

Mayor Dahlman Declares War on Movie Mashers

Says Operations of Male Flirts In Darkened Theaters Must Stop—Will Consult Police Chief.

War has been declared against motion picture theater flirts by Mayor James C. Dahlman, who is acting police commissioner in the absence of Commissioner Dunn.

"I've heard about these male vamps before," said the mayor. "They operate in darkened theaters to best advantage."

"It must be stopped. Young girls going to the theater for recreation must not be annoyed by these vultures. I'll take up the matter with Chief of Police Dempsey."

It was stated Friday that one chain of motion picture theaters here is employing a woman detective to combat the activities of the "twilight mashers."

The detective is said to be petite and pretty, and to be tempting bait for flirts. Should mashers attempt a flirtation with her, however, they are due for a free ride to Central police station, say theater owners.

As a result of the detective's activities, one young man was fined in police court Friday, charged with paying undesired attentions to a girl motion picture patron.

The commissioner's statement was made after he had reached a decision to have a "rough house-cleaning" in the Pennsylvania organization.

Cohan's self-imposed exile follows several years of difficulties with former friends in the theatrical world, which started with the actors' strike and the foundation of the Actors' Equity association.
