.

In song, story and pageant the story of Shenandoah will be told. The first feature on the program tomorrow will be the registration of all natives of Page and Fremont counties and all who have lived in these counties 50 years or more.

A parade will move to the soldiers' monument where an address of welcome will be delivered by A. S. Lake. The Elks' band and a double quartet will offer a program. Professor R. K. Bliss, director of the musical extension, Ames, and Edgar R. Harlan, curator of the Iowa Historical department, will speak. At night prizes will be awarded to old-timers who give the best short reminiscence talks. An old-time dance and a monster military band will be the feature for Thursday afternoon. In the eve of march will be veterans of all wars, women's auxiliaries, floats, bands, drum corps and a "40 and 8" parade. Governor Kendall and Brig. Gen. M. A. Tinley of the National National guard are scheduled for an address at 3 Thursday afternoon. Carnival parade downtown, crowning queen of carnival, and opening of the American Legion midway are features de luxe for Thursday night.

The city will escort its visitors Friday morning through business houses and other places of commerce and industry, and to points of interest. Another parade will be held on Friday afternoon. In the evening will be women horsemen, Indian riders, 60 floats, visiting troupes, golden wedding party and other features. Golden wedding ceremony will be held at 2, speaking and music at 3 and a pageant at 7.

Girl Believed to Have Ended Life in Missouri

Emma Flor

River Dragged For Body of Girl Thought Suicide

Foster Father Believes Young Woman Wore Hat and Coat, Drowned Self.

Police dragged the river yesterday for the body of Emma Flor, 21, believed to have drowned herself Monday. Her hat and a coat identified as belonging to her by her foster father, Fred Flor, were found on the river bank.

She went to the river seven weeks ago with the intention of drowning herself. Flor told police yesterday, but returned without accomplishing her purpose.

Thought of Sorrow. She told her family of the attempt, but said the thought of the sorrow it would cause, kept her from jumping in.

Her real name, Flor said, is Miller. Her father's name is Theodore, but he does not know his whereabouts. She has a brother, Emmett Miller, who lives on Thirty-third avenue near Leavenworth street, and a sister, Louisa, who was adopted by a family named Ahlers.

Mentally Unbalanced. After her first attempt to end her life, the girl was sent to St. Bernard hospital in Council Bluffs for treatment. She remained about four weeks. She is believed to have been mentally unbalanced Monday. Her foster father has no doubt but that she ended her own life.

Parents of the girl this morning offered a reward of $25 for information as to her whereabouts if she is alive, or for her body if she is dead.

Italian Colony To Hold Annual Pageant Today

The memory of Enrico Caruso, who reviewed the local Columbus Day parade last year, casts a slight shadow over members of the Omaha Italian colony who will take part in the annual pageant today.

Beginning with a parade at 2, which will start from Sixteenth and Nicholas and traverse the principal streets, a mass meeting will be held at 4 in Turner hall, Thirteenth and Dorcas, followed by a big dance to-night.

Three floats in the parade, Columbus before Salvanica, his landing in America and his proof to the Indians of the eclipse of the sun, were designed by Gus Renze, Ak-San artist.

Four Italian societies: Christopher Columbus, Roma, Italia, Benevolent and Anagnio associations, each headed by bands, and a score of automobiles, gaily decorated in the Italian and American colors, will take part in the procession. The mayor, city commissioners and Italian consul also will ride.

Mayor Dahlstrom, Raymond Coffey, assistant county attorney, Sebastian Salerno, Louis J. Piatti and Claudio Dellata will speak. Father Michael Stagno will give the invocation. Frank Favara, Paul Pattavine and Leo Palente are on the committee of arrangements.

Prizes will be awarded for the three best decorated cars. The city hall and banks will be closed today, a legal holiday.

Davis Will Investigate Need of Lincoln Grand Jury

Lincoln, Oct. 11.—(Special Telegram.)—Attorney General Clarence A. Davis, who arrived here to attend the regular meeting of the state board of pardons and paroles, stated that he would remain in Lincoln for several days, to make investigations relative to the calling of a grand jury in Lincoln to investigate alleged "wildcat" stock selling concerns similar to those under investigation by the recent O-maha grand jury.

"A blind man could see that I have been up to my ears in work in Omaha recently and the Lincoln situation needs study in advance of the possible calling of a grand jury," he said.

Jack Frost Plans to Stay in Omaha Several Nights

Frost again was the weather bureau's prediction for last night, but "fair and warmer" is the word for Wednesday. The mercury dropped to 36 early yesterday, approaching its record for several mornings in the past week.

12,000-Foot Flight Restores Hearing to Aged Man Temporarily

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 11.—(Special Telegram.)—Hearing was restored to J. W. Frost, 84, here today after he had alighted from a 12,000-foot flight from an airplane. Before the aged man started on the flight he could not hear out of one ear if a man with a megaphone voice shouted.

When he alighted he could hear friends talking as he returned to his home in an automobile.

The return of his hearing is attributed to the cold air beating against his ear drums and reviving action in ostensibly worn out parts of his ear drums.

Before frost started on his flight his hearing was tested by a physician.

"It certainly is a cold country up there," he said on his return.

A report from the Frost home late tonight stated that the second hearing apparently restored right after the flight, had been lost again. Frost took the flight because he read that it would restore his hearing.

A clock has been inserted in the pedestal of a new floor lamp by its designer.
